No. 1,277 of August 8, 1912.

Muthuminitilleke Aruppaksege Don Themaris Perera.- "A Portable Bicycle Stand." Muthummatuleke Aruppaksege Don Themaris Perera.—" A Portable Bicycle Stand." Abstract.—A pair of legs hinged at the top, like compasses, and fitted with a spring that keeps the legs apart at a certain angle, are hinged to a clamp and are clamped thereby to the frame of the bicycle at the forward side of the pedal axle. Those legs are made of such a length that, when they hang vertically from that clamp, they rest on the ground when the front wheel of the bicycle is lifted clear of the ground; and in that position the bicycle is supported on the two legs and the rear wheel. When the legs are not required for that purpose they are swung upwards and backwards, being pinched together at the same time, and are retained in a more or less horizontal position by a pair of spring clips clamped to the bicycle frame behind the pedal axle. When the legs are released from those spring clips they open out automatically as they fall. as they fall.
