The Industrial Disputes Act, No. 43 of 1950

THE report transmitted to me by the Authorized Officer to whom the industrial dispute, which had arisen between the Superintendent of Tillyrie Estate, Dickoya, and the Ceylon Workers' Congress, 213/2, Main Street, Colombo 11, was referred under section 3 (i) of the Industrial Disputes Act, No. 43 of 1950, for settlement by conciliation, is hereby published in terms of section 12 (6) of the said Act.

M. RAJANAYAGAM,
Commissioner of Labour.

Department of Labour,
Colombo 3, June 28, 1952.

The Report

By letter dated 23/26th November, 1951, I was appointed by the Commissioner of Labour, under section 3 (i) of the Industrial Disputes Act, No. 43 of 1950, to take such steps as I considered necessary for the settlement by conciliation of the dispute which had arisen between the Superintendent of Tillyrie Estate, Dickoya, and the Ceylon Workers' Congress over (a) the refusal of the Superintendent of Tillyrie Estate, Dickoya, to give work to a worker named Gurusamy, and (b) the non-recognition of the Ceylon Workers' Congress by the Superintendent of Tillyrie Estate, Dickoya.

I held my sittings at Hatton on 18th of January 1952, and at Colombo on 30th, 31st January and 1st February, 1952.

The Superintendent, Tillyrie Estate, was represented by Mr. F. C. W. Van Geyzel assisted by Proctor Livera, and the Ceylon Workers' Congress was represented by Mr. S. P. Amarasingam.

All efforts made by me to effect an agreed settlement of the dispute proved futile. At the first Conference I had at Hatton with the representatives of the two parties, I suggested that since it had been contended that the Tillyrie dispute had some bearing on a current labour dispute at Glencorse Estate, Avissawella, between the same parties they might consider both matters at the same time and arrive at a reasonable settlement. While the Ceylon Workers' Congress was agreeable to my suggestion the Management was categorical in its reply that even if they agreed to settle the Glencorse dispute, they were not prepared for any compromise on the Tillyrie issue. The self same attitude characterised the proprietor's communication to me dated 7th December, 1951, in response to my request that the Tillyrie dispute be discussed at an informal Conference with a view to arriving at an amicable settlement. In fact it was submitted on behalf of the Management that the action taken by the Commissioner of Labour in appointing an Authorized Officer under section 3 (i) of the Industrial Disputes Act for the purpose of effecting a settlement by conciliation was not correct on the grounds that (1) no inquiry had been held by him to ascertain whether the dispute was likely to be settled by conciliation, and (2) if an inquiry had been held the conclusion would have been reached that the dispute had passed the stage of conciliation. In view of this submission I consider that a few comments are necessary. Section 3 of the Industrial Disputes Act provides that—

“Where any industrial dispute exists or is apprehended in any industry, and (a) arrangements for the settlement of disputes in that industry have not been made in pursuance of any agreement between organisations representative respectively of employers and workmen engaged in that industry; or (b) the dispute is not referred for settlement by means of any such arrangements which have been so made; or (c) there has been a failure to obtain a settlement of the dispute by means of any such arrangements which have been so made, then the Commissioner—

(i) if he is of opinion after inquiry made in that behalf that the dispute is likely to be settled by conciliation, may endeavour to settle such dispute by conciliation, or refer the dispute to an Authorized Officer for such settlement”.

In the matter of the present dispute, there is ample evidence to show that almost from the very start it was handled by the Commissioner. The Assistant Commissioner of Labour in charge of the District Labour Office at Hatton testified in his evidence that on receipt of a message from a Representative of the Ceylon Workers' Congress, that a Strike had been called on Tillyrie Estate, in pursuance of their dispute with the Management on two issues, namely (1) non-recognition of the Estate Committee, and (2) in sympathy with the strike on Glencorse Estate, Avissawella he contacted the Superintendent in order to explore possibilities of an amicable settlement and was very definitely told that with regard to the question of recognising the Union Committee the proprietor had told him not to recognize any Union on the estate and with regard to the other matter it was best to contact the proprietor himself. This was communicated to the Commissioner of Labour and from that time onwards the dispute was dealt with by him at Head Office level. Mr. William, the proprietor of Tillyrie Estate admitted that he attended a number of Conferences with the Commissioner and finally at his express request took back several labourers when the Strike was officially called off on the 15th of August, 1951. I shall explain more fully later in my report the circumstances leading to the present dispute but I want to show here that the objection regarding jurisdiction conferred by section 3 (i) of the Industrial Disputes Act is devoid of substance in that at the time the dispute was referred to an Authorized Officer for settlement by conciliation not only was the Commissioner of Labour fully conversant with the nature, background and circumstances in which the dispute arose but had every right to form the opinion that it was capable of such settlement. No dispute whether in the political or Industrial field, however complicated it may be, can be successfully tackled without faith in its ultimate settlement through tolerance and understanding and I would go further and say that no settlement has as permanent a character and as fruitful of industrial peace as one brought about by conciliation.

As I have already stated the two issues which were referred to me for settlement by conciliation were (1) non-employment of Gurusamy, and (2) non-recognition of the Ceylon Workers' Congress. I propose to deal with them together as they are to some extent interconnected in as much as it was contended by the Union that the refusal to give work to Gurusamy after the Strike was officially called off was an act of discrimination or victimisation. A Strike was declared on Tillyrie Estate without any notice to the Management on the 29th of January 1951, by the Ceylon Workers' Congress with two avowed objects: one, to bring pressure on the Proprietor of Tillyrie Estate to recognize their Estate Committee and to accept the usual method of redress of grievances as obtaining on estates which are members of the Ceylon Estates Employers' Federation and the other as a sympathetic weapon to coerce the employer into a settlement of a current labour dispute at Glencorse Estate, Avissawella. The Labour Office at Hatton was notified on the same day by the local representative of the Ceylon Workers' Congress that the Strike was in furtherance of these two demands. An Inspector of Labour telephoned the Superintendent immediately and conveyed to him the reasons for the Strike as stated by the Congress Representative. A couple of days later the Assistant Commissioner of Labour at Hatton called on the Superintendent and tried to effect a settlement on the two matters in dispute. The Superintendent told the Assistant Commissioner of Labour that it was best to discuss both matters with the Proprietor since in regard to the first matter he had been definitely instructed not to recognize any Trade Unions and as regards the Glencorse dispute he was not concerned at all. Thereafter the Commissioner of Labour dealt with the dispute at Head Office level and had a number of Conferences with the Proprietor. The Strike itself was a partial one. The number of labourers who went on Strike never averaged more than 50 per cent., although 90 per cent. of the total labour force at the commencement of the Strike were members of the Ceylon Workers' Congress. The number on Strike progressively decreased until at the time the Strike was officially called off, i.e. on the 15th of August, 1951, it had diminished to a little less than one-third of the original Labour Force. The Management kept work going by recruiting new labour to fill the places of the Strikers and by getting a number of Strikers to resume work through individual solicitations. There was also quite a number of Strikers who left the estate while the Strike was in progress. On the 28th of April 1951 the Superintendent served notice on the Strikers that their services would not be required as from the 31st May, 1951, and that they should vacate their lines and leave the estate by that date. This notice was replied to by a letter dated 19th May, 1951, sent to the Superintendent by the Strikers stating that the notices served on them, even if they were otherwise valid, would not legally terminate their employment or the right to be in occupation of any line room as they were already on Strike in furtherance of a Trade dispute as members of the Ceylon Workers' Congress. The Strike lagged on until, according to the Management it fizzled off and according to the Ceylon Workers' Congress it was officially called off on the 15th of August, 1951. As I have already mentioned, all the Strikers, approximately 60 of them who presented themselves for work after the 15th of August, 1951, were taken back except 13. Of these all except Gurusamy who was the leader of the Estate Committee of the Ceylon Workers' Congress chose to leave the Estate and secure employment elsewhere. Gurusamy was refused work when he asked for work but he continued to stay in the Estate line.

The reasons given by the Management for their refusal to give work to Gurusamy, apart from the question of their right to take a man or not to take a man or in other words "the right to hire and fire", were (1) that he was a bad worker, (2) that he was irregular in attendance, (3) that he induced slowing down of work, (4) that he was suspected of acts of sabotage during the Strike, and (5) that he was a disruptive influence on the estate.

With regard to the first charge it was stated by the Management that Gurusamy's contract work was bad but on investigations the Superintendent admitted that there was no occasion to get Gurusamy's contract completed on estate account as is usually done on estates when a labourer fails to complete his contract within a stipulated time. The Superintendent also stated that Gurusamy was warned several times for bad work but there is no record of any such warning in a Labour Diary or any such book maintained for the purpose. In a large estate employing over 500 labourers it seems inconceivable that the Superintendent should have kept only a mental note of all the warnings issued to his labourers.

With regard to the second charge of irregular attendance it was stated in evidence by the Superintendent that Gurusamy seldom turned up for his normal work after his contract work but when the Check Roll was checked I found that he had an outturn average of 21 days in the month. The average worked out in the case of another family came to 22. An average of 21 days work out of a possible 26 days in the month in addition to Contract work cannot reasonably be claimed as irregular attendance.

There was then the other charge of inducing workers to slow down. This charge too seems at best to have been only an impression. No evidence was led to show that Gurusamy actually exhorted the labourers to slow down on any day or that there was a shrinkage in the output of work as a result of such exhortation. In fact it was admitted by the Superintendent that Gurusamy was not successful in achieving that result and he explained it by saying that all the efforts made by Gurusamy were thwarted by his being segregated from the rest of the labourers and given work separately. It seems difficult to believe that the remedy applied by the Superintendent could achieve the desired result as a Union leader has ample opportunities of talking to the labourers outside working hours for the purpose of inducing them into any course of action so that if as admitted by the Superintendent there was no slowing down as such the inference would be that either the labourers refused to conform to the exhortation of their leader or that Gurusamy was not guilty of the charge of inducing them to slow down. As I have already pointed out, it does not seem to be a convincing reason that segregation of Gurusamy in the working field could have had the effect of making his efforts futile. In any case, I would have expected the Superintendent to have taken direct action if he had been able to pin Gurusamy down on this charge. In this context the contention on behalf of the Union that shortly after the Superintendent was notified of the election of an Estate Committee with Gurusamy as its leader his contract work was stopped and was segregated in the field, would appear to have some force.

These three charges of bad work, irregular attendance and inducing labourers to slow down, relate to alleged faults of Gurusamy prior to the Strike. There is no evidence to show that at any time during his career on the estate an inquiry was held in order to give him an opportunity to meet the charges. In my opinion, it is not too much to expect an employer to observe the principles of natural justice in giving a hearing to an employee on any charge levelled against him before a punishment is inflicted. In this case, apart from the fact that no opportunity had been given to Gurusamy to explain these charges, the Superintendent had not considered it necessary to dismiss him on any or all of the charges and it has therefore to be assumed that these faults as far as Gurusamy was concerned, if they did exist, had been condoned by the Superintendent and cannot therefore in all fairness be brought up against him at this stage.

The fourth and fifth charges against Gurusamy namely that he was suspected of acts of sabotage and that he was a disruptive influence relate to his conduct during the Strike. It was mentioned both by the Superintendent and the Proprietor in evidence that pipe lines were cut and the water supply on the estate was interfered with. The Police made inquiries but were unable to place the blame on any particular person or party. Acts of this nature are most reprehensible and I have no hesitation in condemning such action as totally unworthy of any worker, especially so if he is a member of a Trade Union. In this case, however, since the Police were unable to find any incriminating evidence against Gurusamy it is not fair to hold it against him. The charge itself was worded "suspected of acts of sabotage". Surely no man should be penalized on mere suspicion according to the most elementary principles of justice.

When Mr. William was asked as to why he considered that Gurusamy was a "disruptive influence" on the estate he mentioned that during the Strike Gurusamy was seen distributing a leaflet. I have carefully examined this leaflet which appears to have been issued by the Yatiyantota Office of the Ceylon Workers' Congress with regard to matters in dispute on Glencorse, Penrith and Tillyrie Estates. The leaflet refers to conditions of employment which exist under the present Managements as having deteriorated from the conditions which obtained during the time they were owned by European Companies and reminds the workers that they cannot obtain any human or Trade Union rights without unity, sacrifice or struggle. I can see nothing disruptive in the distribution of a leaflet of this nature which is legitimate Trade Union activity while engaged in a struggle for the recognition of certain Trade Union demands. Of all the reasons given by the Management for refusing work to Gurusamy this appears to be the most significant. It is necessary at this stage to refer to the Management's attitude towards Trade Unionism. The Superintendent stated quite plainly that it was unnecessary to have a Union and that if the workers had any grievance they could speak to him direct and have it redressed. Mr. William stated that his objection to Trade Unionism as it is practised in Ceylon and as he finds it existing is the danger to life and property which arises from inter-Union rivalry and from the fact that Trade Unions are made instruments of political agitation. On Tillyrie Estate, Mr. William made it clear that there was a real danger to life and property. Earlier when A. C. L. Hatton attempted to negotiate on this dispute Mr. William was reported to have said that he would not tolerate any Union, not even a Union sponsored by the U.N.P. It is difficult to understand this kind of attitude towards Trade Unionism in the light of modern trends in Industrial relations and social progress. In Ceylon we have a Trade Union's Ordinance which provides for the machinery for registration of a Union prescribing certain minimum requirements and giving them protection against action for damages or losses incurred through Trade Union action and provides for certain contingencies in which their registration can be cancelled. In the course of my investigation it was argued with considerable emphasis, on behalf of the Management that since in this country recognition of Trade Unions is not required by statute no pressure of any kind should be brought to bear on an employer to afford recognition. It is not necessary here to recount the struggle between labour and capital in the different parts of the world. It will be sufficient if I mention that the outcome of that long and continued struggle was that Industrial workers acquired two fundamental rights, namely (1) the right to organize themselves to protect their interests without molestation or victimisation by the employer, and (2) the right to resort to Strike as a means for enforcing their demands. I consider that it is essential for Industrial Relations that an individual worker must be so placed that the security of his service will not depend on the arbitrary will of his employer, that Industrial Peace should be maintained and that Industry should be efficiently managed. Refusal to recognise a Trade Union is therefore a refusal to accept the fundamentals of Industrial Relations. Our own Trade Unions Ordinance and the Industrial Disputes Act will have little meaning if we do not accept the fundamental principles of Industrial Relations. In England the period since the National Strike of 1926 is clearly recognized as one of comparative peace in industry in that there was a marked absence of Strikes or lock-outs. This is due to an increasing recognition of Trade Unionism and the acceptance of the principles and obligations of collective bargaining. It is due to an extensive development of machinery for negotiation, conciliation and arbitration and to the readiness of employers and Unions to use that machinery. Employers have not merely accepted the position that Trade Unions are inevitable but have begun to appreciate the value to themselves as well as the community of the proper organisation of labour. In this country all Estates which belong to the Ceylon Estates Employers' Federation recognize and deal with registered Trade Unions on the basis of majority representation. The Trade Union with the largest membership on these estates is the Ceylon Workers' Congress and I have no reason to think that the relationship between these two parties on both sides of Industry have, generally speaking, been anything but harmonious. In fact towards the end of last year the Ceylon Estates Employers' Federation and the Ceylon Workers' Congress signed an agreement which is undoubtedly a land-mark in Employer-Employee relations, setting out procedure for the settlement of industrial disputes which may arise between them. It will therefore be seen that from the experience of events in this country as well as from outside it is of fundamental importance to recognize Trade Unions on the principle of majority representation not merely for the efficient management of Industry but in the interests of Industrial peace and social justice.

The Proprietor's assertion that on Tillyrie Estate recognition of the Ceylon Workers' Congress would have spelt danger to life and property was unreal and imaginary as there was no other Union to which any section of the labour force owed allegiance or loyalty. At the time the Strike commenced ninety per cent. of the labourers were members of the Ceylon Workers' Congress and the Superintendent himself admitted in his evidence that no other Union had written to him or approached him on behalf of any labourer. The A.C.L. Hatton testified that he was not aware of any inter-Union rivalry either on this estate or anywhere in the area and that the Ceylon Workers' Congress held an unrivalled position in the matter of membership throughout his District. There was also no evidence to show that the Tillyrie issue was politically inspired or that it had a political flavour about it.

The District Representative of the Ceylon Workers' Congress wrote to the Superintendent on August 11, 1949, requesting permission to hold a meeting on August 29, 1949, for the purpose of electing an Estate Committee and the Superintendent replied to say that permission could not be granted for the holding of a meeting on the 29th. The Union therefore wrote again on October 28, 1949, and requested the Superintendent to grant them permission to hold a meeting on the estate on any date convenient to him to which the Superintendent replied that the Proprietor had definitely instructed him not to permit any Union meeting. Thereafter the Union held a meeting outside the estate and notified the Superintendent by their letter dated January 26, 1950, the personnel of the Committee so elected. In the same letter they referred to a complaint by some workers that the Superintendent had refused even to look at the Minutes Book and at the same time informed him that as far as the labourers were concerned they had advised them to co-operate fully with the Management. The Union had occasion to write again on March 2, 1950, to the Superintendent enquiring why Gurusamy's contract work was stopped without notice. There was apparently no reply to this and they addressed a letter to A. C. L. Hatton, on March 23, 1950, requesting him to try and arrange a Conference to discuss the question of refusal to recognise the Estate Committee. This too was unsuccessful and on August 17, 1950, Mr. Aziz sent a personal letter to Mr. William stating that in consequence of the Superintendent's refusal to recognise the Estate Committee there was a growing sense of discontent and dissatisfaction among the labourers and that unless something was done the District Committee of the Ceylon Workers' Congress would have no alternative but to recommend to the Central Executive some form of direct action. Mr. William had no recollection of having received this letter but Mr. Aziz testified on oath that he had written this letter and produced a copy of it. After this there appears to have been no direct dealings between the Union or the Estate Committee and the Management until the declaration of the strike on January 29, 1951. It was common ground that the dispute on Glencorse Estate against the same proprietor was an additional motivation for strike action. The question as to whether the strike weapon should be employed in sympathy with demands of other workers in trade or industry is a matter for consideration. In England they have the Trade Disputes Act which provides for such contingencies. It is considered legal and in furtherance of a trade dispute for workers who consider their own interests threatened to call a strike against their own employer and to force him observe standard or recognised terms and conditions or to employ Union labour. Similarly where there is a trade dispute between an employer and his own workmen the fact that other workmen who have no quarrel with their own employer and no direct quarrel with the other employer may join in the dispute in sympathy would not alter the character of the strike. In Ceylon no such statutory protection is available but I do not see why the principle should not apply here, in all equity. Refusal to recognise a trade union and refusal to reinstate a worker whose contract of service has been lawfully terminated as in the case of Gurusamy are all legal rights but the question is not so much one of legality as of equity.

I expect the Management even at this stage, in the interests of peaceful industrial relations to allow the Ceylon Workers' Congress to hold a meeting and elect a new Estate Committee and to recognise and deal with it in the same way as is done on estates which are members of the Ceylon Estates Employers' Federation.

With regard to Gurusamy I feel that in all justice he should be reinstated with compensation for the loss of work since the termination of the strike but considering the fact that a contract of service between master and servant is so essentially of a personal and confidential character, the specific enforcement of which cannot be made against an unwilling party with hopes of ultimate and real success especially as a good deal of animosity has now crept in, any suggestion for reinstatement would not be expedient in this case. I do hope however that the Management would at least consider the payment of 6 months' wages to Gurusamy and that the Union for their part would remove him from the estate in the hope of better understanding and better relationship.
