GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATIONS.

Notice to Exporters.

EXPORTERS are hereby warned that after July 15 no arrangements should be made to despatch goods to the United Kingdom for transhipment in United Kingdom ports, or for exportation after transit through the United Kingdom, until they are satisfied that a special import licence for transhipment has been granted by the United Kingdom Import Licensing Department. Failure to comply with this requirement will render goods liable to seizure on arrival in the United Kingdom. Where, however, goods not already covered by a special transhipment licence arrive in the United Kingdom, transhipment applications may be made as heretofore to the Customs authorities. Such applications will, however, be granted only in exceptional circumstances.

2. No licences will be required for goods proved to the satisfaction of His Majesty's Customs in the United Kingdom to have been despatched to that country before July 15.

3. The scheme will not affect goods remaining on board ships entering United Kingdom ports for onward carriage in the same ship, or ships' surplus stores which are transferred under the Customs Transhipment Regulations to other ships for use as stores.
