- (i) the establishment and conduct of institutions for providing recreation and refreshment to officers or men of the Reserve ;
- (j) generally for the better carrying out of the provisions of this Ordinance.

Objects and Reasons.

This Bill is designed to authorize the raising and maintenance of a body of naval volunteers, consisting of officers and men who could be trained primarily in mine-sweeping, so that they may in time of war keep the approaches to local harbours free from the danger consequent on mines that may be laid by an enemy power. Considering the commercial importance of Colombo and the volume of its shipping it is desirable that responsibility in this respect should be assumed by a force whose principal duty will be to sweep for mines in Ceylon waters where its presence could be ensured in time of need. Since the proposal for the formation of such a force was first made a commencement in mine sweeping practice has been made with the crew of the Government ship "Nautilus" but for the success of such training and in the interests of efficiency it is necessary that those engaged in this hard and dangerous duty should be subjected to regular naval discipline, and it is besides reasonable that these men should when so employed enjoy the prestige and status of membership in a recognized combatant force.

2. The proposed force is to be known as the Ceylon Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, and this Bill provides the legal machinery required for its proper constitution, control and maintenance. The Governor is permitted in accordance with the provisions of the Colonial Naval Defence Act, 1931, of the Imperial Parliament to enrol as officers and men, for a term of three years at a time, any British subject between the age of 18 and 50. The force will be subject when on actual service to the discipline of the Royal Navy and will be maintained at the public expense. Its services may be required both within and without the limit of Ceylon, but the exact duties that the force may be required to perform may be prescribed by the Governor by regulations.

3. There is besides in the Bill the provisions usual in legislation of this type, viz., penalizing those who obstruct members of the force or induce them to dereliction of duty and punishing members of the force who fail to attend training or misuse the property of the force entrusted to them. Finally it is permitted by regulations to control the affairs of the force and other incidental matters for which express provision in the Bill has not been considered necessary.
