THE following Specification has been accepted :—

No. 2,637 of March 9, 1933.

Andrew Betts Brown.

Improvements in the control of, and withering of green tea leaf.

Abstract.—Cooled and dried air is circulated in a closed circuit in the withering loft. It may be reconditioned and used again with or without admixture with fresh air. The air flow is from a central longitudinal line across the loft to the two sides. The air is cooled below atmospheric temperature to remove moisture and then raised to lower the relative humidity, as it passes through the loft its temperature is raised still more which enables it to take up more moisture.

There are fourteen claims and two sheets of drawings.
