Order No. 45.

Police Museum.

A POLICE Museum has been formed at the Office of the Inspector-General of Police. Officers are requested to send up interesting exhibits, such as dies and moulds for false coins with specimens of the coins so made, weapons in important cases, house-breaking implements of interest or new fashion, dice seized from gamblers, and other articles of a novel or instructive nature.

2. Each article should be accompanied by a letter briefly explaining the circumstances of the case in which it is an exhibit, and giving the number and court of the case.

Order No. 46.

Railway.

Officers in charge of Police Stations will in future send information by wire direct to their Superintendents of Police or Assistant Superintendents of Police immediately on the occurrence of any attempt to derail a train or of any serious accident on the Railway line.

Office of the Inspector-General of Police,
