CARNEGIE: SCHOLARSHIPS.

THE following information regarding the inauguration of a scheme by the Trustees of the Carnegie Corporation New York for giving assistance to officers of the Colonial Service who might with advantage be allowed to take a "refresher" year for the purpose of undertaking special studies, is published for general information.

By His Excellency's command,

Chief Secretary's Office. Colombo, November 19, 1932. F. G. TYRRELL, Chief Secretary.

A sum of sixty thousand dollars has been appropriated by the Trustees from the funds, which owe their existence, to bequests by the late Mr. Andrew Carnegie, for the furtherance of the scheme over a period of 3 years from the present.

- The Trustees contemplate that the period of study should be one year, but they do not propose to draw up any regulations either as to the place at which the studies should be taken or as to their nature, save that the time should be spent on work of a definite kind. They would be prepared to consider applications for assistance to study at a University or similar institution, or to travel or, again, proposals which included study in residence and travel. As instances of their object and the range of applications which they would be prepared to consider, the Trustees have mentioned courses of study in anthropology for administrative officers; scientific courses for medical, agricultural, veterinary, and forestry officers; courses in economics, banking, and currency for Treasury officers; visits to other British Colonies or to the Dependence of the Colonial powers for the purpose of studying. encies of other Colonial powers for the purpose of studying the methods adopted there. These suggestions are mentioned by way of illustration only, and do not exhaust the objects which the Trustees have in view. If it was desired to spend the "refresher" year in the United States, the authorities of the Corporation would do their best to make the visit as pleasant and profitable as possible. The essence of the scheme is, however, that no restriction will be placed on an applicant's choice of the place or manner in which the year will be spent.
- The Trustees have not suggested any definite conditions of eligibility for officers who may seek to avail themselves of the scheme. They are, however, impressed by the benefits which an officer who has spent ten or more years in the Service may derive from a course of study, not only because of its educational value, but also from the point of view of his health and his interest in his work, and so of his advancement in the Service. Generally speaking, preference will be given to promising officers between thirty and forty years of age.
- As regards the amount of the assistance which might be given, the Trustees would regard a sum of $3,000 as on the average an appropriate grant, but would wish to adopt the principle that officers who are selected should neither lose nor gain financially. They suggest that the assistance should be of the amount which would cover assistance should be one amount which would be his Government and any loss in salary due to his absence from The amount must therefore to some extent be dependent upon the terms upon which an officer is released.
- 5. The Secretary of State will be glad to receive any applications recommended by His Excellency the Governor. It would be convenient if the applications could be accompanied by as close an estimate as it may be possible to frame of the amount of assistance which would be required from the Fund, based on the suggestion mentioned in paragraph 4 above. Each application should also be supported by a full statement of the officer's career in the Colonial Service as well as of his academic and other qualifications in order that the selecting authorities may be enabled to form an opinion as to his ability to turn to good account the facilities which may be placed at his disposal.
- 6. Applications from officers in the Public Service desiring to avail themselves of the scholarships should be forwarded to the Chief Secretary through their Heads of Department as early as possible giving the particulars. of Department as early as possible, giving the particulars required by paragraph 5 hands required by paragraph 5 hereof.
- 7. Officers awarded scholarships will be granted what ever earned vacation and half pay leave they may have available and will thereafter, if necessary, be placed on no pay leave until the end of the course, the pension value for the period of absence being calculated as in the case of ordinary leave to Europe. No passage concessions will be granted beyond those to which an officer is entitled under the leave passage regulations. These conditions should be borne in mind by applicants when framing the estimate required under paragraph 5 above.

No application will be recommended unless it is considered that the course of study proposed would be of suse to this Government.
