1. The Hon. the Controller of Revenue shall have power to refuse or to accept any tender, subject to which power the highest tenderer shall be declared to be the lessee of the privilege, and shall conform to and perform all the conditions under which the privilege is sold.

2. The lessee shall immediately on his being declared the lessee pay to the Government Treasury, in cash, the sum of Rs. 500 in addition to a sum equivalent to two months' rent as a security deposit, which amount shall be liable to forfeiture in whole or in part at the discretion of the Assistant Government Agent, Kalutara, for breach of any of the conditions; and such forfeiture shall be in addition to any other penalty prescribed by the conditions for such breach. The lessee shall also within seven days of his tender being accepted enter into a bond with or without sureties at the discretion of the Assistant Government Agent, Kalutara, for the due performance of the conditions of his lease.

Such cost which shall be regarded as ascertained and liquidated damages, may be recovered from the amount held in deposit as security or otherwise. Any sum so deducted from the money in deposit shall be made good by the lessee within a week's time if the lease is still running. The decision of the Excise Commissioner as to whether or not the lessee should be held responsible for any damage shall be final.

NOTIFICATIONS UNDER "THE PATENTS ORDINANCE, 1906."

THE following Specifications have been accepted:—

No. 1,604 of November 29, 1918.

Kapoewas Rubber Company, Limited.

"A device for forming a cup support and spout for attaching to trees for the collection of rubber latex, wild gum, turpentine, or the like purposes."

Abstract:—

A strip of thin metal is cut and stamped and punched to such a shape in the flat that when it is bent in a particular manner it forms a spout at one end and a flat support at right angles for the collecting cup to rest on at the other end. It is then tied to the tree. The shipment of the strips is intended to be done while they are flat and the bending of them is intended to be done on the estate.

In a modification the strip is extended from the spout end and that extended part is widened to a circular shape and so that that part, when bent over at right angles, forms a fixed cover to the collecting cup. The fixing to the tree is done in the same way as before.

The claims are:—

1. A device for forming a spout and cup support for attaching to trees for collecting rubber latex, wild gum, turpentine, or for the like purposes, consisting of a flat sheet metal blank of greater length than width stamped or formed with a transversely disposed curve slot therein near the spout end of said blank to enable the said spout end to be bent over through more than 90 degrees (e.g., between 130° and 140° or thereabouts), to form the spout substantially as hereinbefore described.
2. A device in accordance with claim 1 having the other end thereof to the spout end bent at right angles or thereabouts to the initial flat part of the blank to thereby form a support for the cup for receiving therein the latex, &c.
3. A device in accordance with claim 1 or claim 2, having the spout portion extended between the curved slot and the extreme outer end of the spout portion curved transversely of its length to thereby form a spout or guideway to the device substantially as hereinbefore described.
4. A device in accordance with claim 1, or claim 2, or claim 3, hereof, having a circular hole provided in the other end to the spout end to receive therein and support the bottom end of the cup for receiving and holding latex, &c., substantially as described.
5. A device for the purpose specified, constructed, and arranged to act substantially as hereinbefore described with reference to figs. 1 to 8 of the drawings hereunto annexed.

6. Providing a device of the kind referred to in the preceding claims with a greatly enlarged end part thereon integral with the spout end and adapted to form a cover shield or protecting screen—integral with said device—to extend over the cup support on said device substantially as hereinbefore described.

7. A device of the kind referred to having integral therewith a cover shield or protecting screen for the cup supported on said device all combined and arranged to act substantially as hereinbefore described, with reference to and as illustrated in figs. 9 to 16 of the drawings hereunto annexed.

"A process for making butter, soap, and filling pulp from all oil-bearing seeds, such as coconuts, almond, gingelly, ground nuts, and sun flower seeds."

Abstract :—

The nature of the process is indicated by the claims which are as follows :—

1. In a process for making butter, soap, and filling pulp from oil-bearing seeds, grinding the kernel into paste, mixing the paste with water and pumping it through the filter press for the purpose of separating the fibrous substance in the paste from the fatty and mineral substances substantially as described.

2. In a process for making butter, soap, and filling pulp from oil-bearing seeds, removing the fibrous substance from the filter press, drying same in a centrifugal drier and using it for pastry food or as filling substance with paper pulp substantially as described.

3. In a process for making butter, soap, and filling pulp from oil-bearing seeds, the pouring of the juice of the kernel into a jacketed cooling tank and introducing into the jacket cold water or compressed air or ammonia substantially as described.

4. In a process for making butter, soap, and filling pulp from oil-bearing seeds, the pumping of the juice through a filter press by means of a high pressure centrifugal pump and thus separating the fatty and mineral substances in the juice substantially as described.

5. In a process for making butter, soap, and filling pulp from oil-bearing seeds, the removal of the vegetable butter from the filter press and putting same into a mixture of water and alcohol substantially as described.

6. In a process for making butter, soap, and filling pulp from oil-bearing seeds, the putting of the mineral substance into a vacuum pan and reducing same into a thick mass substantially as described.

"An improved process for separating thorium from other rare earths and for the manufacture of thorium nitrate, and other thorium salts."

Abstract :—

The nature of the invention is indicated in the claims which are as follows :—

1. The improved process for the separation of thorium from other rare earth metals according to which thorium is precipitated from an acid solution by the addition to the solution of an oxidizing agent whereby a precipitate of an oxide or oxides of thorium directly soluble in nitric acid is obtained.

2. The improved process for the production of thorium nitrate or other thorium salts according to which thorium is precipitated as oxide or peroxide from an acid solution containing thorium by the addition to the solution of an oxidizing agent, and the precipitate is then dissolved in nitric acid or other suitable acid and crystallized.

3. The improved process for the production of thorium nitrate from monazite sand according to which the monazite sand is first subjected to the usual breaking process with sulphuric acid, the resulting mass is then treated with water and a solution of rare earth phosphates in sulphuric acid thus obtained, the solution is then treated with permanganate of potash or other analogous oxidizing agent and thorium peroxide precipitate obtained which is subsequently filtered off and dissolved in nitric acid.

4. The process for the production of thorium nitrate according to claim 2 wherein crystallization is effected in vacuo.

5. The improved process for the separation of thorium from other rare earth metals and for the production of thorium nitrate or other thorium salts substantially as specified.

"Improvement in an apparatus for sorting and cleaning tea and similar light substances."

Abstract :—

This invention relates to an improvement in apparatus for mechanically sorting and cleaning broken tea and similar light substances by means of an air current which is sent through the material to be treated while the latter is falling through an enclosed space, this air current causing the particles to deviate from the direction of their falling motion by imparting to them a different trajectory in accordance with their weight and volume, so that the particles reach the bottom of the enclosed space at different points and may thus be sorted by means of a number of partitions.

According to the invention, the tea or other material to be treated is introduced into the enclosed space in the form of a broad and very thin stream in order that the action of the air current may be as regular and as strong as possible. For this purpose a device is provided consisting of a plate or strip which is arranged in a movable manner underneath a long and narrow inlet opening through which the material is introduced into the enclosed space, said plate or strip co-acting with a mechanism, imparting to the strip an oscillatory motion towards and from the inlet opening in such a manner that it increases and decreases the passage of the latter in quick succession.

The device consists of a hinged plate which is caused to rock about its hinges by means of a rotating hexagonal cam engaging with an arm attached to the plate which is pressed on the cam by a spring. Means of adjustment are provided to regulate the thickness of the falling stream of broken tea.

The claims are :—

1. Apparatus for sorting and cleaning tea and similar light substances by means of an air current, having underneath a long and narrow opening for introducing the material to be treated into an enclosed space, a movably arranged plate or strip co-acting with a mechanism adapted to impart to the plate or strip an oscillatory motion towards and from said inlet opening.

2. The improved apparatus for sorting and cleaning tea and similar light substances, substantially as hereinbefore described, and as illustrated in the accompanying drawings.

Two meetings convened by one notice.

70. The accidental omission to give any such notice to any of the members shall not invalidate any resolution passed at any such meeting.

As to omission to give notice.

How questions to be decided at meetings. Casting vote. What is to be evidence of the passing of a resolution where poll not demanded.

76. Every question submitted to a meeting shall be decided in the first instance by a show of hands, and in the case of an equality of votes the Chairman shall, both on a show of hands and at the poll, have a casting vote in addition to the vote or votes to which he may be entitled as a member.
