So 10/10/14
Notice of the Bill relating to Harry Creasy's Patent No. 1,024 of 1908.

The general nature of this Bill is to validate patent No. 1,024 of 1908 (for a process of and apparatus for the production of ice and cold) which was granted to Harry Creasy of Colombo and his assigns, and which patent was assigned by the said Harry Creasy to Ellis Spear, Frank L. Middleton, Walter Donaldson, and James M. Spear, all carrying on business at 1,003, F. street, N.W. Washington, in the District of Columbia, in the United States of America.

The said patent No. 1,024 became invalid by reason of the above-named assignees inadvertently omitting to pay two renewal fees of Rs. 50 each, which fell due on March 18, 1912, and March 18, 1913. These fees are prescribed by the Patents Ordinance of 1906, which further provides that the Registrar of Patents can enlarge the time for the payment of the renewal fee. But in this instance the power given to the Registrar to enlarge the time expired on September 18, 1912, and the object of this Bill is to validate the said patent No. 1,024 notwithstanding the omission to pay the said fees because the amounts due have since been paid and because the default of the assignees was not due to wilful neglect or disobedience to the law.
