NOTIFICATIONS UNDER "THE PATENTS ORDINANCE, 1906."

THE following Specifications have been accepted:—

No. 2,848 of July 24, 1935.

Philip Schidrowitz and Ralph Morris Ungar.

Improvements relating to the manufacture of rubber.

Abstract.—In the specification of British Patent No. 368,902 the applicants state they have described a process for softening crude rubber according to which the rubber to be softened is exposed in a dry condition and in extended surface form to an oxidising atmosphere at a high temperature for a suitable period. The soft rubber so produced is claimed to be of greater general utility in manufacture and has the characteristic of being more readily incorporable with naphtha and like so-called solvents for rubber.

The present invention consists in the application of this process to initial crude rubber freshly formed upon coagulation in contrast to smoked sheet, crepe, and similar forms.

There are six claims and no drawings.

No. 2,861 of November 13, 1935.

James Stoddart Lornie.

Improvements in or relating to a manner of withering tea leaf and apparatus therefor.

Abstract.—The invention provides a mechanically operated witherer where the leaf is deposited in due course upon the withering surfaces which may be wound backwards and forwards during the process of withering.

The withering surfaces consist of lengths of canvas or other fabric passing over a series of rollers. Means are also provided for feeding tea leaf on to the withering surfaces.

There are forty-six claims and two sheets of drawings.

No. 2,894 of May 7, 1936 (Date applied for under section 48 of the Ordinance, March 12, 1934).

Rubber Producers Research Association.

Improvements in and relating to the concentration of latex.

Abstract.—This invention relates to the concentration of rubber latex and has more especial reference to processes for the concentration of ammoniated field latex by creaming, wherein creaming agents, usually colloidal substances, are added to the latex and cause its separation into an upper layer of concentrated latex cream, and a lower layer or layers containing mainly serum contents.

In accordance with the invention a process for the concentration by creaming of ammoniated field latex involves the addition of a solution of carob seed gum as creaming agent.

There are six claims and no drawings.

No. 2,895 of May 7, 1936 (Date applied for under section 48 of the Ordinance April 2, 1935).

Bernard Wilkinson.

Improvements in or relating to the manufacture of rubber compositions from rubber latex.

Abstract.—In the process described the vulcanization is claimed to take place under fundamentally different conditions from which has hitherto been the case, in that the time of cure is a very slow one and takes place over a greatly protracted period of time. It is claimed that this produces a material which possesses several advantages.

The process consists in the use of an accelerator capable of effecting in the course of time the vulcanization of rubber at relatively low temperature. To assist the action of the accelerator a suitable activator such as zinc oxide is added to the latex.

There are thirteen claims and no drawings.

R. BARTLAM,
Registrar of Patents.

THE following Specification has been accepted:—

No. 2,877 of January 17, 1936.

Fuller Company.

Manufacture of cement.

Abstract.—The invention comprises a method of extracting undesirable material as well as excessive quantities so that the proportions and sizes of the material can be readily controlled.

The material from the mill stream passes into a hydro separator from which the fines are extracted passing into the final thickener before being conveyed to the kiln feed. From the hydro-separator the residual material passes to a rake classifier from which the fines are again extracted as before, the remainder passing into a turbo-mixer and then into the froth flotation cells. In these cells the material is again separated the concentrates passing through a concentrate thickener into the final thickener where it is mixed with the fines extracted from the hydro-separator and rake classifier before passing to the kiln feed. The rejects from the froth flotation cells are fed into a concentration table, and from this the material unsuitable for cement making is rejected. Any material selected from the concentration table is passed back to the final thickener through a mill.

There are seven claims and one sheet of drawings.

Registrar of Patents.
