No. C/I—42 (2)

TRADE DISPUTE—SOUTH WESTERN BUS CO., LTD., RATMALANA.

THE West Ceylon Motor Workers' Union, Colombo presented a petition to me under section 6 of the Essential Services (Avoidance of Strikes and Lockouts) Order, 1942, with regard to a trade dispute that had arisen between the said Union and the South Western Bus Co., Ltd., Ratmalana. This petition was referred to a Special Tribunal appointed by H. E. the Governor under the proviso to section 5 of the said Order, for adjudication.

The following findings and award dated December 21, 1946, made by the Special Tribunal is published for general information in terms of section 8 (4) of the above-mentioned Order:—

“The petitioner-Union has presented this petition for the reinstatement of twenty workmen, whose services were terminated by the respondent company who was their employer.

Of these men, G. D. Peiris who was employed as a driver was dismissed on a charge of rash and negligent driving in October, 1945. The services of the remaining nineteen workmen were terminated on various dates after November 21, 1945, from which date the workmen employed by the respondent company numbering more than a thousand went out on a general strike.

It is not now the case of the petitioner-Union that these nineteen men were dismissed because they went on strike. As a matter of fact when the workmen returned to work after the strike was called off, they were all re-employed.

The case of the Union, however, is that the grounds upon which the services of these men were terminated were not such as to have justified their dismissal the union therefore takes up the position that the dismissal of these men is tantamount to a victimization of the employees. Alternatively, the position taken up is that even if the employer found it necessary to discontinue the services of those men, the workmen are entitled to claim compensation from the employer by payment of their wages or salary during the period when they were kept out of employment by the company.

No evidence has been placed before the Tribunal with regard to the facts or circumstances relating to the discontinuance from service of the following workmen, namely, D. William, B. Wijesinha, W. B. Podi Appuhamy, G. D. Martin, U. K. D. John Singho, D. I. Munasinghe, K. D. Setan, K. W. Dias Singho and Piyadasa Munasinghe.

The burden of proving that these men were dismissed without any valid reason or without any reasonable cause has not been discharged by the petitioner and the petition and demand for their reinstatement must therefore be rejected and I award that these men be not reinstated.

Evidence has however been adduced by both parties with regard to the discontinuance from service of the remaining persons referred to in the petition. I shall now proceed to examine the facts relating to the circumstances under which the services of these men were terminated.

I note that the respondent company which employed a very large body of workmen also employs a large number of Inspectors, Traffic Superintendents, Branch Managers all of whom work under the general supervision and control of the General Manager. The Managing Director, Mr. Cyril Zoysa, makes the final decision with regard to all dismissals when papers are referred to him. He has given evidence which satisfied me that such inquiries as were necessary and adequate in the circumstances of each case had been made before a final decision was taken regarding the termination of the services of each of these workmen—

(1) G. D. Peiris.

He was a bus driver. According to the evidence of Dissanayake, who was then the Branch Manager at Kalutara, the bus driven by Peiris went off the road into a paddy field as a result of rash and negligent driving. I am inclined to accept the view that this accident resulted from the inability of the driver to exercise control over the movement of the bus in consequence of the excessive speed at which he was driving.

In view of the evidence, I am not prepared to accept the explanation given by the driver that the accident resulted from the steering-lock giving way. This driver had been suspended from work on a previous occasion for driving a bus recklessly. An employee is in duty bound to protect the bus passengers against damage or injury caused to them in consequence of the negligent or reckless acts of the driver. The Company must also protect itself against claims for damages. The employer has the undoubted right to terminate the services of a driver who is found to be unsatisfactory or undesirable.

I find that there was good ground for terminating the services of Peiris and I make award that he be not reinstated.

(2) M. D. Edwin.

He was a clerk, employed in one of these buses. He was dismissed on December 7, 1945, because he had failed to issue tickets to two passengers. This workman had been fined previous to this for not issuing tickets to four passengers. The non-issue of tickets to passengers is not due to any generosity towards them but to a desire of a workman to misappropriate the fare collected from them. The evidence of Saralis Silva and the record made of Edwin's statement (D 2A)* proves that the fare from these passengers had been collected.

Saralis Silva the Chief Traffic Inspector who boarded this bus detected the fraud committed by Edwin. I am satisfied that there was good ground for terminating the services of Edwin and I award that he be not reinstated.

(3) Salabdeen.

This workman was the conductor along with Edwin on the occasion when Edwin had failed to issue those two tickets. A conductor and a clerk act together in the matter of the issue of tickets and the collection of the money. This arrangement is intended to operate as a check one upon the other.

They can however act in concert and defraud the Company. I find that Salabdeen was equally guilty as Edwin and that his dismissal was therefore justified.

I award that he too be not reinstated.

(4) Solomon Silva.

This workman was a clerk-conductor. He failed to deposit the day's collections. On being questioned his plea was that some pickpocket had robbed the money from his pocket. At an inquiry held it transpired that he had actually lost the money by gambling. He was asked to replace the amount and was also fined Rs. 50, for the offence. He chose not to pay the fine and left the employment. This workman appears to have been fined on a previous occasion for a similar offence, as would appear from his record sheet D6*. In the circumstances in which this workman gave up his employment his demand for reinstatement presents no merits and I therefore reject his demand.

(5) and (6) Rathenis and B. M. Martin.

These two men who were employed as clerk-conductors were discontinued because they had failed to issue tickets to four passengers and for overloading the bus contrary to instructions. The plea put forward by them for their default is contradictory and inconsistent with the previous statements made by them. It seems to be the fact that these men had failed to issue tickets to some passengers and had probably misappropriated the fare collected from them. Rathenis appears to have been fined previously for a similar offence. An employer is entitled to discontinue the services of his workmen who misappropriate moneys collected by them. The dismissal of these men is justifiable and I reject the demand for their reinstatement.

(7) A. P. Veerasamy.

This workman was discontinued when he was unwilling to work as a driver. Veerasamy appears to have had a bad foot which incapacitated him from performing the duties of a driver. He has, however, now recovered from his injury and the respondent company had re-employed him as a driver on a permanent basis, subject to the condition that he should be provided with other work if his continuous work as a driver is found to be really injurious to his foot. I accordingly award that he be reinstated (as he had already been) subject to the conditions set out above.

(8) Kuruman.

This workman was employed as a driver. He was charged in the Magistrate's Court with the offence of rashly and negligently driving a bus belonging to the respondent company. Pending the result of this case he was suspended. Having been acquitted by the Magistrate, the company was willing to re-employ him. The company through its Branch Manager Meegahawatte, informed him that he would be given work. Kuruman did not turn up for work. There is therefore no case for his reinstatement.

(9) Kirinelis.

He was a clerk-conductor. It was found on inspection that he had failed to issue four tickets. His previous record was not to his credit. His services had been discontinued on a previous occasion but he was re-employed. The respondent therefore decided to transfer him to some other section where he would have less opportunities of misappropriation. He declined to work on any other section and terminated his services. The company has in my opinion the right to transfer its employees to work on any route as decided by its management. No case has been made out for reinstatement of Kirinelis and I reject the demand.

(10) D. D. Carolis.

He was a checking inspector and therefore held a position of trust. According to the evidence of Saralis Silva who questioned the passengers when he boarded the bus the correct fares had been collected from all of them. Carolis appears to have written out four tickets and marked on each of them ten cents without filling in the other details, obviously with the intention of creating a defence for himself. The fares that should have been collected on each of these four tickets is much more than ten cents. I accept Saralis Silva's evidence and find that Carolis who had been employed to detect any fraud committed by the minor employees had himself become a participant in that fraud. His dismissal was therefore justified and I see no reason for his reinstatement.

With regard to the alternative claim for compensation to these workmen the question really does not arise in view of my findings that there were lawful grounds for the discontinuance of their services. If a workman chooses not to find other employment while an inquiry is pending, in the expectation that he will be reinstated and ultimately finds that his reinstatement is not ordered, he has only himself to blame.

In the result my award is that the demand for the reinstatement of and/or compensation to the workmen referred to in the petition, except Veerasamy, be rejected".

"Improvements in or relating to methods of blending bituminous compositions, to bituminous products, and to surface active agents used on bituminous materials, aggregates and the like".

Abstract.—The invention relates to the methods of coating aggregate so as to improve the holding properties of bituminous material on aggregate when used for road paving and similar uses. According to the invention, either the bituminous material is mixed with or the aggregate treated with a surface active agent derived from the interaction of a higher fatty acid with an amine. This surface active agent contains a mono- or polyamine soap with an admixture of acylamide or acylamidoamine soap, and an excess of free fatty acid.

The preferred method of forming the active agent is by mixing a surface active polyamine, e.g., ethylene diamine, propylene diamine, diethylene triamine, &c., with an excess of fatty acid containing not less than eight and not more than twenty carbon atoms to the molecule suitably at an elevated temperature to form a soap, subjecting part of this soap to further heat treatment to drive off the water and to form a soap of an acylamidoamine, then cooling the product and mixing with the remainder of the original soap. In another embodiment the polyamine is first reacted with weak acidic substance such as CO<sub>2</sub> or SO<sub>2</sub> and the resulting product is reacted with a higher fatty acid and heated to expel the CO<sub>2</sub> or SO<sub>2</sub> and form a soap. Small quantities of the treating material are used, e.g., 0.2 to 2.5 parts to 100 parts of bituminous material.

The inventors state that when a treating agent is added to bituminous compounds as described, a number of advantages accrue. The bituminous material then acquires the property of completely coating wet or dry aggregate. Permanent adhesion is obtained under all traffic conditions and stability, ductility and aging qualities are much improved.

The invention is illustrated by 5 examples, and there are 17 claims.

No. 3,368 of March 4, 1946, (Date applied for under Sec. 48 of the Ordinance, February 14, 1945).

American Cyanamid Company.

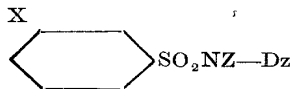

"Improvements in or relating to the production of metanilamidodiazines and intermediates thereof".

Abstract.—The inventors state that whereas sulfonamides such as sulfadiazine, sulfaguanidine, &c., have remarkable bacteriostatic and bacteriocidal properties, they have little effect on protozoan diseases, such as malaria, filariasis, &c. They state that compounds of their invention having the formula where Dz is a substituted or unsubstituted diazine radical, and Z is hydrogen or an alkyl radical or a cationic salt-forming radical are very effective both prophylactically and curatively against protozoal organisms which cause avian malaria.

In accordance with the invention, the above compounds are prepared by treating an intermediate compound having the formula wherein X is any group convertible to an amino group, by converting X to NH<sub>2</sub>. The intermediate compounds also lie within the scope of the invention since it has been found that these can be converted in the body into those having a free amino group.

In accordance with a modified procedure the compounds are prepared by reacting a compound having the formula with a compound having the formula wherein A is any radical reactable with the sulphonamido group, to effect elimination of the HA.

The invention is illustrated by 74 examples and there are 17 claims.
