NOTIFICATIONS UNDER "THE PATENTS ORDINANCE, 1906."

THE following Specification has been accepted:—

No. 1,509 of September 15, 1916.

Sampathawadu Manukulasuriya Bastian Peter Mendis.

"A process for the manufacture and separation of potash salt from vegetable ash without the use of acids."

Abstract:—

The inventor states:—

I burn any kind of vegetable material, such as wood, wood wastes, coconut branches, coconut husks, or coir dust, till it is reduced to ash. Before the fire has died out, on this layer of ash I place a second layer of the vegetable material and burn that in the same way till this is also reduced to ash. As in the first case, before the fire has died out, a third layer of vegetable material is superimposed on the resultant ash of the first two burns, and the process is repeated by burning the third layer. This process of burning fresh layers of vegetable material on the ash is repeated and continued from time to time. The effect of the repeated burning of fresh material over the residuary ash is to separate the potash salt in the ash which collects into masses and lumps. The process of repeated burnings must be continued till a sufficient quantity of potash salt is produced. Thus the potash salt is separated from the ash without the use of acids.

I have stated above that the layers of fresh vegetable material should be placed on the ash resulting from the previous burn before the fire has died out. This is the most convenient method of carrying out my process, but the latter can be as effectually carried out by placing fresh layers of material on ash from which the fire has died out, and by lighting it afresh.

The claim is:—

In the manufacture and separation of potash salt from vegetable salt, the process of repeated and successive burnings of layers of vegetable material till reduced to ash substantially as described, each fresh layer of material being placed on and burnt on the ash resulting from the previous burnings till potash salt is separated and formed as described.

Registrar of Patents.
