UNIVERSITY OF LONDON.—INTERMEDIATE EXAMINATIONS IN ARTS AND SCIENCE, 1919-20.*Pass Examinations. (These examinations commence on the first Monday in July.)

NO candidate shall be admitted to them unless he have passed, or been admitted under Statute 116 (see Appendix) as exempt from, a Matriculation Examination not later than that of the preceding January.

Application should be made to the Director of Education not later than the last day of January on the prescribed form, which can be obtained from the Education Office.

The subjects for which a candidate desires to enter, the date of his matriculation, his name in full (initials not sufficient), should be stated. Candidates for Scholarship should also forward a certificate of birth.

The admission fee of Rs. 100 should be credited to the account of the Director of Education in the Mercantile Bank of India, Limited, Colombo, and the receipt of the Bank and a certificate of good conduct should be sent with the form of application. No cash or Bank draft or Money Order or Cheque will be accepted.

Candidates from outside the Colony may, however, remit the fee by Money Order or Bank draft in favour of the Director of Education.

N.B.—The University fee should not under any circumstances be remitted direct to the University of London or to the Education Office.

If a candidate withdraws his name, or fails to present himself at the examination, the fee shall not be returned to him. He should pay the usual fee for every subsequent entry for the examination.

The examination shall be conducted by means of printed papers; but the Examiners shall not be precluded from putting, for the purpose of ascertaining the competence of the candidates to pass, ad hoc questions to any candidate in the subjects in which they are appointed to examine.

SPECIAL REGULATIONS FOR THE UNIVERSITY SCHOLARSHIPS.

Two scholarships of the annual value of £250 tenable for three years, together with an outfit allowance of £50, second class passage money not exceeding Rs. 500 to proceed to the British Isles, and first class passage not exceeding £50 for return to Ceylon after completion of a course of study in the British Isles, will be awarded annually, one on the results of the Intermediate Examination in Arts of the University of London, and the other on the results of the Intermediate Examination in Science of the University of London, to the candidates recommended by the authorities of the University of London, provided they are physically fit.

* Candidates who in any year from 1880 to 1896 inclusive have passed the Intermediate Examination in Science, and candidates who in and after 1897 shall have passed that examination taking the following subjects, viz., Experimental Physics, Chemistry, Botany, and Zoology, will, for the purposes of these regulations, be credited with having passed the First Examination for Medical Degrees.

Candidates who have passed an Intermediate Examination in Science or Agriculture with Chemistry, or Physics; or Botany and Zoology, will be exempted at the First Examination for Medical Degrees from examination in the subjects in which they have passed.

Candidates who have passed the B.Sc. Examination with Physics, or Chemistry, or Botany and Zoology, will be exempted at the First Examination for Medical Degrees from examination in the subjects in which they have passed.

No exemption in General Biology at the First Examination for Medical Degrees will be granted to candidates who have not passed an Intermediate Examination in Science, or the B.Sc. Examination with Botany and Zoology.

Candidates who passed in Chemistry at the Intermediate Examination in Science in 1904 will be exempted from further examination in Organic and Applied Chemistry at the Second Examination for Medical Degrees Part I.

Candidates who enter for or have passed the Intermediate Examination in Engineering as External Students may in order to obtain exemption from the whole of the Intermediate Examination in Science, complete that examination by taking an additional subject at the Intermediate Examination in Engineering. Such additional subject may be taken either at an entry for the Intermediate Examination in Engineering or at any Intermediate Examination in Engineering subsequent to that at which the candidate has passed; and a fee of Rs. 50 will be payable in respect of each entry in such additional subject.

Candidates who enter for or have passed the Intermediate Examination in Engineering will be allowed to complete the Intermediate Examination in Science as above, and also, should they so desire, to enter for the B.Sc. Examination in the same year in which they do so complete, provided that they have passed the Intermediate Examination in Engineering not less than one year previously.

Candidates who have passed the Intermediate Examination in Agriculture may claim exemption at the Intermediate Examination in Science from subjects which could have been taken at the Intermediate Examination in Science.

No candidate will be eligible for one of these Scholarships who has not been resident in the Island for the five years next before the examination, or who has completed his twentieth year before the first day of the month fixed for the examination, or who has not been registered as a matriculated student of the University of London.

A scholar will be permitted to postpone his return for three years after the expiration of the Scholarship without special permission to do so, and with permission of His Excellency the Governor or the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for the Colonies to remain in Europe for a further period not exceeding four years, on the distinct understanding that such permission will be given only to enable the scholar to pursue a course of study or to acquire professional qualifications likely to be of benefit to the Colony on his eventual return.

The duration of the Government University Scholarship may be extended to four years in cases where a Scholarshipholder engages in a course of study which lasts more than three years, provided that he has shown marked promise and ability during the first three years that he has held the Scholarship.

The return passage of University scholars will not be paid by the Government unless they have notified the Crown Agents that they are returning to Ceylon in order to enter the Public Service, to practise a profession, or in some other way to confer on the community the benefit of their training.

Note.—The medical attendance of University scholars will be paid by Government in cases recommended by the Secretary of State; but the total sum which will be paid for any one scholar on this account is limited to £50, and if the student is placed in a nursing institution, not more than three guineas a week will be paid by Government towards the charges of the institution.

The parent or guardian of every University scholar will be required to execute a bond for an amount of not less than Rs. 1,000, to be utilized to meet medical expenses in excess of £50 which are considered to be necessary by the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State may at any time order the return to Ceylon of any University scholar on the recommendation of the medical advisers to the Colonial Office.

No candidate will be eligible for the Scholarship awarded on the Intermediate Arts Examination who does not take up the two subjects, Latin and Greek.

Candidates for the University Scholarship in Arts will be allowed to take, in addition to their other papers, either two higher Classical papers, or two higher Mathematical papers. The aggregate maximum of marks allowed for these papers will be the same in each case as the maximum allowed for each of the sections of the Intermediate Examination in Arts. But a candidate's marks for any of these higher papers will only be counted if he obtain at least one-third of the maximum of marks assigned to it.

Candidates for the University Scholarship in Science will be allowed to take, in addition to their other papers, the paper on Analytical Geometry, which is set as a higher paper for the candidates in Arts, under similar conditions with regard to marking. The marks assigned to this paper in the Science Examination will bear the same proportion to the aggregate maximum of marks as in the Arts Examination.

NOTIFICATIONS UNDER "THE PATENTS ORDINANCE, 1906."

THE following Specifications have been accepted:—

No. 1,619 of February 15, 1919.

Alfred Louis de Witt, Communicatee of the Singer Manufacturing Co.

"A sewing machine (motor driven)."

Abstract:—

The invention consists in adapting the goose neck frame and the treadle and hand-driving mechanism of a sewing machine so that a motor, preferably an electric motor, can be added to drive the machine interchangeably with the treadle or hand-driving gear, and so that the machine may be driven by hand, by foot treadle, or by motor without making any structural change or any change in the mechanism beyond throwing out of gear any pair of the other provided modes of driving.

The motor is simply pushed into a recess provided in the goose neck frame, its driving shaft thereby being made to engage with the same driving shaft as is driven by the treadle or hand gear.

The claims are:—

1. In a sewing machine, a frame formed with an aperture, stitch-forming mechanism comprising a reciprocatory needle and complementary loop-taking means incorporated in said frame, operating mechanism interconnecting said needle and loop-taking means, a motor unit comprising a stator detachably supported by said frame, and a rotor journaled in said stator, and including a power shaft entering said aperture and operatively connected with said operating mechanism.

2. In a sewing machine, a frame having an opening therein, stitch-forming mechanism sustained by said frame, means for actuating said mechanism, and a readily removable actuating unit constructed separately from said frame and entering said opening, said unit having a driving connection operatively connectible with the stitch-forming mechanism by insertion in said opening.

3. In a sewing machine, a frame, stitch-forming devices, and operating mechanism therefor, including a shaft, a motor, including a stator detachably sustained as a unit by said frame and a rotor having a power shaft disposed transversely of said first-named shaft, and an operative connection between said shafts.

4. A motor-driven sewing machine having a frame formed with a recessed goose neck, sewing mechanism incorporated in said frame, a driving motor received at least partially within the recess of said goose neck and detachable therefrom as a unit, and a driving connection between said motor and sewing mechanism.

5. A sewing machine adapted to be driven electrically and equipped with stitch-forming devices and with operating mechanism therefor, including a shaft, on which is mounted a spiral gear adjacent to an opening in the machine frame and engageable by a spiral gear fixed to the power shaft of an electric motor on insertion of the latter in said opening.

6. A sewing machine the frame of which includes a portion formed with an opening adapted for reception of a readily removable motor unit to operate the stitch-forming mechanism and adapted to be closed by a cover plate when the motor unit is removed from the machine, the machine being equipped with additional means for operating the stitch-forming mechanism independently of its operation by the motor.

7. In a sewing machine, stitch-forming mechanism, a detachable motor, automatically disconnectible means for connecting the stitch-forming mechanism and motor, and means for manually disconnecting the stitch-forming mechanism from the motor.

8. In a sewing machine, a plurality of main-shaft sections, stitch-forming means actuated by one of said sections, a plurality of independently disconnectible actuating means connected to another of said sections, and means for connecting and disconnecting said sections at will.

9. In a sewing machine, stitch-forming mechanism, an actuating shaft therefor, a plurality of driving devices, including a motor and a belt pulley, and means for transmitting power to said shaft from either of said devices, including a driving element common to both.

10. In a sewing machine, a reciprocatory needle and complementary loop-taking means, interconnecting mechanism for actuating the needle and loop-taking means in properly timed relation to one another, a belt wheel mounted for rotation independently of said mechanism, an electric motor for driving said belt wheel, means for establishing and interrupting driving relation between said belt wheel and mechanism, and a one-way acting clutch between said motor and belt wheel.

11. In a sewing machine, a main shaft, a plurality of driving devices comprising a motor drive, a belt drive, and a hand drive independent of each other, and means for actuating said shaft from any one of said devices.

12. In combination, a sewing machine frame, stitch-forming devices, and operating means therefor, including a rotary shaft extending lengthwise of said machine frame, and a motor mounted upon said machine frame and comprising a frame constructed with aligned shaft bearings extending crosswise of said machine frame and having an intermediate open-topped gear cavity and an oil pocket extending from the same lengthwise of one of said bearings to catch lubricant overflowing from said cavity when said machine frame is canted laterally, and a power shaft journaled in said bearings and carrying a gear entering said cavity, and operatively connected with said rotary shaft.

13. In a sewing machine, in combination, stitch-forming mechanism, operating means therefor, including a rotary shaft formed in separate driving and driven sections the adjacent ends of which are formed with slots, said driving section being tubular, an operative connection between the driven section and the stitch-forming mechanism, driving means connected with the driving section, a coupling rod passing through the bore of the driving section and formed with a slot at the end adjacent to the driven section, and a key plate secured in the slot in said coupling rod and entering the slots in the driving and driven sections.

14. In a sewing machine, in combination, a frame formed with a hollow member having an aperture, stitch-forming mechanism, and operating means therefor, including a shaft extending within the hollow frame member, a gear mounted on said shaft adjacent to said aperture, said gear having a one-way clutch connection with said shaft, and a closure for said aperture.

No. 1,620 of February 15, 1919.

Alfred Louis de Witt, Communicatee of the Singer Manufacturing Co.

"A sewing machine (frame construction)."

Abstract:—

It is said that in the usual flat bed type of sewing machine the loop taker and feeding mechanisms project downwardly from the open underside of the bed plate, and so that oil can drip from, and dust collect on, those working parts. Access is obtained to those parts by tilting the machine.

The object of this invention is to provide a casing for those working parts of the machine so that they are enclosed and kept dust free and so that oil cannot escape.

The object is attained by casting a trough-shaped base along with the goose neck arm carrying the rest of the mechanism. That trough-shaped base is open only on the top side, and that is closed when the machine is working by a sliding plate. When the sliding plate is removed, access is obtained to the working parts below the surface of the table from the top, and the usual tilting of the machine for that purpose is unnecessary.

The claims are:—

1. A sewing machine frame comprising an open-topped trough-shaped supporting bed, a standard fixed directly to and carried by one end portion of said bed, and a bracket arm carried by said standard and overhanging said bed.

2. A sewing machine frame comprising a trough-shaped supporting bed, a standard fixed directly to and carried by one end portion of said bed, a bracket arm carried by said standard and overhanging said bed, and a detachable cloth plate serving to close substantially the entire upper side of said bed.

3. A sewing machine frame substantially as claimed in claims 1 and 2, characterized in that the bed is formed with outwardly extending projections disposed above its bottom and affording supports, and that the cloth plate is formed with marginal portions extending beyond and adapted to conceal said projections.

4. A sewing machine frame substantially as claimed in claims 1 and 2, characterized in that the cloth plate has a bent over peripheral portion, and is cut away at one end to fit about the base of the standard.

5. A sewing machine frame comprising an open-topped trough-shaped supporting bed, standard, and bracket arm, all cast in one piece, and a cover plate wider than said bed and serving to close the open upper side of the latter.

6. A sewing machine comprising a frame formed with a trough-shaped supporting bed, a standard carried by one end of said bed, a bracket arm carried by said standard, and stitch-forming and work-feeding mechanisms incorporated in said frame, and including moving elements supported directly by and within said trough-shaped bed.

7. A sewing machine substantially as claimed in claim 6, characterized in that the bed is formed with inwardly projecting bearing lugs, in which are journaled moving parts of the stitch-forming and feeding mechanisms, one of said lugs being formed with oil holes for reception of oil-delivery tubes.

8. A sewing machine comprising a frame, formed with a trough-shaped supporting bed, stitch-forming and work-feeding mechanisms incorporated in said frame and including moving parts housed within said bed, and a removable oiling device supported within said bed, said oiling device, including an oil reservoir and delivery tubes carried thereby, said delivery tubes being adapted to conduct oil to various of the moving parts requiring lubrication.

"Machine for drying liquids."

Abstract:—

This invention relates to a liquid drying machine of the kind in which the liquid, such as milk, is dried on the surface of a rotating body, the interior of which is heated by means of steam, hot air, or by similar means.

In accordance with the invention, the drying takes place on the plane upper surface of a hollow annular body rotating on a vertical axle, and the upper side of which is enclosed in an annular hood, which, together with the plane drying surface, forms a closed channel through which warm dry air is drawn. The liquid to be dried is fed on to the surface in the usual manner by means of a stationary hopper, the open lower end of which is adjusted at such distance from the surface that a suitable layer of liquid is transferred to the said surface as it passes under the hopper. Immediately in front of the hopper a stationary scraper for removing the dried product is placed.

The claims are:—

1. A machine for drying liquids in which the drying is effected in an annular closed channel, the bottom of which is formed by the top of a rotating annular hollow body, which is heated internally by means of some suitable heating medium.
2. A machine as specified in claim 1, in which the heated annular hollow body is entirely enclosed in a closed vessel, the upper part of which forms the stationary part of the channel in which the liquid is dried.
3. A machine as specified in claim 1, in which the drying channel is opened at a certain point to give place for a device for feeding the liquid to be dried and for a scraper for removing the dried product.
4. A machine as specified in claims 1, 2, and 3, in which one end of the drying channel (the end at which the liquid to be dried enters) is connected with a ventilator or suction pump, while the other end of the channel is connected with the interior of the vessel, which encases the heated hollow body so that the warm air from this body is sucked through the channel against the direction of rotation.
5. A machine as specified in claim 1, in which the hopper, through which the liquid to be dried is fed on to the drying surface, is so arranged as to act as a vacuum evaporator furnished with a suitable stirring device.
