Report of the Medical Officer of Health for the Month of February, 1914.

General Health .-- The general health of the town was far from satisfactory. Influenza, fever, dysentry, and dengue have been permanent.

Infectious Diseases .-- One case of cholera occurred amongst the contacts in the camp on February 1, and one case, occurred at Gintota on the 9th; the latter was a contact discharged on February 7, after the full period of segregation at the camp. I cannot help concluding that she got the disease from some infected clothing which she had secreted somewhere
