New houses for estate workers, uplift of living standard essential - President, PM

President Gotabaya Rajapaksa and Prime Minister Mahinda Rajapaksa have pointed out the need to build houses for low income earners and plantation sector workers in keeping with accepted living standards.

Speaking at a discussion with relevant stakeholders at the Presidential Secretariat yesterday, the President pointed out that what should happen is that living standards of the environment that these individuals live in must be uplifted. He pointed out that by assigning the design of the houses to the State Engineering Corporation, the standard and quality of construction can be maintained.

The President and the Premier were briefed about the Indian funded project which envisioned the construction of 4,000 houses for plantation workers initiated in 2016. They were told that only 669 houses have been constructed thus far and due to practical problems with the infrastructure, construction has been further delayed. TO PAGE 02

Kandy house collapse: Owner Lewke remanded

AESLA KURULUWANSHA

Former Basnayake Nilame Anura Lewke, the owner of the five-storey building on Sangamitta Mawatha in Buwelikada in Kandy which collapsed killing a family was arrested by the Kandy Police yesterday. He was remanded till October 13 after being produced in court.

Police have filed a case against the suspect on charges of causing the death of three persons due to negligence and carelessness, whilst causing damage to several houses.

Kandy SSP Sudath Masinghe said that despite the approval given for the construction of only three floors, the owner of the house had gone beyond the approved plans and built a five-storey building.

He added that the existing foundations revealed that the five-storey

School uniforms from January instead of vouchers

ISHARA MUDUGAMUWA

The government has taken measures to provide locally manufactured school uniform material instead of vouchers, Cabinet Spokesman Mass Media Minister Keheliya Rambukwella said.

Speaking at the cabinet media briefing held yesterday at the Government Information Department, Minister Rambukwella said Cabinet approval was granted in June this year to provide school uniform materials from local manufactures and the relevant procurement process has been initiated accordingly. But only local textile manufactures have submitted bids and they have already produced 40 percent of the total school uniform material requirement. It has been confirmed that they will be able to produce the total requirement by January 2021. Considering the facts presented by Education Minister Prof G.L.Peiris on providing school uniform materials, the Cabinet of Ministers approved the proposal presented by him to take necessary measures to purchase the total school uniform materials from local manufactures and to provide them to school children instead of vouchers.

Akram Riskan, who was five years old when the Tsunami washed over the shores has returned home to his family after 16 years, his mother Sitti Kamaliya Abusalih a resident of Malihaikadu said.

Speaking of the tragedy that befall this small family, Akram Riskan's mother Sitti Kamaliya said that on the fateful day when the Tsunami struck she had been with her only child, a toddler at the time Akram.

While she managed to survive she could not hold on to Akram and hence abandoned him in her struggle to get away.

to believe that he would have somehow survived. It was this faith that has led him to me today." She told reporters yesterday that she was informed that her son had been taken away from the hospital by a Sinhalese family and it was this fact that gave her hope that her son would be found alive.

The mother said that although she continued her search she received very little support from the police and the human rights commission.

It was only in 2016 that she received credible information that her son was in fact alive and well. She was told that her son was spotted at a school in Colombo, however her attempts to find her proved futile when she was barred from seeing him by school authorities.

She later contacted him and although he only speaks Sinhalese now, she was able to tell him of his upbringing and also of birthmarks that she was aware of. The boy speaking to reporters said that he was confident that he was reunited with his mother and was happy to this, he said. He also added that if intelligence information had not been provided by a foreign agency, the bombings could have taken place even without the knowledge of the SIS and added that the SIS had never informed its position, conclusion and action to be taken in that regard.

Jayasundara said the SIS had not been able to verify the direct links between Zahran Hashim and the Islamic State (IS) until it received foreign intelligence. However, when the

The only local politician whose name has been mentioned in this letter is Rahman, the lawyer said and accordingly questioned whether the Parliamentarian agreed he was aware of the attack.

In reply, Rahman said he does not agree with this statement and what the Washington Post has published is false.

In further questioning, the President's Counsel asked the MP whether he was aware as to who wanted to launch an attack of this nature. "The Muslims in this country do not have a need to launch suicide attacks.What Zahran did was to fulfill the need of someone else."

The MP was a little emotional in answering further and said "The Muslim community got nothing with this attacks. The only result was that they were cornered from society.

Even my child did not go to school for two weeks after the attack. He studied in a Sinhala medium school and later I had to admit him to another one due to this situation,' Rahman said.

In response to a question by the Chairman Judge of the Commission, Rahman said the Muslim

The Military Police Corps provides police duties and garrison police duties to assigned Army camps. In addition, they maintain information and charge rooms at major Army bases. They are empowered to arrest offenders and prepare evidence for due punishment. In 1978, the SLCMP relocated to their Headquarters at Elivitigala Mawatha, Narahenpita. As the Army enlisted women and formed the Women's Corps, the Military Police set up its women's provost

One of the important military routines of the red caps originates from the old tradition of the British Army, namely, the guard mounting at the President's House. However, in the recent past this ceremonial duty has been shared with the Navy and Air Force. The guard mounting at Buckingham Palace dates back to 1660. The men of the famous Queen's Guards continue to draw thousands of visitors to watch their precision drill. These officers are clad in bearskin hats and red tunics and get their orders from the Field Officer in Brigade Waiting. The members of the guard perform their annual parade, known as the

The men wear the red tunic and blue trousers on state occasions and officers wear their 'ceremonial blues' with 'MP' embossed in gold on a red background, worn on the arm. The uniform is divided into two sections, the President's Scarlet and General's Scarlet. The President's Scarlet is indicated by the gold colour shoulder mail, while the General's Scarlet uniform consists of silver colour shoulder mail. The latter uniform is worn for Army ceremonies where the Army Commander or a senior general is present. The Presidents Scarlet uniform is always seen at the annual Independence Day parades.

The guards are often seen riding in 'arrow head' formation escorting the President's convoy. The pilot vehicle is a red jeep where a Captain sits with four other soldiers, followed by two red cars and a formation of 10 motorcycles. The SLCMP motorcycles have evolved over the past seven decades. In the early days, they used the Tramp 100, Honda CB 750, Royal Enfield 350 and the Yamaha 250. The Royal Enfield is a trustworthy bike and remains the most loved motorbike within the corps, and it is a coveted

Guard mounting at the President's House is another key duty of the guardsmen. The President's Guard was formed in 1979. This duty is no easy task as one has to stand still like a statue for 45 minutes, remaining at a rigid posture, holding a .303 rifle with fixed bayonet. It is a skill that requires training and a passion for duty. Perhaps it is the ultimate display of military discipline.

The guard change is done with the sergeant and two others marching to relieve the guard on duty and that guard in turn joins the others to march back to his well-earned rest. It is a beautiful display of precision timing and teamwork.

The SLCMP also performs the flag hoisting ceremony at various state events, and engages in a routine at the Galle Face Green, which again has been duly shared among the Navy and Air Force. In this routine, three soldiers march and mount the steps, hoist the national flag and dismount. The flag is raised at 6.00 am and later taken down at 6.00 pm against the backdrop of a beautiful sunset. The Military Police carries out its duty with professional perfection. The red caps also engage in traffic control duties at all important Army functions. Apart from this, the men and women of the SLCMP have actively engaged in sports and excelled in pistol shooting winning many awards. The Military Police will continue to enhance its role in the Army and enrich the ceremonial grandeur of military drills and parades.

Army begins leadership training for graduates

MANOHARI KATUGAMPALA

Leadership is not easy. It requires a great deal of commitment, hard work, patience and selfless sacrifice. In line with the 'Saubhagayaye Dekma' (Vistas of Prosperity and Splendour) policy initiated by President Gotabaya Rajapaksa, the recruitment of 50,000 graduates to the public sector got underway recently.

Under this project, the government of Sri Lanka has designed a comprehensive training programme for these graduates before they begin their career in the government service.

The complete course which consists of five phases commenced its first phase on September 14 in 51 island-wide Army establishments. A productive public service needs a human resource which is fine-tuned to meet present-day needs through training, performance appraisal and motivation.

Due to lack of leadership skills, team spirit, managerial skills, commitment, interest, flexibility, respect for society and an understanding of the objectives of government functions, the services offered by the public sector has been identified as inef-

Capacity development of the public service requires general and institution-specific training of all segments in the public sector. Therefore, a new methodology was needed to overcome all these challenges to achieve the full potential of the public sector to strengthen the government service. So the government has decided to design a training programme to enhance the knowledge, skills and motivation of the recruited graduates to ensure their effective contribution to the nation as a trained and energetic workforce.

This leadership training programme for graduates will be coordinated, monitored and administered by the Sri Lanka Army with the direct supervision and guidance of the Chief of Defence Staff and Army Commander Lieutenant General Shavendra Silva. The Army Headquarters will monitor the entire programme in coordination with the Directorate of Training.

The three-week training module has been structured under five different stages and five conceptual areas, namely, leadership and team building training, training conducted in the private sector, training conducted in state institutions and conducting project work and field studies.

The highest concern has been given to the improvement of ideational factors and to inculcate national and personal values. All these are areas will ensure the quality of the workforce and their motivation to excel in their jobs.

Further, conceptual knowledge on leadership and management will be disseminated through well-structured and logical modules to improve the confidence and competence of the participants. In addition, an opportunity has been given to the participants to engage in the project work and field studies to improve their skills by identifying issues and possible solutions in relevant fields. This programme will be conducted in five different but interrelated modules including lectures, discussions, outdoor training activities, team building activities, study tours, capability studies and field studies.

One of three women in Sri Lanka faces unplanned pregnancies -unfpa

One in three Sri Lankan women faces unplanned pregnancies on average. An estimated 217 million women across the world do not have access to information and services related to their sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights.

The National Family Planning Day falls September 26 coinciding with the World Contraception Day. The Health Promotion Bureau held a press conference and media seminar under the topic 'A Happy Family with Optimal Birth Spacing' on September 25 with the participation of the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) and the World Health Organization (WHO) alongside various branches of the Health Ministry and civil society organizations to mark the events.

The conversation spanned around empowering individuals and couples to plan whether and when to have children, which enables their families, particularly women and girls, to reach their full potential. Speakers touched on important topics such as subfertility, the need to invest in rights-based family planning, improving comprehensive sexuality education, and reducing unsafe abortions.

Although family planning services are often seen as a taboo topic surrounded by myths and misconceptions, they are offered to give individuals and couples the power of choice; to achieve optimal spacing between pregnancies according to their physical, mental and financial wellbeing.

According to the Demographic and Health Survey (2016), 35 per cent of married women in Sri Lanka do not use contraception

Teenage pregnancies are at a rate of 4.6 per cent with subnational disparities of 5-8 per cent. As a result, it is estimated that 650 unsafe abortions take place daily in Sri Lanka, with no recent evidence of a decline, and 80 per cent are estimated to be accessed by married women above the age of 30. The lack of recent up to date data indicates that despite legal restrictions, unsafe abortions continue to risk the lives of many women and girls.

Family planning can change this situation by providing women and girls choices for their future.

The Health Maternal and

The Health Maternal and Child Health Director at the Family Health Bureau, Dr. Chitramalee de Silva stated that it is crucial to concentrate efforts on providing voluntary family planning services while ensuring curbing unsafe abortions, stillbirths and maternal mortality".

United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) Representative in Sri Lanka Ritsu Nacken stated that access to safe, voluntary family planning and contraception is a human right that is vital to achieve gender equality and elevate millions of women and girls from poverty.

He said that especially during emergencies such as the COVID19 pandemic, access to family planning has to be maintained as essential services.

Colombage resets regional understanding

DINESH PERERA

Foreign Secretary Jayanath Colombage called on regional countries to recognise the democratic mandate received by the Government. He noted that the terminology and framework that foreign agents speak about Sri Lanka was wrong.

"Why people call this the Rajapaksa Government is not correct. Our President is Gotabaya Rajapaksa and our Prime Minister is Mahinda Rajapaksa, but this is not a Rajapaksa Government. This is the Government of Sri Lanka, which was elected in a free and fair election with a 2/3 majority. Many people felt it was impossible," he said. Colombage was speaking at the Institute of South Asian Studies at the National University of Singapore on September 28.

He noted the value of regional collaboration and understanding. He said, "We need to understand ourselves better because our objectives may be common."

Colombage referring to the 30-year civil war said, "In 2009, Sri Lanka became the only country in the world to defeat that kind of terrorism. I would argue that there had been no terrorist organisation like the LTTE. They had mastered the money laundering, terrorist financ-gun-running, ing. human smuggling.

"They exploited the freedom given to them by the foreign capitals to do all that, including some of our South East Asian countries knowing or not knowing. That was how the war dragged on," he said.

Panadura Group Corr.

Panadura Magistrate's Court Record Keeper Priyadarshane Lamahewa, who was interdicted by the Attorney General's Department over the alleged theft of court productions (jewellery) worth Rs. 32 lakhs, was produced before court yesterday.

The case was postponed for October 13.

A few years ago, when the Panadura Chief Magistrate called theft and robbery cases for trial, case productions were not produced before court from the Court Record Room. The Chief Magistrate directed the Court Registrar to conduct a preliminary investigation and lodge a complaint at the Panadura South Police. The Police searched the record room and found that productions of 132 cases pending for trial had gone missing Upon interrogation of the Record Room Keeper, she confessed to the crime.

She admitted that she was responsible for the theft and confessed that she pawned them at jewellery shops in Moratuwa and obtained money. She handed over the receipts as well. Police also found more receipts when they searched her house. Missing gold articles were recovered from these shops in Moratuwa.

The accused has pleaded not guilty to the indictments. She was bailed out by the High Court Judge and the case will be called before Court on October 13.

he latest move in the battle against the drug mafia, no doubt, is going to stir a hornets nest that will eventually lead to the unraveling of hitherto hidden details of the whole network of the narcotics business in this country and also shed light on the leading role played by certain individuals masqueraded as respectable members of society and the commercial world, as collaborators in the entire operation. According to the main story of a vernacular publication yesterday legal action is to be taken against certain bank officials for permitting hundreds of millions of rupees to be moved around and transacted from bank accounts under their supervision which amounts to aiding and abetting to launder what is now revealed to be drug money.

The newspaper quoted Major Gen (Ret.) Kamal Gunaratne as having said that they have uncovered bank accounts through which sums totaling Rs.480 million had been moved around during the past two years and that the branch managers of the banks concerned will be held responsible for permitting these transactions without scrutiny.

He said, following the revelation of information that billions of rupees of black money earned from the narcotics business had been stashed away in banks it has been decided to summon all heads of banking institutions and top officials for a briefing at the Defence Ministry without delay. The Defence Secretary also said he had advised bank officials not sully the good name of their banking institutions through such acts. He had already sounded a warning to officials of a private bank in which the largest amount of such accounts had been maintained.

Major General Gunaratne had noted that while an ordinary individual had to answer a myriad of questions when depositing even a mere Rs.200,000 in a bank as to the source of the money, drug money running into billions of rupees are accepted without demur by the banks. How come?

This is exactly the point we ,in this column, had been raising right throughout. In our editorial of September 5 titled Throwing the Dragnet Far and Wide, this is what we had to say; "In all probability we are here only seeing the proverbial tip of the iceberg. Given the extent and magnitude of the involvement of law enforcement officers (with two employees of the Government Analyst's Department too in the net) there is no knowing how far and wide the operation has spread. If so, eradication will be sometime in coming".

Following the revelation that the key figures of the drugs underworld arrested had maintained 102 bank accounts, where Rs. 2600 million worth of transactions had been carried out we also said;" One is compelled to ask how the banks accepted such large sums without asking questions. Here we have a scenario where a cumulative Rs.2800 million not only being deposited (laundered actually) with the banks but also being freely moved around.

Not just banks. The circle of those involved runs wider. It was also revealed that the suspects had purchased 900 perches of land worth Rs. 4000 million together with other prime assets and 26 motor vehicles including luxury brands. How were all these vehicles registered ?No questions had apparently being asked on the source of wealth and the Department of Inland Revenue too had apparently been bypassed. How did the 900 perches of land purchased by the underworld gangs pass muster without any questions by the Land Registry? These transactions could not have taken place overnight but over a long period of time.

With the Defence Secretary's move, now, to bring all banks under scrutiny are the authorities heading in the right direction in getting at the heart of the matter reaching to the core of the whole operation? Perhaps an inspection into the assets of the bank managers in question could shed light on how deep the involvement had been of certain white collar personal in the banking sector who had been posing off as respectable, squeaky clean, individuals who are above board. Ditto for others in the Land Registry, the Inland Revenue Department and Motor Traffic Registration. The tentacles of the Octopus, for all intents and purposes, had spread to the most unexpected reaches .Nothing short of all out surgery is going to suffice if we are to conquer this spectre.

The unrelenting war waged against the underworld and narcotics trade by President Gotabaya Rajapaksa is certainly paying dividends with almost daily arrests of key figures of the underworld and the collapse of drug empires. From all that is apparent, no effort is being spared in hunting down the big names in the drugs business and the underworld. It was also a wise move to get the STF in the forefront of the battle against the drugs underworld.

The drugs trade in the country, as elsewhere, has grown into a hydra-headed monster where all agencies suspected of collusion would have to be neutralised if we are to see an end to the problem. We repeatthrow the dragnet far and wide - nevermind who gets hurt in the process - are we bound to hit on a viable solution before long.

EMPHASIS ON NEUTRAL FOREIGN POLICY

India - Sri Lanka

he geopolitical realities surrounding Sri Lanka have always played a major part in shaping the country's political, economic and development

Right decisions at the right time and strategic communication help the country to hold its head high in international fora and circumvent unnecessary troubles posed by thinly veiled power struggles of global powers.

The foreign policy matters to depict the country in a good light, and that image determines how international players perceive and react to our domestic matters as well as external matters that affect the region.

Last week's two crucial international dialogues, namely the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) session and the Bilateral Summit with India, shed light into some vital aspects of the country's foreign policy under the Government led by President Gotabaya Rajapaksa.

Both the meetings were held online as the highly contagious COVID-19 virus was still ravaging many parts of the world crossing the mark of one million fatalities and 33 million infections as at International relations in the pandemic-stricken world are not the same as before with many countries turning their focus inwards to fight against the spread of the Virus while trying to reduce economic distress.

It is against this backdrop that the 75th session of the UNGA themed "The future we want, the United Nations we need: reaffirming our collective commitment to multilateralism - confronting COVID-19 through effective multilateral action" has begun at the UN Headquarters in New York,in a virtual format, with very limited presence in the build-

"UN we need"

President Rajapaksa, joining in the UNGA meeting for the first time since his election, delivered two pre-recorded statements last week with a deliberate stress on his take on "the UN we need", observing that the UN's responsibility is to assist democratically elected governments.

"At a time when the world is facing a common and an unrivalled threat, the 'UN we need', I am certain, will place due emphasis on the sovereign equality of States, respect for territorial integrity and non-interference in their domestic affairs. I firmly believe that partnerships fostered between Member States and the UN continues at their best when no country is held hostage to the interests of a few," the President told the UNGA high-level meeting.

In a convincing speech at the General Debate that followed the high-level meeting, the President said, "In order to ensure the sustainability and the credibility of the UN Organization, political witchhunts through questionable motives against Member States, need to be halted. Democratically elected governments of nations understand the pulse and needs of their people the best. It is the responsibility of the UN to assist and support processes of such elected Governments to bring about sustainable solutions for needs of their people".

As the President expressed the above comments, the 45th session of the United Nations Human Rights Council (UNHRC) was in progress in Geneva. It has been the Government's view that Sri Lanka has been unfairly targeted at this UN body following the end of war against the LTTE.

In March this year, the incumbent Government withdrew from the UNHRC Resolution adopted in 2015 while committing to a domestic process to reach home grown solutions to its internal problems. In a fresh development, UN High Commissioner for Human Rights

Maintaining neutrality

At a time global powers like the United States, China and India have shown heightened interest in Sri Lanka apparently in pursuit of their self-interests, the President also used the UNGA forum to re-iterate the country's adherence to the non-aligned foreign policy. It is no secret that Sri Lanka has found itself in an intricate position due to growing power politics of the above players.

"Sri Lanka is committed to follow a neutral foreign policy with no affiliations to any particular country or power bloc. As a strategically placed country in the Indian Ocean, it is our priority to ensure that the Indian Ocean is maintained as a zone of peace where no country could gain advantage over any other. Moreover, Indian Ocean has many international sea lanes that are economically important to a large number of nations and therefore, should remain accessible to global trade and com-

> The President also emphasised the need for debt relief and financial stimulus for developing countries in the wake of the global pandemic.

While many developed countries have terribly failed in safeguarding their people from the deadly virus, Sri Lanka can be pleased over its success in keeping COVID-19 at bay and resuming day-today activities under 'new normal' health conditions. This was an achievement Sri Lanka proudly presented at the recent sessions of the UNGA as well as the UNHRC.

Bilateral talks

In the meantime, economic and financial aspects came to the fore at the bilateral meeting between Prime Minister Mahinda Rajapaksa and his Indian counterpart Narendra Modi, which was held over the weekend using video technology.

During the meeting, Sri Lanka has requested a new currency swap facility worth about USD 1 billion and a deferment of debt repayment, in addition to USD 400 million currency swap facility agreed in July to assist pandemic recovery. There was no specific mentioning of the much debated joint venture proposal on the East Container Terminal at the Colombo Port, but the joined statement said "early realization of infrastructure and connectivity projects including in the sectors of Ports and Energy" was discussed. PM Rajapaksa and his counterpart Modi had also discussed the issue of Indian fishermen trespassing into Sri Lankan waters, and mutual cooperation to combat terrorism and drug trafficking among other things.

The joint statement of the two countries stated that Indian Premier Modi called on the Sri Lankan Government "to address the aspirations of the Tamil people for equality, justice, peace and respect within a united Sri Lanka by carrying forward the process of reconciliation with the implementation of the 13th Amendment to the Constitution (13A)".

It added that, "PM Rajapaksa expressed the confidence that Sri Lanka will work towards realizing the expectations of all ethnic groups including Tamils, by achieving reconciliation nurtured as per the mandate of the people of Sri Lanka and implementation of the Constitutional provisions". Here one may note that PM Rajapaksa had given a measured response without making a specific commitment on 13A.

This controversial piece of Amendment that introduced the Provincial Councils to the local administrative system in 1987 following the Indo-Lanka Accord between then Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and then President J.R. Jayewardene, has sparked a fresh debate in the country. The Government, keeping to its pre-Election promise, has already undertaken to draft a new Constitution and in this process, the Government said, it was revisiting the Clauses of 13A.

In the wake of recent developments, Indian High Commissioner Gopal Baglay met Opposition Leader Sajith Premadasa, the Tamil National Alliance (TNA) MPs, the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress (SLMC) MPs and Speaker Mahinda Yapa Abeywardena in separate meetings last month. It was reported that 13A and the proposed Constitutional changes featured in the

MAPPING THE SIZE AND SHAPE OF POST COVID ECONOMIC RECOVERY

was Amarthya Sen the prize winning economist who revealed after extensive research that famine is avoidable if there is good communications and information to and from the location of the famine prone region. He was talking about a different era.

It is hard to imagine a communications glitch of a high order causing a famine in these days of internet connectivity, wi-fi and all other technical wizardry of our digitized age. But that doesn't mean that despite this communications revolution that would have been hard to imagine a few decades ago that communities have been kept out of poverty, though mass starvation would have been averted except in the most dire circumstances, such as in war zones etc.

There is no starvation in this country, but the recent lockdowns etc caused economic convulsions that came close on the heels of a five year period in which the economy was essentially laid waste. But the challenges ahead are enor-

CONTRASTED

They are both in urban and rural settings. The relative economic inactivity that stems from the global downturn due to Covid will have far reaching repercussions that will seep into rural settings, as workers who have been laid off factory related employment etc. return to their villages.

But yet, the channels of communication that are open between communities can do wonders. While on the subject, it is moot as to why there is a dearth of digital payment acceptance in this country, contrasted to the African continent for instance.

In China it is difficult to pay anything other than with digital cash - but that's China, the second most powerful economy in the world. But African economies are a different story. But yet some of these business ecosystems have bypassed conventional systems and invested heavily on digital payment platforms.

The point to ponder is, how Sri Lanka could leverage the communications revolution to accelerate economic growth and activity in both urban and rural communities in this time of great economic angst brought on by the pandemic.

This is not the bathala (sweet potato) and manioc era of Sirimavo Bandaranaike. It can never be. Those methods of self reliance and local productivity Mrs.Bandaranaike advocated in the early seventies may have been well intentioned, but her project per se was by and large a disaster. With today's communications technology it is difficult to imagine that people in any setting, urban rural or megapolis, would be so insular. Make no mistake, there is nothing insular about growing bathala and manioc, but it was the top down nature of that command economy that made for a nightmare outcome of starvation, malnourishment and other maladies in many rural and urban communities during her 70s rule.

Today's accent on local production can be leveraged by digital payments and digital-connectivity marketing and product awareness, but so far the communities enjoying a new productivity lifestyle have not warmed up to any of these innovations substantially. It's not necessarily social media that has to be the conduit for greater product leveraging.

ABSORBED

There are other methods that can be encouraged on digital platforms. But digital payment facilities etc have been slow in terms of the evolution of new apps that enable such technologies. There is no point in every fisherman and farmer having a smart phone if all they are using it for is to download Hindi movie clips.

Young entrepreneurs in the digital realm have still not been absorbed into the new post Covid economic initiatives, because very often the private sector planners themselves are not exactly in a digital mindset.

They are good at creating campaigns, but in mustering the brainpower for leaps in digital-technologies, they have to be mavericks of sorts too, which they generally

While there have been considerable strides made in making use of hi-tech digital communications technologies in the public sector, these initiatives have been halfway measures in some state sector entities. There is for instance an excellent online licensing facility available through the RMV for vehicle owners but in contrast, those who want to register new Companies still face nightmarish roadblocks due to initial digitized initiatives ending up on the gravel roads of bureaucratic red tape, when the tasks of registering new

The New York city hit by the Corona virus.

The second part of the plan for a post Covid economic resurgence should be to be out of the gate early in terms of what's on offer next year in the global economy. Donald Trump the US President was making a stump speech the other day, and was heard to say that the next year is poised to be the greatest for the US economy. Most would say it's the bluster to be expected from a president whose presidency is on the line. But Trump's pronouncements on the economy have always been spot on, even though you could blame the man for many other things.

companies reach a certain end-

stage.

The bottom line is that the country is at a very primitive stage when it comes to digital payments, and this is partly due to the slow reaction of the rural start up

The fashionable urban innovators have created their own startup ecosystems, and they have been cash rich and good to go anyway, with or without great success in areas such as digital payment application innovation etc.

But this writer's hunch is that there are rural sector innovators who are rearing to go if a digital economy was created - but they find that there is no support and essentially nobody to fund their start ups.

The second part of the plan for a post Covid economic resurgence should be to be out of the gate early in terms of what's on offer next year in the global economy. Donald Trump the US President was making a stump speech the other day, and was heard to say that the next year is poised to be the greatest for the US economy. Most would say it's the bluster to be expected from a president whose presidency is on the line. But Trump's pronouncements on the economy have always been spot on, even though you could blame the man for many other things. There is reason to believe that he is right. If the Covid contagion tapers down at some time which it should because nothing lasts forever, there would be opportunities for growth at unprecedented levels. Economies would bounce back on the strength of a spurt of innovation perhaps, due to the fact that markets would be hungry and business would be obsessed with recovery.

REBOUND

Those who are ready to be out of the gate, would capitalise on the

In many countries, Covid has wreaked so much havoc that they are not in a state to make that kind of comeback but Sri Lanka has done well in facing the pandemic and could have a head start getting out of the gate and making quick gains on the rebound.

The private sector seems to be up to the task, because it's captains of industry don't seem to be worried about negative perceptions. There seem to be none as far as they are concerned and that's due to the energy with which the economy is back on the road.

The government has not stopped to moan, think and mull over. It's ready to start small, and start local, and start yesterday.

The private and public sector are both limping back to recovery, but the kind of chaos that the doomsayers predicted has not materialized.

Public sector salaries are being paid, when those such as Victor Ivan, the eternal Cassandra, predicted that they wouldn't be paid in the Covid aftermath. But paying pubic sector salaries is in and of itself an achievement in this post Covid situation. If Trump is right, the world economy would follow the US lead. The old order of doing business may change, because the traditionally rich economies are badly Covid hit. But in times of recovery, there will be other more vibrant and growing economies lining up to take up their place.

Debt of course is the other big issue that faces us. But, the system would probably not be able to go on globally unless some debt rationalization happens and the creditor countries and institutions are willing to give way and reschedule - nay completely reorder - debt repayment.

Things will change because they have to.

The rich will learn to coexist because it's a better option than having to co-perish.

Now there is text and there is subtext. It's the same with a photograph. There's the obvious and the subtle, things we 'get' immediately and things that we could miss. A text can speak to us differently at different times. It's the same with photographs, sculptures, music, dance, theatre, films etc.

What this means is that there are layers of meaning embedded in art. The 'reader' can always misread and this is why in a sense a work of art belongs as much to the artist as to those who 'receive' it.

So there's poetry in photographs and the 'reader' obtains it in the language of his/her persuasions, be it cultural, political, life-experience or some mix of these. What's 'apparent' is not necessarily what is there. There are backstories that don't get captioned or indeed cannot be framed.

Timran Keerthi, award-winning poet, relates a story that sheds light not on just a single photograph but on 'seeing' and 'seeing beyond' in a poem aptly titled 'Poto Eka (The Photo).' The Photo

nternational Translation Day is meant as an opportunity to pay tribute to the work of language professionals, who play an important role in bringing nations together, facilitating dialogue, understanding and cooperation, contributing to development and strengthening world peace and security.

Transposition of a literary or scientific work, including technical work, from one language into another language, professional translation, including translation proper, interpretation and terminology, is indispensable to preserving clarity, a positive climate and productiveness in international public discourse and interpersonal communication.

Thus, on May 24, 2017, the General Assembly adopted resolution 71/288 on the role of language professionals in connecting nations and fostering peace, understanding and development, and declared September 30 as International Translation Day. WHY SEPTEMBER 30?

September 30 celebrates the feast of St. Jerome, the Bible translator, who is considered the patron saint of translators.

St. Jerome was a priest from northeastern Italy who is known mostly for his endeavour of translating most of the Bible into Latin from the Greek manuscripts of the New Testament. He also translated parts of the Hebrew Gospel into Greek. He was of Illyrian ancestry and his native tongue was the Illyrian dialect. He learned Latin in school and was fluent in Greek and Hebrew, which he picked up from his studies and travels. Jerome died near Bethlehem on September 30, 420.

Since 2005, the United Nations annually invites all its staff, accredited permanent missions staff and students from select partner universities to compete in the UN St. Jerome Translation Contest, a contest which rewards the best translations in Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Russian, Spanish, as well as German, and aims to celebrate multilingualism and highlight the important role of translators and other language professionals in multilateral diplo-

A CORE VALUE OF THE UN

Languages, with their complex implications for identity, communication, social integration, education and development, are of strategic importance for people and the planet.

There is growing awareness that languages play a vital role in development, in ensuring cultural diversity and intercultural dialogue, but also in attaining quality education for all and strengthening cooperation, in building inclusive knowledge societies and preserving cultural heritage, and in mobilizing political will for applying the benefits of science and technology to sustainable development.

An essential factor in harmonious communication among peoples, multilingualism is also regarded by the United Nations General Assembly as a core value of the organization. By promoting tolerance, multilingualism ensures effective and increased participation of all in the UN's work, as well as greater effectiveness, better performance and improved

On May 24, 2017, the General Assembly adopted resolution 71/288 on the role of language professionals in connecting nations and fostering peace, understanding and development, and declared September 30 as International Translation Day.

The documents that the UN translates cover every topic on the United Nations agenda, including human rights, peace and security, and development.

TRANSLATION AT THE UN

The United Nations is one of the world's largest employers of language professionals. Several hundred language staff work in UN offices in New York, Geneva, Vienna and Nairobi, or at the United Nations regional commissions in Addis Ababa, Bangkok, Beirut, Geneva and Santiago. Translators are one type of language professionals employed at the UN.

UN language specialists include: Editorial and desktop publishing assistants;Editors;Interpreters;Pré cis-writers; Production editors and desktop publishers; Translators; Verbatim reporters

United Nations translators handle all kinds of documents, from statements by Member States to reports prepared by expert bodies. The documents they translate cover every topic on the United Nations agenda, including human rights, peace and security, and development. New issues arise every day. UN documents are issued simultaneously in the six official lan- guages of the Organ-

Spanish). Some core documents are also translated into German. This multilingual documentation is made possible by United Nations translators, whose job is to render clearly and accurately the content of original texts into their main language.

Besides linguistic features such as grammar, syntax, and lexis, each language has its unique cultural specifics and realia that make proper intercultural communication almost impossible without language spe-

Canada recognises PAFFREL and CMEV

The Canadian High Commission announced the recipients of Canada Fund for Local Initiatives (CFLI) including the People's Action for Free and Fair Elections, Centre for Investigative Reporting in Sri Lanka and the Sri Lanka Press Institute.

In a communique the High Commission noted that it had chosen the Ministry of Gender, Family and Social Services, Maldives, People's Action for Free and Fair Elections (PAFFREL), Environment Foundation Limited (EFL), Centre for Monitoring Election Violence (CMEV), Planeterra, Center for Investigative Reporting Sri Lanka (CIR), Sri Lanka Press Institute (SLPI), Northern Cooperative Development Bank (NCDB), and Zero Waste Maldives.

"The CFLI supports small-scale, high-impact projects conceived and designed predominantly by local partners in Sri Lanka and Maldives. This enables Canada to respond to local needs by working at the community level. Equally important, the CFLI serves to strengthen Canada's relationships with civil society and local communities," the communique said.

"This year, the CFLI's call for proposal focused on key thematic areas: Inclusive governance, Environment and climate action and Growth that works for everyone, including women's economic rights. Given the current pandemic, the CFLI programme was also able to respond to Covid-19 related proposals, including a contribution of CAD 100,000 in support of the Maldives Government's efforts in providing basic services to the homeless and the most vulnerable communities impacted by Covid-19

"In Sri Lanka, the CFLI has already supported CMEV and PAFFREL's contribution towards ensuring a creditable Parliamentary Election — free of violence and with the distribution of PPE to voters and observers at selected voting locations. From pandemic response, to election monitoring, to women's economic empowerment and climate action, we stand proud to work together with Sri Lankans and Maldivians to find solutions to issues that matter to them," the communiqué said.

Testing drive unveiled as virus deaths pass one million

GENEVA: Coronavirus tests that deliver results in 15-30 minutes are to be rolled out across the United States and in scores of poorer countries, as health authorities worldwide try to get a handle on a disease that has now killed more than a million people.

US President Donald Trump announced 150 million tests would be distributed in America, while the World Health Organization said 120 million more would be available for the developing world at $5 each as long as funding was secured.

The testing push comes as the virus shows no sign of receding, with infection numbers climbing rapidly in Europe again and governments there clamping down on movement in an attempt to curb the surge.

Paris, London and Madrid have all been forced to introduce controls to slow infections, and on Monday Dutch authorities became the latest to tighten curbs, while the Czech Republic and Slovakia said they were preparing to declare a state of emergency.

The WHO said its $600 million scheme to roll out the quick diagnosis kits across 133 countries in the next six months would enable low- and middle-income nations to close the gap in testing with the rich world.

The kits are far faster, cheaper and easier to administer than regular standard polymerase chain reaction (PCR) swab tests but are less sensitive and more likely to return false nega-

"This will enable the expansion of testing, particularly in hard-to-reach areas that do not have lab facilities or enough trained health workers to carry out PCR tests," WHO director-general Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus told a virtual press conference.

Experts have for months been calling for widespread adoption of this low-cost technology so that people can test themselves several times a week.

Harvard epidemiologist Michael Mina said the testing drive "is terrific and is a great

But the amount being distributed by the US government was "simply not sufficient" and production should be multiplied ten- or twentyfold, he added.

'Whatever is necessary'

The tests are part of a limited toolkit available to governments as they seek ways to get the wheels turning on economies that have been crippled in recent months by lockdowns and other restrictions on people's lives.

A million Madrid residents are under partial lockdown, with the city and the surrounding region at the centre of Spain's second

The national government on Monday warned the local authorities of drastic measures if the region failed to move decisively to slow the uncontrolled spread.

"There is no doubt that (the central government) is prepared to do whatever is necessary," Justice Minister Juan Carlos Campo told Spain's RNE public radio.

'Made peace with it'

Worldwide the virus has now infected more than 33 million people and killed over a million, according to an AFP tally compiled from

Mid-September saw a record rise in cases in most regions and the World Health Organization has warned that virus deaths could even double to two million without more global collective action.

On Monday the number of cases in India surpassed six million, with the country on course to overtake the United States in the coming weeks as the nation with the most infections. Locals in Delhi said while they remained cautious, their fears had lessened since the pandemic began earlier this year.

Himanshu Kainthola, 61, who recovered from the virus last month, said his family's worries had "reduced substantially".

"We take the necessary precautions and invest in increasing our immunity rather than being anxious or scared of it," he said. "We have made peace with it." (AFP)

Israel minister says 'no way' virus lockdown will end soon

Health Minister Yuli Edel- schools and cultural events, vear. stein said Tuesday that the lockdown has closed there was "no way" the the vast majority of workcountry's second nationwide coronavirus lockdown would be lifted after three weeks as originally planned.

"There's no way that in 10 days we'll be lifting all the restrictions and saying it's all over, everything is fine," he told public broadcaster Kan.

Israel imposed its second lockdown on September 18 after the coronavirus infection rate soared. It was originally scheduled to end on October 10.

On Friday, the measures were tightened after the initial eight days failed to bring down the world's highest infection rate per places, markets and places

"There might be some changes for the better, but this time, as part of the the learning process from what happened in April, we'll exit (the lockdown) gradually, responsibly," Edelstein said. "The opening of the economy and our lives will be gradual and slow." Israel has recorded more than 233,000 infections and 1,507 deaths in a population of nine million.

According to military intelligence, not only does Israel have the world's highest weekly infection rate per capita, its daily death rate per capita has passed that of the world's hardesthit country, the United

Heavy losses claimed as Armenia-Azerbaijan fighting rages

YEREVAN: Azerbaijani and Armenian forces claimed to have inflicted heavy losses as fighting raged for a third day on Tuesday over the breakaway region of Nagorny Karabakh.

Urgent calls from world leaders for a halt to the fierce clashes that erupted on Sunday have gone unheeded by the ex-Soviet rivals, who have been locked for decades in a territorial dispute over Kara-

The UN Security Council was scheduled to meet Tuesday for emergency talks on the military escalation over the ethnic Armenian exclave, where intense fighting in recent days has caused nearly 100 confirmed deaths.

Both sides said fighting was continuing on Tuesday, despite international pleas for a ceasefire.

Armenian defence officials said separatists in Karabakh had repelled Azerbaijani attacks along the frontline and that "the enemy suffered serious losses in man-

The defence ministry in Yerevan said Azerbaijan's military had suffered major losses since the clashes erupted, with nearly 50 drones and four helicopters downed, and 80 tanks destroyed.

Defence officials in Azerbaijan's capital Baku in turn dismissed claims by separatist fighters that the Armenian-backed troops had regained control of territory in Karabakh lost in fighting Sunday.

They said "fierce fighting" had persisted in the early hours of Tuesday and that their military had repelled an Armenian counterattack, destroying "an Armenian motorised column and an artillery unit" and, later, an entire motorised infantry regiment.

Azerbaijani forces "continued an offensive on the city of Fizuli, destroying four enemy tanks, an armoured vehicle and killing 10 troops," officials in Baku said.

"The enemy... asked for help to evacuate corpses and wounded troops" from the battlefield, it

Stalled peace efforts

The fighting between majority-Muslim Azerbaijan and Christian Armenia is threatening to draw in Turkey and Russia -- the main powerbrokers in the Caucasus region -- who back opposing sides of the

Yerevan is part of a military alliance of former Soviet states led by Moscow and Russian leader Vladimir Putin has called for a halt to the fighting. Ankara backs Azerbaijan and has been accused of sending mercenaries from northern Syria to bolster Baku's army, while Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan said Monday it was time for the longstanding dispute over Karabakh "to be put to an end".

Azerbaijan has not reported military casualties, but the separatist government has released footage from the battlefield showing what it said was the remains of Azerbaijani soldiers.

Armenia's rights ombudsman Arman Tatoyan confirmed Tuesday the deaths of two more civilians, while Azerbaijani President Ilham Aliyev said civilian casualties on the Azerbaijani side reached 10 on Tuesday.

That brings the total confirmed deaths in the fighting to 98 -including 84 separatist fighters and 14 civilians.

Observers to the conflict have urged the international community to ramp up efforts aimed at finding a political solution.

The UN Security Council meeting, which was formally requested by Belgium after France and Germany led a push for it to be added to the agenda, will be held at 5:00 pm local time in New York (2100 GMT), diplomats told AFP.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel has "urgently called for an immediate ceasefire and a return to the negotiating table," her spokesman said Tuesday, after she spoke with Aliyev and Armenian Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan.

Karabakh's declaration of independence from Azerbaijan sparked a war in the early 1990s that claimed 30,000 lives, but it is still not recognised as independent by any country, including Armenia.

Armenia and Karabakh declared martial law and military mobilisation Sunday, while Azerbaijan imposed military rule and a curfew in large cities.

Talks to resolve the conflict -which emerged amid the 1991 collapse of the Soviet Union -- have largely stalled since a 1994 ceasefire agreement.

France, Russia and the United States have mediated peace efforts as the "Minsk Group", but the last big push for a peace deal collapsed

Ethiopian Airlines rides out pandemic on strength of cargo boom

ADDIS ABABA: Six months since the coronavirus pandemic upended the global airline industry, Ethiopian Airlines is facing a heavy toll: more than $1 billion in lost revenue, to say nothing of 850 infected employees.

Yet Tewolde Gebremariam, CEO of the state-owned airline and jewel of Ethiopia's economy, maintains the situation would have been far worse if it had not rapidly adapted to a 90 percent drop in international passenger traffic.

Africa's largest carrier pivoted in March to meet surging demand for air freight, repurposing 45 passenger jets in order to build out its cargo fleet.

"We were very quick, very fast, flexible and agile to move our forces, resources and everything to cargo," Tewolde told AFP in an interview.

"I would say that those actions have saved the airline." So far Ethiopian has avoided seeking a bailout, laying off any full-time employees or requesting deferrals on debt payments, Tewolde said.

It even reported a profit of $44 million (37 million euros) for the first half of the year, he said, although the company declined to give details because the figures are unaudited.

The slow rebound in passenger traffic means Ethiopian remains in "survival mode", Tewolde said.

But as the industry attempts to recover, he is looking to deepen ties with other African carriers, notably beleaguered South African Airways

"It is... an opportune time now to support other airlines because we are in a better position," he said.

Cargo boom

Ethiopian resorted to unorthodox to several diplomats.

tactics to exploit the pandemic-related cargo boom.

In addition to stripping out seats from 25 passenger aircraft, it enlisted 20 more planes whose seats were left in place and the cargo was secured with safety belts.

Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed took to pitching Ethiopian's cargo services in calls with world leaders, according

"Ethiopian could react with more agility than other airlines because it has always been run like a business," said Chiedza Madzima, head of operational risk at Fitch Solutions.

"There's a significant role of the state, but there's very limited state interference in the way Ethiopian Airlines is run." The airline was further aided by the UN's decision to open a humanitarian transport hub in Addis Ababa in April. To date Ethiopian has operated 360 cargo charters of personal protective equipment to more than 80 countries, Tewolde said.

And once a vaccine is approved, Ethiopian plans to make available "at least 40 airplanes" to distribute it globally.

Looking outward

Ethiopian has been closely watching other African carriers' response to the Covid-19 crisis.

Ethiopian already partners with Malawian Airlines and ASKY Airlines out of its hub in Togo.

It also holds a 45-percent stake in Zambia Airways which Tewolde said he expected would launch "either in October or November". But Tewolde lamented that African carriers currently only meet about 20 percent of the continental market's needs. "We have been aiming to reverse this market share, meaning African airlines, indigenous African airlines, should get at least 50 percent," he

With that in mind, Ethiopian is in talks over the restructuring of SAA, which has survived only through years of state bailouts.

In July, SAA's creditors approved a rescue plan that would replace it with a new and competitive carrier.

Tewolde said Ethiopian had made clear to South African officials that it was "not interested in equity" or in helping SAA manage its debt.

'We told them that we can give them management expertise, technical expertise, fleet and we can work on a commercial collaboration to restart South African Airways together," he said.

"We are interested only in the restart of the new airline at the beginning of next year."

A drawn-out crisis

The International Air Transport Association (IATA) has reported a 58.5-percent drop in passenger demand in Africa for 2020. 'We're unlikely to see passenger levels return to 2019 levels for the next three to four years," said Madzi-Ethiopia never closed its borders to international travel, but closures elsewhere meant the airline missed out on its normal summer peak, and it remains cut off from "very important markets" like China, India, South Africa and Saudi Arabia, Tewolde noted. Even for flights that are running, he said, load factors are "less than 40 percent". This shows the severity of the crisis and also the length of the crisis," he said. (AFP)

MARY LOURDES FERNANDO, a life well lived

mum was born to a family of six in Kotahena, Colombo13, Sri Lanka on the feast day of our Lady of Lourdes, 11th February, 1939 and she was very blessed to be named Mary Lourdes Fernando by her mother coming from a mixed Catholic and Buddhist family with one of her own sisters a Buddhist nun, and the father who was a convert from Buddhism much later on in marriage with an experience of a powerful conversion.

She was Baptised at St Lucia's Cathedral Kotahena, Colombo 13, educated at Good Shepherd's Convent Kotahena all through her life and received the sacraments of First Holy Communion, and Confirmation at St Lucia's Cathedral. At 19 years she entered marriage at the same parish Cathedral. They were blessed with three children; Anton Michael, Irene Princy and Prem Jayalath, the youngest and that is me.

My mother married my father Pathiraja Liyanage Edward Boniface Fernando who was an aeronautical engineer at the then Royal Ceylon Air Force, which was later called the Sri Lanka Air Force when it became a republic. He was with the Air Force until his retirement. During his time at the RAF, he was sent to England twice for his further qualifications. I remember my mum saying that he was very clever to be chosen to qualify in England, at a time not many did, and easily could do so. I also remember my mum mentioning that even though he was clever and was meant to be in the very top ranks, since he was smart, outspoken and straight forward, his chances of it were very slim. It was very true until his retirement. I suppose his legacy continues. I fondly remember them going for Air Force colours nights and dances teasing me with boxes of chocolates to stop me crying left home, promising to bring loads more after winning the dance competitions. Of course, they did, but certainly not as many as I would have wished for.

When I expressed my desire to enter the priesthood at a very young age, 12 years, my mum was very pleased but not my father, as he was more keen on me following his path and becoming a pilot at the RAF. He knew I was mad about planes, hanging around with him at the hangars while he was servicing and repairing them until this thought about the priesthood. My father never saw me as a priest, though he knew I spent most of my life in the seminary training towards priesthood. I remember him asking me when I was about to start my A/Ls in double maths which obviously pleased him; 'Do you still want to be a priest?' for which he had no reply, never he did. Instead my mother was blessed to receive the very first blessing from his son who was ordained a priest in 1990. I remember her face, never seen before, it was the answer to her prayers. If I knew of anyone who was so proud of me as a priest, it was my mother, and if there was anyone that prayed relentlessly for me, it was my mother. Surely, I would miss that pride, and that prayer for the rest of my life. But I know now she will still rest at my side. My mother was blessed to see my sister Irene Princy marrying Indra Lal Desa Abeyaratne Weerasekera, and seeing their children, her grandchildren, son Ramesh and daughter Ruwani Maria and their children; her great grandchildren, Neran and Samadhi. It was her joy to see my brother Anton marrying Nilmini Athapattu and their son Kanushka Gabriel and daughter Shamalka Hannah.

From the time I remember I have seen plenty of pupils in and out of our house, and my mum teaching them even though she did not have a formal qualification as a teacher. All through her life she taught, often with a packed classroom in our house wherever we were, and she was known as 'the teacher'. Even at the time of her death where she lived was known as 'the teacher's house'.

My mum's cooking was heavenly. Not just rice and curry, but western dishes, pastries, cakes etc. Whatever that caught her curiosity was next served at the table. One of my immortal memories as a child was me celebrating my seventh Birthday in the night at the old runway of Katunayake Airport, which was just walking distance from the Air Force camp we lived then, and pointing out to the sky with a homemade delicious shortcrust pastry sausage role in hand, spotting the plane that flew Pope Paul the VI to Sri Lanka. She not only fed us, relatives, and friends with her exceptional cooking skill but it was also her joy to send alms to the nearby Temple once a month feeding the Buddhist Monks. Surely, they looked forward to it every month.Her room until recently was packed piled up with recipes and cookery books she collected from the 1950's. That was her treasure and I had to intervene to let her part with

Even though my ordination to the priesthood would have been a highlight of her life and my PhD at University of Cambridge in Artificial Intelligent Systems, which she witnessed herself, made her proud, she was for sure heart broken when I moved to settle and serve in the Archdiocese Birmingham in UK. She must be! to see her son, a soldier's pride leaving one's mother country. None of my family did, including my father having had that opportunity twice. We were told we should be ready to die with our people no matter what - a soldier's child! I would have been proud to be so and made my mum immensely proud too. Our family's name 'Pathiraja' meant the head of the armed forces that guarded the ancient kings, country, and the people. It was not meant to be. I will have to live with that shame.

I am grateful to His Eminence Cardinal Vincent Nichols, for accepting me with much generosity and understanding, to the Archdiocese of Birmingham when he was shepherding the flock in that Sea. I am thankful to the Archdiocese Birmingham for placing their confidence on me with all their prayers and support. My heartfelt gratitude to Cardinal Vincent Nichols, Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster and Archbishop Bernard Longley, the present Archbishop of Birmingham, for their condolences and offering of the Sacrifice of the Holy Mass for the repose of the soul of my beloved mother. Surely it must have pleased my mum to know that I was safely continuing to serve in the priesthood under much love and care. It would have been a great consolation to her to know that prayers would be offered for her soul by them. It is a great relief. I am thankful to His Eminence Malcolm Cardinal Ranjith, the Cardinal of Sri Lanka and the Archbishop of Colombo, and the Archdiocese of Colombo, in spite of me having left the Archdiocese, for honouring my mum, me and family with his presence, his bishops and priests giving all honour we, and I, didn't deserve. I am thankful to the Bishop of Kurunegala for his presence and for their condolences, and the diocese of Galle and their Bishop for their sympathies published on their diocesan webpage. I am ever grateful to my priest friends who never forgot me and my mum's generosity. A mother that visited me almost every Sunday while I was at the minor seminary, carrying her home cooked food for me to share with others. My sincere thankfulness to all for honouring my mum in my absence; a sadness that surpasses the expressions of any words. But they did not make her feel that sadness, is consoling. In my absence her Requiem was concelebrated by my priest friends at the parish church of St. Anthony's and buried at the General Cemetery in Mount Lavinia.

Her life was very simple. Lived through many a hardship of a normal family life; plenty of joys and sorrows. Laboured tirelessly, like all mothers do. Everything, all her life, was sacrificed to bringing up the family. She will be very dearly missed by my family and all who knew her. But her fond memories, shall stay

I together with our family are grateful to all family and friends, those known and unknown to her, who showed their respects in person and those that attended her funeral service sharing in our sorrow and standing by us with all their support and care. I am thankful to the staff and students of St.Joseph's College and St.Peter's College, where I served among the priest staff, soon after my ordination to priesthood, for the first three years and then for seven years respectively. Thank you all for your condolences expressed in many ways.

May the Angels lead her into paradise; May the martyrs come to welcome her, and take her to the holy city, the new and eternal Jerusalem.

- Rev.Fr (Dr) Prem J.Fernando

WILFRED COORAY, an affable personality

Mr.Wilfred Cooray was a source of pride to his kith and kin. The memories of him are still strong and precious and would always linger in our minds and hearts till the end of time. September 12th 2020 proved a sad and fateful day for his wife Rani and children. He died of a brief illness at the age of 87 years. Mr. Cooray answered God's call and was taken upon his heavenly home to be with his creator. His death removed from our midst an affable personality.

His passage though life was always unruffled and without any friction. He hailed from a well known distinguished respected and conservative family. Mr. Cooray was educated at St. Seb tian's College, Moratuwa. He worked at Lake House well over 4 decades. He then joined Wijeya Newspapers Ltd. and worked for 2 decades or more and served the organization with utmost honesty, and dedication as an Sales Promotions Consultant. Mr. Cooray had a charm and charisma of his own. He was loved by all his colleagues and other close associates for his good humour. I have known him for the past 15 years working together in the same Department. When I lost my only sister 5 years back I would break in tears daily when I walked in to the office and Mr.Cooray would comfort me saying "now, now, Marian cheer up, life has to go on, these words keep ringing in my ears even now.

He was an unassuming man, and sincere friend. Above all he was a gentleman par excellence. He had an excellent command of the English Language and was an eloquent speaker who possessed the rare quality of being knowledgeable on any subject. He would never be troubled even in time of danger or difficulty.

Mr.Wilfred Cooray was a devout Catholic. He never failed to perform his daily religious observances prayer and rituals. His daily activities and outlook of life guided by his religious convictions.

Mr. Cooray was a Charter Member of the Lions Club of Moratuwa District 306 A1, and held different positions such as President, Director etc, he will also be remember for the wonderful work performed by him as a Past President in the Club, but at the same time never ever lost the common touch. His memory will remain in their minds and hearts for a long time.

He also has 4 brothers of which 3 are predeceased, Rev. Brother Kingsley OMI, sisters Esme and Monica are sure to miss him. His loving and dedicated wife Rani and children and his home were the heaven to which he looked forward and returned for support, comfort and happiness of long wedded bliss which he enjoyed for many years. His daughters Ravini (USA), Viranthi, Roshini, Romaine (Australia) and only son Rajive (USA) of whom he would speak to me and say, Marian I am very happy to see these loving children of mine are doing well, and they are very concerned about myself and my wife Rani. He would also speak about his loving wife's talents and achievements being a housewife. It is also praise worthy that he would never fail to speak about his inlaws, grandchildren and great grandchildren for which I gave a patient hearing to him.

He died as he lived in peace and without struggle, for his life was free of conflict and he never ever brushed against anyone.

May the Gracious Lord in his infinite mercy grant him eternal perfect peace. I am sure that Mr. R.S. Wilfred Cooray would have been welcomed at the portals of his Lord and Master with the complimentary words, "Well done thou good and faithful servant."

Wildfires roar through California wine regions

SANTA ROSA: Tens of thousands of Californians fled their homes in the Napa and Sonoma wine regions in the face of wildfires, emergency officials said, as a new blaze in the north of the state killed three people.

Under an orange sky and a sweltering heatwave, some of Napa Valley's best-known vineyards were consumed by an out-of-control blaze that raced through more than 35,000 acres (14,000 hectares), according to state fire agency Cal Fire.

Celebrated wineries such as Chateau Boswell and part of Castello di Amorosa went up in smoke, while there was a "significant loss" of buildings on the fringes of Santa Rosa - neighboring Sonoma County's largest town - said fire chief Tony Gossner.

Around 200 miles (320 kilometers) north, three people perished in a "very fast-moving, very fluid, very hot" fire in Shasta County, said Sheriff Eric Magrini. The fires prompted authorities to order more than 35,000 residents to evacuate, with thousands more poised to flee, as "explosive fire growth" burnt through dry vegetation and difficult mountainous terrain, officials said.

The causes of the fires are still being investigated. Calistoga, a picturesque community at the top of the Napa Vallev known for hot springs and as a launchpad for wine tours, has largely been evacuated.

CeeBee Thompson spent sleepless hours watching flames in the distance and packing her car, as Calistoga's recently installed warning sirens sounded twice during the night.

Subsidy for eco-friendly fertilizer for Maha season

MENAKA INDRAKUMAR

The Cabinet has approved to provide eco-friendly fertilizer as a subsidy for the Maha season implemented as a pilot project on February (20).

The granting is in favour of a project to provide fertilizer subsidy from the Yala season 2020, under the Chemical Fertilizer Subsidy Programme and Rs. 250 million will be allocated for this project.

Over 20,000 hectares will be covered in 14 districts, cultivating paddy using compost organic liquid fertilizer and organic Biofertilizer.

This use of fertilizer has reduced the usage of chemicals by 30% to 50% which is a massive success to the pilot project.

This was suggested by the Minister of Agriculture to use more than 40,000 hectares of paddy using eco-friendly fertilizer during the Maha season of 2020/2021 was approved by the cabinet.

Travel ban on Patali, ordered to report to CCD

The Colombo High Court yesterday imposed a travel ban against former minister Patali Champika Ranawaka and two others from travelling overseas over the case filed against them for an alleged motor accident that took place in 2016 at Rajagiriya.

The case was taken up before the High Court Judge Damith Thotawatte. He also ordered the Controller of Immigration and Emigration to prevent the issuance of new passports to the accused. Further, the High Court Judge ordered the accused to report to the OIC of the Colombo Crimes Division on the first Friday of every month between 9 am and 11 am.

Dilum Thusitha Kumara, the driver of former minister Patali Champika Ranawaka, who has been named as the second accused in the case, was issued a warrant by the Colombo High Court for failing to appear before the court when the case was taken up yesterday.

Former Minister Patali Champika and ASP Sudath Asmadala, who were named as accused in the case, appeared before court when the case was called. Accordingly, the High Court Judge ordered the Colombo Crimes Division to arrest accused Dilum Thusitha Kumara for not appearing before the and ordered to release each accused court yesterday and produce him on a cash bail of Rs.10, 000 and two before the court.

When the case was taken up Dileepa Pieris appearing on behalf of the Attorney General informed the evidence, conspiracy of fabricating court that the accused in the case had filed a motion in the Magistrate's Court seeking relaxation of the bail conditions imposed on them and following that the Magistrate's Court had requested to obtain the original case records of the High Court.

The Deputy Solicitor General further said that if such a motion was filed in the Magistrate's Court and such requests were made, the accused would need to inform the Attorney General or the Colombo Crimes Divi-

The Deputy Solicitor General also told court that by lifting the travel ban from legal penalty. without informing the prosecution, the suspects would have been able to evade court. Following that, President's Counsel Anuja Premaratne appearing for the accused told court that the accused had not asked the Magistrate's Court to lift the travel ban and they had requested from the Magistrate's Court to revoke the order to report to the Colombo Crimes Division once a month.

However, the Deputy Solicitor General sought from the High Court to issue a travel ban on the accused as

Accordingly, in addition to the bail conditions imposed on the accused by the High Court, the Deputy Solicitor General requested the court to order the accused to report to the OIC of the Colombo Crimes Division on the first Friday of every month as an additional bail condition and to issue a travel ban on the accused. After considering all the facts, the High Court Judge issued the relevant orders and ordered that the passports of the accused be produced before the court on the next day.

The case will be taken up again on October 12.

The case was filed against former Minister Patali Champika, his driver Thusith Dilum Kumara and ASP Sudath Asmadala over the hit-and-run accident at Rajagiriya in 2016. At previous occasions, indictments were served to the all three accused sureties of Rs.500, 000. The indictment comprising day, the Deputy Solicitor General charges was filed against all three accused on charges of fabricating false evidence and submitting false reports to the Court.

The main charge is relating to conspiring and fabricating false evidence to claim that it was Dilum Thusith Kumara who was driving the vehicle which caused the accident and another charge relates to him allegedly conspiring to conceal evidence in order to protect MP Patali Champika from legal penalty.

ASP Sudath Asmadala was charged with producing a false report to the Colombo Magistrate's Court in order to protect former MP Patali Champika President's Counsel Anuja Premaratne, President's Counsel Anil Silva, Attorneys Geetha Jayasinghe. Gunaratne Wanninayake and Rajitha Kodithuwakku appeared for the accused.

IPL finally gets going in the UAE

IPL excitement is here! the Indian Premier League T20 cricket tournament finally saw the light of the day when the umpires called play at the Abu Dhabi Stadium in the UAE on Saturday.

This money rich tournament, the brainchild of the lucrative Indian Cricket Board which is conducted yearly to packed spectators and contested with much fanfare in many venues in India had to be shifted because of Covid

When everything pointed to a postponement of the tournament or most likely a cancellation for the first time, the United Arab Emirates took up the challenge of hosting this much craved for tournament. The cricket crazy sheiks who are proud owners of an unbelievable Sports City World in Abu Dhabi and who possesses two of the eye catching cricket stadiums in the world in Abu Dhabi and Dubai in addition to the Sharjah Stadium are now watching the tournament unfolding with much delight and pride. The Dubai Stadium is known as the Ring of Fire.

The international star cricketers had arrived in UAE unheard and unsung and only after skippers Mahendra Singh Dhoni of Chennai Super Kings and Rohit Sharma of reigning champions Mumbai Indians walked out to toss that the galaxy of franchise players were noticed.

When the two teams Mumbai Indians and Chennai Super Kings lined up without much fanfare because there no wildly cheering, noise making cricket crazy Indian supporters to shout their voices hoarse, that the man who lit up this tournament from the time he sported the Mumbai Indians jersey was extremely noticeable.

And that was Sri Lanka's ace slinger the one and only and will never again be LASITH MALINGA with his tinted curly hair and swaggy walk. When he takes the field and when Sharma throws the ball to him to commence proceedings the crowd brings the rafters down with their noise making.

But with MALINGA deciding to skip this year's tournament the gloss and the glamour is sadly missing and even those cricket crazy fans watching the action on telly must be disappointed. But that is how the game goes.

The cricket crazy Ambani Brothers would I am sure have stretched their influence to the maximum to lure MALINGA. But MALINGA knew better and so a star is missing from the cricketing firmament. I still vividly remember glued to the TV soaking in the heart stopping action that was last year's final. It was just like yesterday. With two to win and one for a tie, skipper Sharma nervously yet confidently tossed the ball to MALINGA to deliver the last over. MALINGA has a reputation for bowling the death over and bringing many victories for his country. With all eyes focused on MAL-INGA he confidently ran in and delivered the death ball of the batsman, a spot on deadly Yorker and the batsman was struck right in front and the umpire had only to raise his finger and did not all mayhem and celebrations break out. MALINGA the cricketing magic man had done it again.

Sadly Mumbai Indians the defending champions lost the opener of the tournament to Chennai Super Kings that would have been disappointing to the team but also former Sri Lanka cricket captain, super star and coach of MI Mahela Jayawardena.

But losing a game would not matter because there are many more games to be played and they have the cricketing artillery to shoot down the opponents and retain the title and Jayawardena the master strategist will show them how.

When this edition of this Indian Premier League ends it will also see the end of the career of an Indian Legend MAHENDRA SINGH DHONI who will quietly fade way leaving a void that will never be easy to be filled or replaced or even be made or seen

From the moment he stepped into the Indian team as wicketkeeper, batsman and then rightly as captain he gave Indian cricket a never before seen approach and his brilliance kept rubbing on every player who came under his captaincy and the cricketers respected and played from out of their skins to take Indian cricket to a new high and a different level. Like the Indian super star the one and only Sachin Tendulkar Dhoni is another demi god in Indian cricket and will remain that way till the end of time. We wish Dhoni a happy retirement and may he not be lost to Indian and world cricket and that he would help the game to go from, strength to strength with his rare ability and expertise.

LESLIE WAS AN EXCELLENT HOOKER

ALTHAF NAWAZ

Isipathana College, Colombo has played a major role in producing several talented sportsmen, especially in Rugby who have represented the National team. Leslie de Silva was one of them who was keen in becoming a talented and a well-recognized player in the sports arena.

Leslie de Silva, well known as 'Lella' in the rugby circles was a great product of Isipathana College who donned the Police and the National jersey in his 15 a side Rugby career from 1974 to 1990. He played as a hooker throughout his career and led Isipathana in 1981 which was studded with 13 coloursmen . He started playing Rugby at the tender age of 13 years in 1974. He was influenced by his elder brother Dudley de Silva who also played as hooker in the Isipathana team in 1973 and 1974 under captaincy of Nalin de Silva and Nihal Mendis respectively. He enrolled at Isipathana as a primary class student in 1966, when Isipathana rugby was cynosure of all eyes by dominating Schools Rugby arena. In 1974 under Mani Sugathapala he started Playing Junior rugby in the under-15 team. Two years later he continued to play in the under-17 team under the watchful eyes of Kamal Jayawardena, who he rates as his mentor.

He finally got an opportunity to play in the First XV team in 1978 under M.P.F.Sallay as hooker, where he was able to play a few games In the next year he was a regular player in his favourite position as hooker under K.D. Nanayakkara's captaincy, where he reached his peak. They became the runners-up to Royal in the school's unofficial league and were called to tour Bangkok for the Asian Schools Rugby Tournament . In 1980, under A.S.D. Bowela Isipathana rugby took the limelight with the involvement of some great players like Hisham Abdeen, M.P.F Sallay, M.D. Ifthikar, V.P. Sepala. This team went on to defeat the mighty Royal side 14 -7 after a decade and clinched the school's sevens title for 'Philip Buultjens Trophy' with a runaway 22-3 win over Trinity in the final

. In 1980 he toured with Isipathana team to Bangkok to take part in Asian Schools Rugby Tournament. While maturing as a player in 1981, he was chosen to lead the star studded Isipathana team which consisted of 13 coloursmen including Hector Gunathilake, M.D.

Kishan's 99 in vain as Bangalore down Mumbai in super over

DUBAI, MONDAY: Ishan Kishan's 99 went in vain for holders Mumbai Indians after Royals Challengers Bangalore prevailed in a dramatic super over in the second tied match of this IPL season on Monday.

Kishan, 22, smashed nine sixes in his 58-ball blitz and put on a key 119-run fifthwicket stand with Kieron Pollard, who hit 60 not out, as Mumbai equalled Bangalore's score of 201 in Dubai.

Virat Kohli's Bangalore then kept down Mumbai to seven in the super over, a score they surpassed with the skipper hitting the winning boundary on the final ball from Mumbai quick Jasprit Bumrah.

But the left-handed Kishan and Pollard, who hit fives sixes in his 24-ball stay, nearly pulled it off after the 15th over of Mumed 90 to win off the last five

"It was a great game, We were not in the game at all when we started with the bat. Great innings by Ishan to get us back," Mumbai skipper Rohit Sharma said after the loss in the 13th edition of the Indian Premier League.

'With Polly (Pollard) being there, anything can happen, and Ishan can hit it. We had the belief that we could do it. They held their nerves although we put pressure.

AB de Villiers watched his team's second win in three games from the nonstrikers end after hitting an unbeaten 55 in Bangalore's 201 for three while batting

The former South African captain put on key partbai's chase when they need-nerships including a 62-run third-wicket stand with voung opener Devdutt Padikkal, who scored 54 -his second IPL fifty.

Australian limited-overs skipper Aaron Finch gave Bangalore a brisk start with his 35-ball 52 and a opening stand of 81 with Padikkal.

Kohli, who fell to the spin of Deepak Chahar for three off 11 balls, said his side's fielding should improve in the upcoming games.

"Fielding is something we have to keep working on," Kohli said of the couple of dropped catches and fielding lapses from his side that ended at the bottom of the eight-table last year.

"If we'd taken out chances again it wouldn't have been so close. As I said, these little things we're not capitalising on, we need to

New Zealand Cricket chief executive David White said series against Bangladesh and Australia were yet to receive government approval but he was "confident" they would.

The government last week gave the green light for the West Indies and Pakistan to arrive under strict quarantine conditions for their first 14 days in the country due to concerns over the effects of the Covid-19 pandemic.

"I'm thrilled to be making this announcement today, given the uncertainty and difficulties over the past six or seven months," White said.

"We owe a huge debt of gratitude to the New Zealand government for helping us navigate this complex

Included in the schedule are four Tests, two against the West Indies and two against Pakistan, the first of which will be a Boxing Day Test at Tauranga's Bay Oval.

New Zealand are currently fourth in the inaugural Test Match Championship standings -- behind India, England and Australia - and just ahead of Pakistan with the West Indies seventh.

White said New Zealand Cricket was aware of the challenging circumstances many people found themselves in as a consequence of the Covid-19 crisis and would be reducing ticket prices by nearly 50 percent to acknowledge this.

"It might sound counter-intuitive to be lowering ticket prices at a time of great additional cost and expense to the game, but we think it's the right thing to do."

When the teams arrive in New Zealand they will spend their required 14-days quarantine in Christchurch where they will be able to train at NZC's high-performance centre in Lincoln University. AFP

Badminton chief defends calendar changes after outcry

KUALA LUMPUR, TUESDAY: Badminton's ruling body on Tuesday defended postponing the season's finale until January -- a decision that has sparked an outcry from players -- saying it was the "best possible solution" given the coronavirus

Positive signals from three oil basins - Gammanpila

Sri Lanka has received very positive signals from the natural gas and oil extraction process from three basins in the North East Coast. Several follow up initiatives too have been taken in this regard both locally and internationally, Energy Minister, Udaya Gammanpila said.

Speaking to 'Daily News Business' he said the natural gas and oil extraction would be the paradigm shift in the Sri Lankan economy and it is to this effect that a special Energy Minister was appointed.

He said that a decision was taken by the Government to recommence exploration recently and also to attract more investors to the industry. In addition a natural gas policy to attract more investors to explore for oil and gas in Sri Lanka is already prepared.

The Minister said research done in the basin from Puttalam to Trincomalee too has indicated that natural gas and oil gas deposits could be found. The Mannar basin extraction too has yielded positive results.

Gammanpila said extraction of petroleum oil or natural gas in Sri Lanka will begin before he contests the next Parliamentary election.

"If and when the production of oil in Sri Lanka is successful we will be able to generate and provide employment for nearly 1.5 million and bring back many Sri Lankan expatriate workers currently working in the Middle East in the same industry.

The history of extraction of natural gas and oil in Sri Lanka dates back to over four decades and when asked as to why no positive results were found he said that there were many reasons locally and internationally for it and some of which cannot be disclosed.

Gamanpila said that geographically natural gas and oil is found in India and Sri Lanka which is located in close proximity should also find similar positive results.

He also said that the government is also keen to promote alternative energy sources and wind and Solar power have been identified as key areas. The Government will also study and amend some of the aging regulations to attract investors toward the manufacture of Solar

Finance Ministry says Fitch downgrade unwarranted

Ministry of Finance in a statement says that they observe, with disappointment, Monday's rating downgrade by Moody's Investors Service and the recent release of an erroneous analysis by an international investment bank expressing concerns about Sri Lanka's economic and financial strength and external debt service capacity.

Ministry of Finance immediately responding to this rating action says it is unwarranted and requested the foreign investors not to be dissuaded by the action

Following is the release issued by the Ministry of Finance: We observe, with disappointment, today's rating downgrade by Moody's Investors Service and the recent release of an erroneous analysis by an international investment bank expressing concerns about Sri Lanka's economic and financial strength and external debt service capacity.

This downgrade and the report fail to do justice to the ground reality of the ongoing rapid economic recovery backed by vastly improved business confidence arising from the return of political and policy stability after a lapse of five years. Such announcement is also unwarranted especially at a time when the new Government is about to announce its Budget for 2021, spelling out the policy framework proposed in the medium term.

While Sri Lanka too like many of its peers in the emerging market group, experienced initial capital outflows, exchange rate depreciation, slowdown in activity, and pressure on government finances, in response to the effects of COVID-19 pandemic, unlike many of its peers, the country has been able to decisively deal with the domestic spread of the pandemic, for which Sri Lanka is hailed as one of the few countries to have been able to do so. 'The swiftness with which decisions were taken followed by the landslide victory of the Government, Sri Lanka is now moving along a recovery path towards growth and stability.

Merchandise exports have returned to pre-COVID monthly averages of US dollars 1 billion. With the curtailment of nonessential imports, the trade deficit has improved notably. Although inbound tourist movements are not yet allowed other services exports, including I'l' services and shipping, remain robust. Workers' remittances have recorded a sharp increase in spite of the initial expectation of a slowdown. Amidst the COVID response the Government also initiated reforms in State Owned Enterprises (SOL) and the impact of such actions can be seen already with some SOE's showing positive results.

Foreign Direct Investments, which slowed in the first half of the year, appear promising looking ahead, particularly with the expected inflows to the Port City project and for new manufacturing projects.

The expected finalization of new legislation for the Port City within a month will result in the realization of investment by those who have already completed due diligence on such investment. To page 19

'Microgrid Project, turning point in Lanka energy sector'

FIZEL JABIR

The Microgrid Project is a turning point in the energy sector of Sri Lanka, Dullas Alahapperuma, Minister of Power and Energy told a gathering in Colombo last week.

He said the day was important due to two factors which was, everyone present had become eve witnesses to the transmission of innovative modernisation of the technology in Sri Lanka. The second important factor was the joining together of different parties, which usually doesn't happen in this country, to accomplish a national responsibility. He said this initiative goes par with President Gotabaya Rajapaksa's vision that by 2030 out of the total energy production 70 percent should be made of renewable energy. The Minister said in the quest to minimise the reliance on Diesel to generate power to 5% in 2030 and increase the renewable energy production, Microgrid could play a vital role in especially absorbing and transmitting the renewable energy which would be produced at that time. Alahapperuma said the uniqueness of the project was the coming together of institutions of the magnitude of ADB, LECO, UOM, DIMO and DHYBRID to accomplish the task. He said the biggest challenge they faced was giving a good price to the customer and in the quest of achieving that target how to protect the environment.

Lanka Electricity Company (LECO) together with the University of Moratuwa (UOM) launched a pioneering pilot project on Microgrid with a grant assistance of $ 1.8 million (approximately Rs. 325 million) from Asian Development Bank (ADB). DIMO, together with the German specialist DHYBRID, has been selected for the supply of comprehensive Renewable Energy Microgrid consisting of power generation and storage, a model which can be scaled up for uninterrupted power distribution for customers across the country. SriLankan Airlines' marketing communication endeavors wins PATA Gold Awards

SriLankan Airlines, a member of the oneworld alliance, reaffirming the global appeal of its marketing communication endeavors, bagged a gold award at the PATA Gold Awards 2020.

Accordingly, the National Carrier was among the 20 winners announced recently at the virtual PATA Travel Mart 2020. SriLankan Airlines was awarded the title 'Marketing Carrier' for its Pan India campaign-Next Door Neighbor and Serendipity Next Door.

SriLankan Airlines' Chief Executive Officer, Vipula Gunatilleka said, "Receiving this coveted title from PATA, specially under the prevailing circumstances, gives us hope that we are capable of facing the challenging times ahead and our remedial communication content aiming to garner long-term, universal appeal can have a strong impact on our business recovery."

PATA CEO Dr. Mario Hardy said, "The winners of the PATA Gold Awards set industry standards for excellence and innovation and provides the association with the perfect opportunity to recognise and reward the very best the Asia Pacific travel industry has to SriLankan Airlines' General Manager Marketing Saminda Perera said, "We are delighted to receive this prestigious title at the virtual PATA Travel Mart 2020 and it is truly inspiring that our efforts are continually rewarded in this manner. This is a result of an extremely satisfying team effort and I take this opportunity to thank the celebrities who were part of these creations, the management which has been supportive of our endeavors, my team, and our creative agencies J. Walter Thompson and Leo Burnett, without whom this will never be a possibility."

The winning entry of the 'Marketing Carrier' category, 'Next door neighbors' is a visual representation of multi-faceted attractions of Sri Lanka primarily targeting holidaymakers of India, with the underlying message that one does not have to look very far for exciting or serene getaways when Sri Lanka is right next door.

SriLankan Airlines' brand videos- 'Serendipity Next Door' and 'Ode to Paradise' created ripples across social media platforms for its virality. 'Ode to Paradise' is a revival of the well-loved 'Blue Waters' song of the Air Lanka fame, which praises the island beauty of Sri Lanka, through the eyes of world-renowned Sri Lankan celebrities. 'Serendipity Next Door' is an extension of 'Ode to Paradise' specially crafted to appeal to the Indian audience.

The two videos recorded a combined number of 73 million views on Facebook and 2.2 million views on Youtube, whilst the latter became the first Sri Lankan brand video to cross one million views within 11 hours and five million mark in two days.

This is the third time that the National Carrier made its mark at PATA, having received gold awards on two previous occasions in 2007 and 2019.

DLB presents first digital lottery of South Asia through DLB sweep App

DLB marked a significant turning point of its history yesterday by way of launching first digital lottery 'Sasiri' under the patronage of S.R.Atigala, Secretary of the Ministry of Finance.

DLB believes that you will not hesitate to enjoy this new experience, which is a revolutionary change in the field of lottery industry in Sri Lanka.

An opportunity created through challenge; Insurance industry seeing potential amidst crisis

As all other industries, the insurance industry too shows a decline for the remainder of 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Globally, life premiums are expected to contract by 6%, with saving products coming down.

"In general insurance, travel and trade related lines are expected to suffer most and is predicted to contract by 0.1%. A challenging economic environment for insurers will result due to low interest rates, stagnant growth and the increasing likelihood of a global recession," said The Chairman of the Insurance Regulatory Commission of Sri Lanka, (CIRCSL) President's Counsel Razik Zarook.

However, it has been predicted that reinsurance prices for General Insurance Businesses is set to rise by at least 5%.

Here the Chairman CIRCSL, Razik Zarook shares his insights on how the insurance industry is evolving both in the local and global arenas, in view of the Insurance Month commemorated in September.

How do you see both the life and general insurance landscape at present in Sri Lanka, as opposed to the global arena?

A: Despite the temporary limitation, demographic shifts around the globe create both risks and opportunities for insurance companies. At the same time, customer expectation, especially around digital channels and bespoke experiences is and will continue to increase. As a response to this, technological invasion is taking place across the entire value chain.

The impact of COVID-19 resonates in the local industry as well, in both short and long term, reducing insurable exposures due to negative impact on businesses. The industry should be prepared for significant financial losses arising as a result of negative impacts on various covers such as health, travel, event cancellations, business interruption, employer liability, income protection etc. Although the local insurance industry has no mortalities and healthcare costs due to COVID-19, recent import controls such as on vehicle imports will affect negatively because motor is the largest contributing segment to general insurance. However, we see signs of the local industry recovering much more quickly than expected.

What trends do you see in the industry since post COVID Lockdown?

A: Insurance companies that have invested in digital technology products and services will definitely have an advantage in navigating at present. As work from home has become part of the employee structure operational models and workforce allocations will have to align to suit the current situation. In addition, new segments, such as cyber risk insurance might become more popular, pushing for generating new ideas and products, and deviating from the conventional product types.

In contrast, there can arise an increase in lapsed policies, as well as concerns regarding the future of insurance policies and premium payments by customers. The digitalization should have necessary checks and balances to countervail the risk of fraud. Therefore, business continuity planning should take this into serious consideration.

How do you think declaring an Insurance Awareness Month will help the pandemic hit insurance industry performance?

A: We will witness an unprecedented change in the foreseeable future as people slowly get accustomed to an environment where they coexist with COVID-19 until a proper vaccine is found to cure the illness. In the wake of the COVID-19 outbreak, insurance has become one of the most important financial tools to have in place for the worst times because people are increasingly aware of health and protection. The declaration of the insurance awareness month is the best platform to raise awareness on insurance at this juncture. The industry should take up the challenge.

Has there been any new developments in terms of regulation since you took office?

A: There have been several directives issued by the IRCSL recently. Direction No. 21 has been issued in respect of changing Agency Codes. In addition, in keeping with the National Language policy, Circular No. 43 directed that Insurance Policies be available in all three languages, Sinhala, Tamil and English to ensure comprehension of policy terms and conditions by the relevant policyholder. Circular No. 42 was added requiring insurance companies to refrain from obtaining loss adjusting services from unlicensed Loss

The IRCSL also made a special announcement to provide relief measures to insurance policyholders extending the premium payment period in view of the COVID 19 pandemic. We also called for a suspension of dividend payments to shareholders of insurance companies with a view to minimize any potential near-term impact on the capital levels of insurance companies as a result of disruptions to their businesses by way of losses of premium income and thereby earnings of insurers.

In your opinion, how has the insurance customer benefited in terms of the services and the product offering in the market?

A: Many aspects of the modern society and economy could not function without insurance as insurance provides a safety net over the unforeseen events and enable individuals and businesses to carry on their daily activities as usual. Buying an insurance policy for a smaller, known premium provides the safety net for a possibility of a larger, potentially unaffordable loss, bringing peace of mind and security. The customers will be benefited, their needs will be fulfilled and confidence level will be boosted with more emphasis on paying policy benefits to the insureds.

financial institutions. With regard to portfolio flows, foreign inflows to the government securities market have already shown signs of resumption. 'The stock market indices have improved to pre-COVID levels. The tourism sector has been supported by the flourishing domestic tourism. With increased emphasis on domestic agriculture, agro-based industries and resource-based industries, domestic economic activity has seen a remarkable turnaround with more opportunities being created for entrepreneurs to flourish. and available economic indicators point towards a promising recovery in the second half of the year, following the setback in the first half.

Given these developments, the exchange rate has sharply appreciated since mid-April, and remains stable at appreciated levels allowing the Cenreserves through market purchases of foreign exchange. In fact, official reserves of the Central Bank increased to US dollars 7.4 billion by end August 2020, and the Government has repeatedly expressed its ability and willingness to meet all its debt obligations falling due in the period ahead. 'The recently introduced measures to entice foreign investors to the government securities market and the real economy through an attractive foreign exchange swap arrangement are likely to help enhance foreign currency inflows, in addition to the support of friendly countries, such as the swap arrangement with the Reserve Bank of India in July 2020 and the expected disbursement of the 2" tranche of the Foreign Currency 'Term Financing Facility proceeds from the China Development Bank

of enabling high economic

phase while preserving macroeconomic stability. On the back of over 11 years of well anchored midsingle digit levels of inflation, the Central Bank has pursued an increasingly accommodative monetary policy stance. Fiscal policy, while remaining focused on supporting the economy, will return to a path of consolidation as envisaged in the Government's policy framework, "Vistas of Prosperity and Splendour". Hence, both fiscal and monetary policies have prioritized supporting people, businesses and thereby the economy, without jeopardizing the macroeconomic balance of the country. Given these circumstances, the Government of Sri Lanka wishes to reaffirm to foreign investors that have put faith in Sri Lanka continuously over the past several years that St Lanka remains willing and able to meet its debt obligations, as it has done impeccably In the past. In fact, Sri Lanka is one of the few countries to have recognized the external sector pressures and decisively curtailed all non- essential imports with a view to prioritize external debt service obligations.

Furthermore, all payment transactions for the repayment of the International Sovereign Bond of US dollars 1 billion maturing on October 4, 2020 have already been lined up and funds will be credited to the paying agent's account on October 2, 2020. It is puzzling that Moody's has downgraded Sri Lanka on the eve of this repayment, which seems similar to the previous premature and reckless downgrades by rating agencies in the immediate aftermath of the end of the internal conflict in 2009 and during the political impasse at end 2018.

Accordingly, foreign investors are invited not to be dissuaded by the recent unwarranted rating downgrade and the erroneous analysis published recklessly, but to be guided by improving economic conditions as outlined above.

The pilot project contains a commercial Microgrid and R&D facility which will be used as a research platform for the studies in nature of renewable energy integration and smart grids. The data obtained from the commercial Microgrid as well as the equipment and simulation environment will facilitate these R&D functions towards meeting the predefined research targets. The UOM has signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with LECO in establishing the "LECO Smartgrid Laboratory" and the facility will be maintained by LECO for the first 20 years. South Asia Energy Division of ADB with the Ministry of Power and Energy conceptualised this intervention as a part of its continuous assistance to expand clean energy development in Sri Lanka. LECO, as one of the pioneering distribution utilities who is always willing to embrace these new concepts, was selected as the instrument to realize this concept. The UOM premises was selected to be the site for the pilot cross-sectoral project due to the many advantages it offers. UOM will provide the rooftops and laboratory location and a set of targets are to be met by UOM post the commissioning. The initial investment and capacity development support are financed through ADB's Clean Energy Financing Partnership Facility.

"ADB has been a long-term partner in Sri Lanka's energy sector development. Our assistance in the clean energy, includes Sri Lanka's first large scale 100MW wind park in Mannar, 30MW hydropower station in Moragolla and the solar rooftop credit line, among others. Similarly, ADB has been supporting the strengthening of power evacuation from distributed renewable energy generation both at transmission and primary distribution level, in addition to its support for both supply side and demand side energy efficiency improvements. ADB is always committed to supporting Sri Lanka's inclusive energy sector development focussing on clean energy with new and innovative technologies and solutions", said ADB Country Director for Sri Lanka Dr. Chen Chen.

Chen Chen.

Acting General Manager of LECO Dr. Narendra De Silva said, "LECO is always dedicated to maintaining a safe and hassle free electricity supply to our customers around the clock on their demand. This project will be developed as a solution for power interruptions consumers face due to breakdowns as well as outages during maintenance activities. During such power failures, solar inverters also withdraw from the system by anti-islanding protection, driving even the customer who has sufficient power to power up their premises through their solar generation, go out of power."

"Microgrids are identified as a solution for these problems where it can increase the hosting capacity of the distribution network and can feed the power to the network when the grid is not available, since the excess power can be stored while storage issues like reverse power flow and subsequent voltage issues are also expected to be mitigated. Through this pilot project, LECO will seek the possibility of replicating the concept for other transformers and similar premises, to improve power supply reliability and the lessons learnt through this project will be shared internationally", he further Chairman & Managing Director of DIMO, Ranjith Pandithage said, "As a company which plays a significant role in Power sector through Transmission and Distribution projects and Power Generation - mainly focusing on Renewable Energy, we are indeed privileged to work together on this historic project that will take local power supply to the next level. DIMO's highly-qualified and experienced team of engineers are assigned to execute this project while sharing the knowledge with our German partner DHYBRID. We believe that this project will help DIMO to enhance the expertise in developing the Microgrid concept in Sri Lanka. DIMO has also been contributing to the constructing of the utility grid of Sri Lanka for the past 50 years."

Singer introduces tow new diesel generators with latest technology

Power failures and blackouts are a common phenomenon in Sri Lanka especially when there are no rains to the hill country for a few months. In addition to hydropower, Sri Lanka produces electricity using nonrenewable energy sources such as diesel and coal. However, people frequently experience power outages due to technical failures at the national grid.

Large corporates are well secured as they plan ahead and make sure that generators are in place to face unexpected power failures. But small businesses that don't prepare for such contingencies, face massive difficulties and fail to ensure the day-today continuity of their operations, which could negatively affect their own businesses and their loyal customers.

An unexpected power outage could completely dismantle the normal lifestyle of family members. A power failure could make all their plans go haywire leaving them frustrated. The best and the most reliable way to do this is to use a trusted generator. Although there are numerous types and brands of generators in the market, Singer generators remain the most trusted ones, which could address all your requirements. The latest two members to the Singer generator portfolio, which lightens the entire country, are: 5000 W (5KVA) and 3, 500 W (3.5KVA) diesel-powered

With over140 years, Singer has always been in the forefront of understanding customer needs and offering them with reliable and superior quality products.

The newly introduced single cylinder, air-cooled and 4-stroke G-SD5000 and G-SD3500 generators make very low noise and each has a capacity of 450cc. Each of them has 14.5 litre fuel tank capacity and, with rated rotation speed of 3000 provide electricity for many hours, continuously. Electricity from a 5KVA generator can support two television sets, three ceiling fans, a pedestal fan, an air conditioner, two computers, a refrigerator and 11 electric bulbs. A 3.5KVA generator can support two television sets, an air conditioner, a ceiling fan a computer and

These two generators will be ideal for a small business to ensure the continuity of its business operations even during a power failure and serve its loyal customers while creating an edge over competitors.

10 electric bulbs.

Likewise, a Singer generator could become handy to a household, especially during the day time to carry out all household chores when there is a power failure. A Singer generator also won't let your children to miss any online learning sessions due to power failures.

As some higher education centres continue to proceed with online sessions Singer generators won't let your

due to power failures.

Customers can purchase their latest Singer generator from Singer's island wide showroom network. Interest-free card payment schemes from 12 months up to 60 months are offered for customer convenience.

Holding the prestige of the largest consumer durable retail network and island-wide unmatched after sales service, Singer stands for its trusted excellence in the hearts of Sri Lankan customers. Singer Sri Lanka PLC has also won the two prestigious SLIM NIELS-EN awards for the Most Popular Brand of the People and the Consumer Durable Brand during the past 14 years continuously.

People's Bank affirms commitment to children by celebrating World Children's Day

People's Bank is celebrating World Children's Day with special programmes and activities islandwide from October 1 to December 31, 2020 for the Bank's Isuru Udana and Sisu Udana customers.

It is the prime responsibility of parents and adults to keep their children happy and ensure they have access to proper education while guiding them in the correct path. Children are the future of a nation and they remain the countries lifeblood.

To support development and nurturing of children, People's Bank has always awarded higher interest rates together with a host of benefits and gifts with educational value. This year, in line with Government's vision to promote local manufacturing, the Bank expects to provide clay saving tills as one of the gift items, there by supporting the clay industry in the country.

Commenting on the children's savings initiatives of, People's Bank Deputy General Manager (Process Management & Quality Assurance and Retail Banking) Mrs. Renuka Jayasinghe stated, "People's Bank has always been a bank dedicated towards children. From 1st October till 31st December, in conjunction with the World Children's Day, we will steer a special savings programme, a children's savings trimester. Our intention is to encourage and create awareness amongst children, parents, guardians and the whole society with regard to the importance of savings.

Encouraging future generations to save and through that to promote a sustainable economic environment remains our key goal. People's Bank has always been dedicated to this cause."

People's Bank will be organizing special programmes and competitions during these three months focusing on enhancing the children's knowledge levels and nurturing their creative talents. All such programmes will be carried out in strict adherence to the health guidelines given by the authorities in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic. Further Renowned medical professional Dr. Anuruddha Padeniya will conduct a series of informative clips for children on topics such as health and education. These clips will be made available on mass media as well as social media. Further details on the World Children's Day programmes can be obtained by contacting the nearest People's Bank branch.

People's Bank introduced the 'Isuru Udana' accounts to cater to children from birth up to 5 years of age, while the 'Sisu Udana' account was launched for school children from 6 to 18 years of age with the aim of inculcating the habit of savdays. For several years, the Bank has strived to open an Isuru Udana account with a cash deposit for every single baby born in the country.

ing from a child's early

Today, People's Bank has the highest number of student bank accounts in Sri Lanka. As an integral part of its digitalization drive, People's Bank reached another major milestone by establishing Sri Lanka's first-ever 'School Banking Unit with CDM', a module of the popular Self-Banking Unit (SBU), at several schools across the island in order to bring digitalisation closer to the school children while also inculcating the saving habit and extending banking facilities to them for enhanced convenience and safety.

AIA Insurance takes Annual Company Conference online

very year AIA Insurance holds the Annual Company Conference in grand style; an evening of glitz, glamour, recognitions and rewards for employee achievements throughout the year. It is a red-letter day in the company calendar and employees are celebrated for their hard work that contributed to the company's success.

This year, post Covid-19, AIA had to drop the glitz and glamour of a celebratory evening, but they didn't shelve the recognitions and rewards, that means so much to the company's employees. Three ways to help your child to be a responsible citizen

Responsible children grow up in responsible parenting. Every parent dreams of their children growing up to be respectful and responsible citizens because they contribute to the future of society.

According to Child Care Centers executive Andreason, "Just as children are taught to read and learn basic skills such as dressing themselves, they must also be taught character traits like honesty, responsibility, and respect for oneself and others."

So, how can you ensure that your children are learning these things? Here are some tips:

1. Be a positive role model

As a parent, you must remember that your children are always learning from you. If children do not learn proper values and behaviors when they are very young, problems can develop.

If children hear you lying or not taking responsibility for your actions, they will certainly think these behaviors are acceptable. Likewise, if they do not learn to be kind and help others, they will not exhibit these behaviors.

"It is critical to remember that everything you do as a parent is under the watchful eyes of your children," states Anderson. "Modeling responsible behaviors are so important to raising responsible citizen."

2. Utilize Books and character to get positive behaviors

Anderson recommends utilizing character programs such as the videos as well as children's books. It is to help teach your children about the types of positive behaviors society expects.

"Books such as Franklin Fibs, which talks about how Franklin finds himself in an embarrassing predicament after telling a lie can help parents explain the importance of being honest and the consequences of what happen when you aren't."

3. Set expectations and be clear and consistent

Anderson adds that it's important for you, as a parent, to remember that as your children grow, they will test the limits from time to time.

This is why you need to establish clearly defined expectations and make sure you are being consistent with them.

Children need to learn from their parents that their actions have importance. Let your child learn from their mistakes because when they are young the consequences aren't as great

Anderson recommends that you keep your expectations simple, such as "treat others as you want to be treated". Avoid coming up a complicated set of rules. She also encourages you to keep your instructions positive saying "be kind to each other" instead of "stop picking on each other."

remember that your children are always learning from you. If children do not learn proper values and behaviors when they are very young, problems can develop. If children hear you lying or not taking responsibility for your actions, they will certainly think these behaviors are acceptable. Likewise, if they do not learn to be kind and help others, they will not exhibit these behaviors'

Children are likely to live up to what you believe of them."— Lady Bird Johnson, Former First Lady of the United States

What are your ways to make your child a responsible citizen?

Responsible citizenship improves the relations in the society by providing values among each other, thus it increases productivity and helps to achieve financial independence and foster your early retirement.

Life Doesn't Frighten Me

Shadows on the wall Noises down the hall Life doesn't frighten me at all

Bad dogs barking loud Big ghosts in a cloud Life doesn't frighten me at all

Mean old Mother Goose Lions on the loose They don't frighten me at all

Dragons breathing flame On my counterpane That doesn't frighten me at all.

I go boo

Make them shoo
I make fun
Way they run
I won't cry
So they fly
I just smile
They go wild

Life doesn't frighten me at all.

Tough guys fight

Life doesn't frighten me at all.

All alone at night

Panthers in the park Strangers in the dark No, they don't frighten me at all.

A Thought towards the Wellbeing of Children and Elders on World Children's Day from Bank of Ceylon

Te have recently experienced many things and situations that many people living today have not experienced in their lives before. Alongwith these and other experiences, there has been a shift in focus towards giving more attention to the general wellbeing of children and elders in today's society. Having served the country in their prime, elders, as they advance in years spend time with their grand children assisting their families in an invaluable way. On the other hand, the trusting and bubbly nature of children when molded with love, protection and the right education forms the basis of a good citizen, when put together, children and elders build relationships that bring out the best in

Commemorating the World Elders and Children's Day on October 1, 2020. the Bank of Ceylon sends a reminder about the importance of securing the financial future of both to ensure a respectable, blissful life ahead.

"With over 81 years of dedicated service to the nation, Bank of Ceylon has set an unmatched record of being Sri Lanka's No.1 Bank throughout these years and has provided a solid foundation for many generations. With the stability of a state Bank, BOC is the safest option available for anyone to invest in order to secure their future." stated Deputy General Manager Sales and Channel Management Priyal Silva. Ran Kekulu is a children's savings account from Bank of Ceylon which is focused on building a secure future for the child. It offers a wide range of financial and non-financial benefits through Ran Kekulu accounts, which can be operated without any risk.

This account provides an additional 1% interest and offers the account holder hospitalization/ medical insurance charges up to Rs. 100,000/- that covers 10 critical illnesses. Further, an insurance cover is available for the depositor who opens the account up to a maximum of Rs 500,000/-. The depositor becomes eligible for an insurance cover to a maximum of Rs. 1 million if he/she maintains multiple Ran Kekulu accounts depending on the account balance.

Furthermore, 2,000 scholarships worth Rs. 15,000/- each are granted annually to Ran Kekulu account holders that emerge successful at the grade 5 scholarship examination. A minimum balance of Rs. 5,000/- maintained in a Ran Kekulu account qualifies the account holder for most of the privileges mentioned here.

Among the array of banking products and services that is available to cater to the different needs of children, "Power Plus" is an long-term investment plan that ensure the child a fixed amount at the age of 18, stipulated at the very opening of the account provided the account is maintained as agreed by the customer. The uniqueness in this scheme is that parents can actually aim for a specifically targeted balance rather than saving randomly not knowing, what the final balance might be.

The plan can be offered to children of ages between one to fifteen. There are four types of investment plans offered by the bank from Rs.500,000/- and going to as Rs.1 Million, Rs.2 Million and up to Rs.5 Million as the return at maturity which yields an annual interest rate of 8% per annum over the entire investment period.

The account will have to be maintained till the child reaches 18 years of age to obtain this benefit. The investment duration and the monthly installment will vary accordingly to the final amount selected and the age of the child at the starting point. However this investment plan will accommodate children who are younger than 15 years of age in order to meet the minimum investment period required. A parent, guardian or any other individual can open the account on behalf of the child. In the case of no installment being made to the account either consecutively and/or intermittently the Bank will give a concession/grace period up to a maximum of 6 months. If it exceeds the grace period the outstanding will be transferred to a Ran Kekulu account under the name of the child.

The wellbeing of senior citizens is becoming a considerable issue in the country with the aging population. Being a responsible banking partner, BOC wishes to uplift the life of seniors in the society adding more wellbeing in a profound manner that protects the interests of the customer and securing their future prospects.

Bank of Ceylon genuinely believes that their contribution toward the country after their retirement can still be counted and can be utilized for the economic development by empowering as responsible entrepreneurs. With the Pension loan facilities that BOC can provide, they can spend their time more productively and earn a comfortable living they deserve.

Bank of Ceylon's Senior Citizens Account can be considered the safest and the best account offered for senior citizens, which give them the care they deserve to enjoy the evening of their lives. The account offers an interest rate 1% higher than that of a normal savings account.

With the option to convert into a SmartGen account, the customer can maintain the account without a passbook, a free international debit card that is instantly activated will be offered and he/she can also receive the online banking facility free of charge to maintain the account anytime anywhere.

Further information can be obtained through the Bank's website, Facebook page, through twitter, 24 hour call centre via telephone number '1975' or from the Bank's LinkedIn page and from the nearest BOC branch.

As you attempt to forge a better tomorrow it is our duty to help you the children. on your path to support you it is our duty to build a better tomorrow, doing your best we entered this world, from the moment As you have supported us A message from Bank of Ceylon on World Children's and Elders' Day. Helping Kids Maintain a Healthy Body Weight

A Cheat Sheet for Success

When children are young, parents and other caregivers are responsible for providing an environment that helps them maintain a lifestyle that is beneficial to their health. You can help your child by doing the following:

- Be a positive role model for healthful eating and activity habits.
- Provide calm, reassuring atmosphere at regular meal and snack times.
- Set appropriate limits on screen entertainment like television, tablets and video games.
- Involve the whole family in fun physical activities.
- Help children develop and maintain
- a positive body image. · Avoid restrictive diets and excessive exercise regimens. When it comes to nutrition and fitness, the role of parents is the same no matter the size of their children. A healthy weight for kids is about much more than numbers. It is about healthy behaviors, such as enjoying a variety of foods and activities for strength, flexibility and aerobic capacity.

Diets are not the answer

Diets can do more harm than good. Research suggests kids who diet end up weighing more than non-dieters, with lower self-esteem and greater risk for eating disorders. Do not put your child on a diet, especially without consulting your doctor and a registered dietitian nutritionist.

Here are some simple actions adults can take to help children develop positive lifestyle habits. These strategies have been shown to promote a healthy weight for adults,

- Be active by playing together. Kids need at least 60 minutes of daily physical activity. Play with your kids every day. It's fun for them and fun for you too. Consider checking out your local community center for kid-friendly activities. Plan family activities that get everyone moving such as biking, after-dinner walks, basketball or soccer at the park.
- Make family mealtimes a special time together. Eating more meals together can make a big difference in your family's health, happiness and finances. Dinners made at home are less costly than eating out and easier to prepare than you might think.

- Eat breakfast. Go beyond cereal and milk and try something novel. Also, teach kids to use the blender to make their own breakfast smoothie or serve a yogurt bar with low-fat plain or vanilla-flavored yogurt. Add toppings like whole grain cereal, dried fruit and unsalted nuts.
- Don't forbid foods or use food as a reward. Forbidding foods only increases a child's desire for that food. Instead of saying no to your child's favorite food, limit the portion size. Use non-food rewards for good behavior such as stickers or allowing your child to have a friend over to play.
- Dine out responsibly. When dining at a restaurant, look for nutritious options on the children's menu such as a grilled chicken wrap, carrots with dip and fruit. If you order takeout or home delivery, remember that you can add to the meal by serving a glass of low-fat milk or adding a side salad.
- Enjoy a rainbow of fruits and vegetables. Most children beyond age 4 need at least 1½ cups of fruit and 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups of vegetables a day. Serve juicy, crunchy, delicious fruits and vegetables at every meal and snack. Fresh, frozen, dried and canned — all types of produce contribute to good health. You can make produce fun by serving frozen grapes, vegetable kebabs or strawberry-topped frozen yogurt. Some kids dislike bitter or strong flavored veggies so keep it simple by serving steamed broccoli or cauliflower.

Expand raw veggies and dip choices by steaming green beans and zucchini and serving them cold along with baby carrots, celery and cucumbers.

- Encourage mindful eating. Ban screens at meal time and help kids focus on their food by being present at the dinner table. Ask your kids what it feels like to be very hungry, a little bit hungry, comfortably full and uncomfortably full. Discuss the importance of trusting and
- listening to internal body cues. Choose healthful beverages. Soft drinks, fruit punch and fruit drinks contain added sugars which could be displacing nutritious beverages. Offer healthier drinks like plain milk and water instead.
- Remove televisions and video games from bedrooms. Kids who get enough sleep are more likely to maintain a healthy weight and perform better in school. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends no television in children's rooms to reduce screen time and promote healthy sleep

A CLEAR NIGHT

A clear night, my mind said - looking up at the sky
So clear was it that all the clouds - had somewhere slowly disappeared
The nightly breeze was so inviting - under a tree I laid
The moon was happily smiling with me - With its galaxy of stars around
With pearl coloured frills 'sepalika' fairies - were dancing on the tree
Their sweet, unique fragrance was flying around - holding hands with the breeze
Here and there the nightly blossoms - were swaying with the winds
The trembling moonbeams were shedding through - painting designs on the sand.
Big, dark bats were flying and hopping - feasting on our mango tree
With shining back torches the small fire-flies - were zigzagging our rose bushes
So are the glow-worms crawling along - all are searching for a prey
Isn't the night too as busy as day - with nocturnal sights and sounds?
The symphony of the cicadas and nightly insects - were lulling me to a slumber
The soft breeze sweeping through the bushes - was making my eyes feel drowsy
The golden moon looking at me from above - was waving me a good night sleep
The fearful howl of a lonely dog - Made all my visions go wild.

Taking from the quilt
To every corner of the globe.
Swiftly, the light approached me
And replied,
"The light is in you."
Puzzled I
Ran to the mirror
And looked at me in it
To witness the light
Lies in me
Oh!

Big Bad Wolf Book Sale begins today

t is now official. The world's biggest book sale is back in Sri Lanka. Taking an innovative approach, the Big Bad Wolf Book sale 2020 will move to an online platform this year. The Readers Portal live for 24 hours a day from September 30 to October 4. The website was officially launched at a press briefing held in Colombo by Director of ProRead Lanka (Pvt) Ltd. Nishan Wasalathanthri, along with co-founders of the Big Bad Wolf Books Andrew Yap and Jacqueline NG as well as the partner of Big Bad Wolf Book sale Sri Lanka Dipak Madhavan joining the audience through live web conferencing from Malaysia.

The Wolf Pack in Sri Lanka will once again be able to experience the popular 50 - 90% discounts and will have access to three times more book titles with 70% of the titles this year being new. This means that these titles have never been in Sri Lanka before, this is more than in previous editions. Readers of all interests can find bestseller titles, novels, science fiction, romance, literature, graphic novels, business books, self-help, architecture books, cookbooks and many more. The online sale also includes a wide collection of children's books: storybooks, activity books, board books, colouring books, picture books and featured interactive books – all at steeply discounted

The website will give fans a seamless and efficient method of purchasing books right from the comfort of their homes, which is mobilefriendly,making accessibility to the sale an ease. Popular titles that will be showcased include book from the Disney, Star Wars and Harry Potter franchises. A recommendation section on the website will even help readers and non-readers alike choose the books that are right for them, based on their interests. The easy-to-navigate site titles and authors.

"Online sales are common, but online book sales are rare. And taking the world's biggest book sale online is a challenging but exciting task. While key global events scheduled this year have been cancelled due to the pandemic. We did not want to disappoint our fans. The safety of the fans is our top priority – which is the primary reason why the sale is returning via an online platform this year. It is not only to overcome safety concerns but opens a new avenue for customer convenience in Sri Lanka," said Andrew Yap, co-founder of Big Bad Wolf Book sale.

A SANE SOCIETY SANS DRUGS

rug trafficking, distributing and making a mint of money has come to stay as a social evil in quite a number of countries, inclusive of our own. Despite the measures taken to eradicate the evil menace, various types of underground groups known as drug gangs or patalakalli evoke a terrific blow on the day to day life of individuals. The menace has extended its tentacles to the schools as well as bringing disaster to the younger generation. Quite a number of measures have been taken to eradicate and punish the culprits involved.

But how far is it successful?

As I read the bulky Sinhala novel on the subject linked to the subject as written by Major General Kamal Gunaratne (VijithaYapa 2019) titled Patalayo. I felt that in the first instance that the writer has perhaps researched and kept copious notes on the subject in the form of a social scientist. But his collection of material has led the way to creative communicative expression, quite dramatic and perhaps spellbound to the reader. It goes without saying that the literary genres known to us as crime stories detective shown and gangster tales have come to stay glob-

Two-generation storyline

There are also alternative creative measures as observed in the case of some writings of the same calibre. This bulky work as written by Gunaratne, to my reading, could be reckoned as a humble effort and creative measure taken to transcend the mere barriers of these afore cited genres. Gunaratne has taken care to fulfil three factors that go as selecting a two-generation storyline passed on from the father to the son lineage in the form of group activities detrimental to the wellbeing of the society at large.

The storyline too is interspersed into amorous tales as well as lovelornness. The husband-wife filial affinity, the paternal-maternal line as well as vengeance and rivalry between groups. The dialogue utilized throughout the narrative is drawn from the dialect as used in the researched groups of gangs that are not normally found in the traditionbound creative works one finds today. Running to 23 chapters, the very first protagonist in the narrative, Sepala-Mendis, is forced to become an underground drug group leader. He is followed by his own Anjana due to compulsive means of living.

The most significant point is that the father, as well as the son, sees the harmful effect of the drug dealings, but they are forced to be active in it as a result of the instinct that has resulted in an evildoer nature within themselves. Thus the need to encounter a saviour is anticipated. Perhaps it is suggested throughout the work that this underground menace is aided and abetted by unseen forces as well as seen forces beyond one's grasp.

We make our own destiny seems to be the underlying layer of meaning the creative writer wants to pinpoint. The man is now born with a sinful deed in mind. Accordingly, it is the socio-cultural and socio-economic circumstances that erode the sense of evil to the mind. This point is heightened towards the end of the work where the wife of Anjana who is killed by his rivals seen becoming a Buddhist nun shredding off the lustfilled embodiments aside. The difference in the creative genre rises at this

The father gets killed by the rivals followed by the killing of the son by the rival gangsters. The writer has gathered several living episodes from the prisons, courts, public gatherings, gangster behaviour circles, murders and police offices etc. He has also seen fusing the legal and the illegal nuances of business dealers, who engage in the earning and spending sprees in order to bring a temporary pleasurable moment. The writer pares down to the minimum the descriptive nature of writing, giving more vent to the dialogue that creates readability and enhances a page-moving experience.

The underground phenomenon of the revenge process as well as the retaliation processes are recreated to show the extent to which a venomous underground gang culture is formulated as unseen by the lawmakers as well as social reformers. Perhaps knowingly or unknowingly the creative pulse in Gunaratne is seeing anticipating a verve or spiritualism that should be implanted in the minds of all citizens as a grave need for a sane society as suggested by Erich Fromm.

But I am not sure as to what extent this scintillating ideology is made to recreate in Patalayo. There are quite a number of murders. There are quite a number of instances where ill will and anger are made to illuminate, not as a deliberate effort, but as passing events, needed for the development of the narrative into the intended perspective. It looks as if the persuasive crosscurrents of the drug disaster need to be regarded as a compulsory social discourse.

Culminating knowledge

Gunaratne gives the reader structures, nature, and the techniques utilized. It is the responsible opinion leaders who should take the cue from the source in order to transmit the needed information and thence the culminating knowledge. In the reading process, I felt that a severe misplacement comes from the absence of the anti-drug conscience in an opinion-forming manner. Perhaps a creative narrator can afford to miss such shortcoming as it may be an unintended factor.

In contrast to other character portrayals, the two feminine characters of Lucida, the life of the protagonist Sepala and Utpala, the wife of his son Anjana, are epitomes of faith and chastity. The situations they are made to enter are seen as pleasing though the happenings are seen as pitiful and woeful. The spiritual element in the work emerges through them reminding the reader to the long-lasting TheriGatha in Tripitaka and the linked stories that tie them.

From a long angled vision, the work has the tendency to be a trendsetting example. The writer exhibits undoubtedly the knowledgeability in the source material needed for his creativity. It is something akin to firsthand information that has been transferred into creativity required to develop a narrative.

As the narrative unfolds gradually a lapse of about ten years or more is recorded. The characters come and go as some disappear from the scene due to them being killed. Others disappear as they are no more wanted. One such character is Lucida, the wife of Sepala. Then the reader comes to grips with the natural punishment meant to be received by the evildoers. As the writer points out, the givers of social evils cannot live with

They are either made to repent or made to undergo death in the hands of others as an ordeal. As such, the narrative, Patalayo, stresses that no evildoer can afford to live happily. Such a person who has corrupted the power of innocence in a social milieu has to undergo the required punishment. The way out of this suffering is to keep the balance state of mind devoid of being destructive at all levels of living. The tone of expression all in all is light and exquisite.

Historicity represented by creativity

Title: Muslim Sinhala Author: Padmakumar Mettasena

For a writer, a good economic foundation is vital to produce inspiring work, perhaps because good writing takes a lot of energy and time. However, not many writers are as financially strong as they should be, and it is even more difficult to pull it off when fortune is against success. When a fortune-teller told Padmakumar P. Mettasena, author of the book Muslim Sinhala, that he wouldn't be able to finish because of unfavourable planetary positions, he became even more frustrated. Having been through a serious financial crisis, he was already in a bad position and lived in poor conditions; and wanted to leave Colombo to complete the book he always wanted to

Finally, he found a destination that suited him well - the beautiful city of Badulla. There, he was able to turn the tides against fortune and finish his debut novel. The title of the novel itself is provocative and arresting to the reader, but implies more than what it would at first glance. Muslim Sinhala should not be identity; it is rather a book about the complicated social relationships between Muslims, Sinhalese and other ordinary people of Sri Lanka. It is also a depiction of how common vices apply to people from all walks of life. Regardless of whether you are Sinhalese or Muslim, everyone that has lived on this earth retains dark secrets we'd all like to know; and the book is about finding those stories embedded in mystery.

The protagonist, Kashyapa Karunarathne, lives in unfavourable conditions in Maradana, where he befriends gan4sters who give him good advice and pretty women who live double lives. Sometimes, the conditions in his flat worsen to the point where bathing water is mixed with sewer water, and his bath only has him smelling like faeces. During the day, Kashyapa works for a newspaper company in a regular office setting, where journalists, writers and photographers are keen on learning the newest gossip and personal drama that takes place in the office. The protagonist loves gossip as much an ant loves sugar, although significantly, does not share the gossip he hears with anyone besides the reader.

Kashyapa is annoyingly nosy and utterly vigilant about what is happening in his boss's cubicle, as well as the secret affairs of his co-workers. Kashyapa knows that in office environments, everyone is susceptible to vices. Therefore, the readers of the book learn many things about Kashayapa's boss and colleagues, and their

ple lives, Kashyapa's mun- and its policies. The prodane fantasies involve staring at the bodies of women in the office, such as his Business Editor, Aseka; and his fantasies about her sex life give the reader a sexual punch. When it comes to vices and the secret double lives people lead, ethnicity doesn't matter. Let alone the Sinhalese, whom the protagonist can easily fantasise about, but also the `fully-covered' Muslims, who have secrets that readers could never guess. It is fair to say that there aren't many popular Sinhala fiction writers who are keen to write about a subject matter such as heterosexual fantasies. Much of the fiction written in Sinhala nowadays are translations of classics and 'proper fiction', but Mettasena's debut novel calls for the need to have more Sinhala erotic, thriller fiction, at a time when pornography and the internet have destroyed the notion of eroticism from people's minds. Apart from the ethnic element of the story, there is a political dimension that blatantly criticises the previous Yahapalana Government tagonist tells the reader how the Yahapalanava oppressed writers and activists through social media. A passage from the book provides better context for this political dimension. "One hour after sharing his opinion about the Government taking control of the broadcasting tower of a popular TV channel on Facebook, he got a notification to his Android phone that a singer from Australia has sent a friend request to him. After observing the singer's profile, he accepted the friend request and the hell broke loose Overall, Muslim Sinhala is a book that has been successfully adapted to the modern social and political context, although it reminds us of a time when fiction was powerfully visual and appealed to momentary excitement. The 71st Anniversary of the Founding of The People's Republic of China

Message by Chargé d'affaires Hu Wei on the 71st Anniversary of the Founding of the People's Republic of China

H.E. Xi Jinping
President of
The People's Republic of China

On the occasion of the 71st anniversary of the founding of the People's Republic of China, I would like to extend the heartfelt thanks and greetings to all Sri Lankan friends for your longstanding concern and support to the development of China and Sino-Sri Lanka relations.

Last year has been a decisive year for China in securing a moderately prosperous society in all respects and in fighting for poverty alleviation. In 2019, China's GDP reached 14 trillion US dollars, with its per capital

GDP exceeded 10 thousand US dollars. The population living in poverty dropped from about 100 million by the end of 2012 to only about 5 million by the end of 2019, creating a miracle in human history.

Over the past nine months since the outbreak of COVID-19, under the personal command of President Xi Jinping and the strong leadership of the Communist Party of China, the Chinese people have waged a heart-stirring battle against the pandemic, endured an arduous historical test, and made great efforts to reach significant and strategic achievements fighting against the pandemic. At the same time, China has actively fulfilled its international obligations, shared its experience in prevention, control and treatment, and provided tremendous medical and health supplies, making important contributions to the global antipandemic fight, and jointly building a community with a shared future for mankind.

Fighting the deadly coronavirus, China and Sri Lanka have been supporting and helping each other, both well containing the pandemic, and setting a great example of bilateral cooperation for the international community. China will always remember the unreserved support from the Sri Lankan leaders, organizations as well as ordinary citizens at our critical moment. Similarly, after the pandemic broke out in Sri Lanka, Chinese people from all walks of life have donated 75,000 PCR test kits, more than 5 million face masks, 60,000 PPE sets etc to the island nation, and the Chinese side also keeps sharing its experience in fighting the pandemic. The friendship between the two countries has been further strengthened.

Despite the pandemic, China and Sri Lanka have jointly overcome difficulties and pushed forward the development of mega projects as scheduled including the Colombo Port City, the Hambantota Port and Industrial Park, the Central Expressway Phase I, the National Nephrology Hospital and the New Mutwal & Torrington Tunnel Project, providing significant impetus for Sri Lanka to revive its economy and improve people's livelihood. Moreover, the two countries have been working on deepening cooperation in investment, trade, education, governmental aid and people-to-people exchanges, which is believed to inject more energy into our socio-economic development in post-COVID era. During the joint fight against the pandemic, China-Sri Lanka pragmatic cooperation has been lifted to new heights at all dimensions and we are fully confident in the future development of our bilateral relations.

Best wishes to the prosperity of the People's Republic of China! Long live China-Sri Lanka friendship!

How will China shape its development strategy for new stage?

China's development is entering a new stage. This is the latest assessment made by Xi Jinping, general secretary of the Communist Party of China Central Committee, on the future prospects of the world's second-largest economy as it prepares economic and social development plans for the next five years. The next five-year plan, the 14th in a row, is now very much in the spotlight. The plan period (2021-2025) will mark the first five years of China's new journey toward fully building a modern socialist country and marching toward the second centenary goal, according to Xi, who delivered his comments this week at a symposium with experts on economic and social work. How will China navigate this new stage of development? What will China's economic and social roadmap be in post-epidemic era? Here are some takeaways from the symposium.

FORWARD-LOOKING PLANNING

Drawn up every five years since 1953, the five-year plan is a major feature of China's governance system, setting growth targets and defining economic and social development policies to ensure national strategies keep pace with the times. At the symposium this week, Xi, reiterating that the world is undergoing profound changes unseen in a century, stressed the adoption of a long-term perspective, grasping the trend of the times and extensively pooling wisdom to study new circumstances and make new plans.

To reflect the forward-looking vision, when the Communist Party of China Central Committee meets in October to outline the 14th Five-Year Plan, a longerterm vision for 2035 will also be put up for discussion, envisioning a period during which the country's socialist modernization is expected to be basically achieved. Experience has shown that conducting mid- to long-term planning would allow the market to play a decisive role in the allocation of resources, while allowing the government to play a better role, Xi said at the symposium

"The 14th Five-Year Plan will be a critical plan, drawn up at a critical time," said Wang Changlin, president of the Academy of Macroeconomic Research of the National Development and Reform Commission, who attended the symposium. China should be fully aware of both the increasingly complicated external environment and its distinctive advantages, staying strategically focused and preparing for a "protracted war," said Wang.

AN OPEN DUAL CIRCULATION

First introduced in May this year, the new development pattern known as "dual circulation", which takes the domestic market as the mainstay while letting domestic and foreign markets boost each other, has been placed high on the authorities' agenda. Describing the new pattern as a "strategic choice," Xi said it is by no means a closed domestic loop, but an open dual circulation that involves both the domestic and foreign markets. He also reaffirmed that opening-up is a fundamental national policy, noting that China will see its status continue to rise in the world economy, with closer ties, and the country will provide more extensive market opportunities for other Lu Ming, a professor with Shanghai Jiaotong University who was another speaker at the symposium, said Xi's remarks have sent a clear signal dispelling concerns that China will shift its focus from opening-up to the domestic market.

Rather, Chinese policymakers are fully aware of the importance of further openingup and are determined to follow the path of reform, he said.

The new development pattern, with the domestic market being the mainstay, is in line with China's efforts to expand domestic demand in the past decade, according to Jia Kang, chief of the China Academy of New Supply-side Economics.

Taking the domestic market as the mainstay does not mean zero exports, but greater volatilities and uncertainties in foreign trade within an unstable international environment, said Jia, emphasizing that China's status as the "world's factory" will not be changed.

INNOVATION AS KEY

In pursuing the new development pattern, scientific and technological innovation, especially making breakthroughs in core technologies, is widely regarded as the key to shaping domestic circulation.

At the symposium, Xi underscored creating new growth momentum through scientific and technological innovation, vigorously enhancing the capability to conduct innovation independently, and achieving breakthroughs in key and core technologies as soon as possible.

To this end, he urged giving full scope to enterprises as the main actors in technological innovation, and vigorously cultivating and introducing world-class talent and scientific research teams.

Innovation-driven development on technological fronts perfectly fits the needs of creating the dual-circulation pattern with the domestic market as the mainstay, said Lu, who noted that development propelled by domestic demand will

Echoing Xi's call, Robin Li, chairman and CEO of China's internet giant Baidu, pledged to share the company's data and computing power with millions of developers and partners to push for an industrial upgrade.

"By being creative and helping them solve problems and encourage innovation, we can stimulate the vitality of the (company's) ecological chain," said Li.

With 40-year miracle in Shenzhen, China's reform and opening-up set for new start

Source: Xinhua Editor: Huaxia

Source: Xinhua

Editor: Huaxia

Shenzhen's success is an epitome of China's 40-plus years of reform and opening-up, a fundamental national policy that has created a miracle of rapid development and long-term social stability.

When China established the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone 40 years ago, overseas critics had cast doubt on its future.

Forty years later, the once small coastal village has developed into a metropolis housing 13 million with its GDP hitting 2.69 trillion yuan (about 388.89 billion U.S. dollars).

The valuable development experience the southern city of Shenzhen has gained since 1980 is critical for other areas' reform to draw lessons from. Moreover, its development has offered the world a glimpse of the vitality of China's progress and its commitment to reform and opening-up.

Today, Shenzhen houses eight Fortune 500 companies, including Huawei, Tencent and China Merchants Bank, ranking the third on the Chinese mainland in terms of the number of such enterprises. Meanwhile, the city is regarded as an 'engine" for the Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area's development into a vibrant world-class city cluster.

The city's success is not accidental. It is an epitome of China's 40-plus years of reform and opening-up, a fundamental national policy that has created a miracle of rapid development and long-term social stability. China will not stop or reverse the process. The process can rather only be accelerated, providing certainty to the world in a period of change unseen in a century.

China's reform and opening-up has come to a new stage. The challenges it now faces are no less complex or difficult than they were 40 years ago. Reform has entered a "deep water" zone with deep institutional and mechanism barriers to be done away with. China will also face more and more headwinds in the external environment as globalization has encountered resistance from protectionism and unilateralism.

In this case, Shenzhen harbors great hopes to break new ground for reform as "a pilot demonstration area of socialism with Chinese characteristics." The market-oriented allocation of factors, optimization of business environment, overall utilization of urban space, to name a few, are Shenzhen's leading attempts amid China's efforts to promote overall reform.

Like the opening-up spirit Shenzhen embraces in its development, China is ready to create a comprehensive, multi-level and diversified open cooperation pattern. The country will cooperate with all countries, regions and enterprises willing to cooperate with China, including states, local governments and enterprises of the United States.

Deepening reform will tap the potential of domestic demand. Raising the level of opening-up will facilitate better connectivity between domestic and foreign markets. China will see its status continue to rise in the world economy with closer ties, and the country will provide more extensive market opportunities for other countries, becoming a huge magnet attracting international commodities

At a new start after the 40-year miracle, China will pool greater wisdom and courage to grasp the trend of the times. Reform and opening-up has no "perfect tense" but only a "progressive tense." Skepticism of this commitment will only lead to a missed opportunity of sharing its fruits.

China Focus: Xinjiang sees higher growth of Uygur population

URUMQI, Sept. 4 (Xinhua) -- The Uygur population in northwest China's Xinjiang Uygur Autonomous Region rose by 2.55 million to 12.72 million in the eight years from 2010 to 2018, an increase of 25.04 percent, according to local authorities.

The Uygur population's growth is higher than that of other ethnic groups in the region, census figures released by the regional government showed. During the same period, the Han ethnic group population increased 2 percent to 9 million in the region.

The Uygur population in Xinjiang was about 3 million in 1953 when the country conducted its first census. The current Uygur population is four times that number in the region.

The ethnic group's birth rate from 2010 to 2018 was 11.9 per 1,000 people, higher than the total population's 10.69 per 1,000 and the Han ethnic group's 9.42 per 1,000, according to Tursunnay Abudurayim, an official from the Statistics Bureau of Xinjiang.

"The reproductive and health rights of ethnic minorities including Uygurs have been protected," she said.

In 1975, Xinjiang began to implement family planning policy in the capital city of Urumqi and other cities with large Han populations, and began fully implementing the policy among the Han ethnic group in 1981.

According to a family planning guideline released by the region in 1992, Han couples in urban areas can have one child and those in rural areas can have two children; ethnic minority couples can have two children in urban areas and three in rural areas.

Alongside economic and social development as well as the desire to have children from all ethnic groups, Xinjiang began to implement a unified family planning policy in 2017. According to the new regulations, couples in cities and towns in the region can have two children and couples in rural areas can have three children.

"For a period of time, the population of Xinjiang grew too rapidly, resulting in serious shortages of water resources and arable land due to limited natural resources, and placing excessive financial and support burdens on many families. The pressure from rapid population growth has been eased since the implementation of the family planning policy," said Mutalip Ruz, head of the region's health commission.

"The maternal mortality rate in Xinjiang dropped from 43.41 per 100,000 in 2010 to 26.65 per 100,000 in 2018, and the infant mortality rate declined from 26.58 per 1,000 to 14.02 per 1,000," said Mutalip Ruz, adding that health care for women and children in Xinjiang has been continuously improved.

Anargul Wubul, a 25-year-old Uygur woman, has been running a her friends in Kashgar since graduating from college.

"I won't get married at the age of 16 or 17 like my grandmother and mother. I want to pursue my painting dream and decide on my own life, just like women in big cities," she said.

The People's Republic of China by Nalin Aponso 71 years of commitments and Glory of Humanity

Our greatest glory is not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall, ~ Confucius

This year, we are commemorating the 75th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, the world body established after the end of World War II. At its General Assembly, which began a few days ago, Chinese President Xi Jinping explained China's national policy more sensibly and rationally. The Chinese President also briefed the gathering on the path of the United Nations and China's commitment to its objectives.

We have records that show some member states as an alliance cynically manipulated the United Nations to achieve their narrowminded goals. But, China has always stood for the defence of the core principles and objectives of the United Nations. Instead of using the United Nations as a tool to build bridges between nations. some member states have plunged the world into tragedy. It is no secret that some member states of the UN Security Council have also abused their veto power. Instead of building international cooperation, those countries engaged in unjust international intervention and a series of genocides. We have lost a large number of innocent lives as a result of such inhuman catastrophes. Looking back over 75 years, there are far more sad events than can be happy.

But the social and political changes that have taken place in China over the past 75 years have been conducive to the betterment of the common people. It led to a gradual change in the existing world order. That is why the 71st anniversary of the founding of the Peoples' Republic of China is important. That path of commitment set by China overcoming many obstacles and challenges was a precedent for the world. No doubt, it is an exemplary experience and fascinating event of humanity. It is important to quote a few thoughts expressed by Chinese President Xi Jinping at the general debate of the UN General Assembly. The President spoke about the importance of multiculturalism in the international arena and China's contribution to it. The President says that.

"COVID-19 is a major test of the governance capacity of countries; it is also a test of the global governance system. We should stay true to multilateralism and safeguard the international system with the UN at its core. Global governance should be based on the principle of extensive consultation, joint cooperation and shared benefits so as to ensure that all countries enjoy equal rights and opportunities and follow the same rules. The global governance system should adapt itself to evolving global political and economic dynamics, meet global challenges and embrace the underlying trend of peace, development and win-win cooperation. It is natural for countries to have differences. What's important is to address them through dialogue and consultation. Countries may engage in competition, but such competition should be positive and healthy in nature. When in competition, countries should not breach the moral standard and should comply with international norms. In particular, major countries should act like major countries. They should provide more global public goods, take up their due responsibilities and live up to people's expectations.

Meanwhile, talking about the international corporation President Xi has elaborated the Chinese contributions for peace and social order to ensure the safety of every person on the planet

"China will continue to work as a builder of global peace, a contributor to global development and a defender of international order. To support the UN in playing its central role in international affairs, I hereby announce the following steps to be taken by China:

China will provide another US$50 million to the UN COVID-19 Global Humanitarian Response Plan. China will provide US$50 million to the China-FAO South-South Cooperation Trust Fund (Phase III). China will extend the Peace and Development Trust Fund between the UN and China by five years after it expires in 2025. China will set up a UN Global Geospatial Knowledge and Innovation Center and an International Research Center of Big Data for Sustainable Development Goals to facilitate the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development," he said.

As we know, it was decided to open China in 1979 under the leadership of Deng Xiaoping. Many then criticized his policies. But over the years, his radical changes proved successful. In about 40 years, China has lifted more than 800 million people out of poverty. As you know, China announced a few days ago that it would completely eradicate poverty by the end of this year, 2020. President Xi taking China and her people to the next level where no Chinese will suffer from poverty but every Chinese man and woman will have a respective and meaningful life. What a remarkable achievement of humanity. It is indeed the glory of

We are sincerely pleased with the great achievements of China as the members of Sri Lanka China Journalists' Forum (SLCJF) in Sri Lanka. It is noteworthy to mention that the SLCIF is one of 35 foreign journalists' organizations. Together, we work for the success of one of China's largest global development initiative, the Belt and the Road. We will always work to make accurate and truthful information available to the world. It is sad to notice that many manipulated and untruth reports against China are wide-spreading to achieve petty political objectives of certain parties. Therefore, we have already made pioneering bilateral contributions to ensure sustainable corporation between Sri Lanka and China. It will be further strengthened in the future. Our forum and the All-China Journalists Association have already jointly launched several programs to protect and promote our historic relationship goes back to the ancient eras. As I mentioned earlier, we all know that Sri Lanka is an ancient friend of China. The friendship between us goes back centuries. The roots of this historical friendship are very strong and spread over a wide range. I must recall that China did not hesitate to extend its heartfelt help to Sri Lanka every time a disaster struck Sri Lanka. In 2004, the humanitarian role that China played in our country during the tsunami disaster was immense. We also commend China's generous support in eradicating the Covid 19 pandemic that has lagued the entire world over the past few months.

We are overcoming extraordinary challenges due to Covid-19 pandemic. As a media organisation with humane sense, the SLCJF supported the Chinese approach against this pandemic. Our forum provided a stock of face masks to China. We organized a series of special Buddhist religious programs at Buddhist temples in Colombo to pray for the Chinese government and people to overcome the challenges posed by the pandemic. Simultaneously, a series of special religious programs were organized in several Catholic, Christian, Islamic, and Hindu places of worship for the speedy recovery of those affected by the pandemic.

Meanwhile, we as the pioneering media organization in Sri Lanka, I consider it is a privilege to have our forum join hands with a renowned university for a unique media exchange program between the two countries. The signed Memorandum Understanding (MoU) is a great assistance to journalists engaged in journalism in this country to develop their careers. I am pleased that a significant number of journalists have already had the opportunities to visit China and learn about the latest developments in the field of journalism.

It is gratifying to note that bilateral cooperation between Sri Lanka and China is flourishing day by day. It is a matter of pride that this sincere friendship has been strengthened, despite some bogus accusations and criticisms through various false propaganda machinery. As we celebrate the 71st anniversary of the founding of the People's Republic of China, I once again wish that the Sri Lanka-China friendship will be further strengthened. We wish to extend our congratulations to President Xi Jinping and his team, the Chinese people and our media friends in China who are celebrating the 71st anniversary of their country working for a brighter future for mankind. There is much to brag about!

Located at the junction of China, Southeast Asia and South Asia, Yunnan serves as China's gateway to Southeast and South Asian countries. As one of the most neighbored provinces of China, Yunnan borders 3 countries of Myanmar, Viet Nam and Laos, has direct access to Thailand and Cambodia via the Lancang-Mekong River, and sits in close vicinity of countries like Malaysia, Singapore, India and Bangladesh.

As early as 2,000 years ago, the Southern Silk Road, which meandered from Sichuan to Yunnan and further extended to Myanmar, India and the western world, was already an important pathway for ancient China's outbound transport, trade and cultural exchanges and made great contribution to world civilization. In modern times, the renowned Stilwell Road and the Hump Flight also crossed the territory of Yunnan.

The province is often renowned as "Colorful Yunnan", thanks to its diversity in landform, topography, climate, biological species, mineral resources, ethnicity, folk culture, religion, and economic forms.

Thanks to rich biological resources, minerals and energy reserves, Yunnan is famed as Kingdom of Flora, Kingdom of Fauna and Kingdom of Non-Ferrous. Besides, Yunnan is famous at home and abroad for unique highland landscapes, glamorous tropical and subtropical sceneries in border areas and iridescent ethnic culture. As an international tourist destination, the province offers numerous places of interests. At present, there are 5 world heritage sites in Yunnan.

Yunnan, situated in one of the best tea-producing regions in the world (close to 23.5°N with an altitude of 1500-2000 m), is renowned as the cradle of tea plantation. The province is in a good position to develop its tea industry with the following strengths: unique tea varieties (such as the broad-leaf varieties and a large number of ancient tea trees); top-class Pu'er tea (featuring the post-fermentation process and long-lasting fragrance that improves with age); beautiful and enabling environment for tea cultivation; rich and colorful ethnic tea culture; and a sound foundation for the development of tea industry.

Flowers.* Floriculture (including the production of cut flowers, potted flowers, garden ornamental plants, edible processed flowers) is an uprising industry in Yunnan, linking flower production with life improving and ecology conservation. As the most representative industry of modern plateau agriculture, cut flower continues to rank the first in China in terms of its scale and production for 24 years in a row.

Fruits: Yunnan stands as the gateway towards South and Southeast Asia. Endowed with vertical climate, Yunnan is in a good position to produce season-staggered fruit products. Products from Yunnan are of great quality. The fruit industry in Yunnan is developing rapidly. It is on its way to become an important fruit production region in China. Yunnan aims to make the fruit industry one of the best in the world. To promote fruit products from Yunnan in the international market, Yunnan will establish the China-ASEAN Fruit Trading Center, making it the largest fruit trading hub both in China and ASEAN countries.

Vegetables: The planting area of vegetables remains the largest among other cash crops in Yunnan province. It is a traditional industry with distinctive features and sound industrial base. The vegetable-growing sector in Yunnan has played an irreplaceable role in the Southto-North and West-to-East vegetable transportation projects.

Nut products mainly include almonds, walnuts, pistachios, cashews, hazelnuts, American pecans, macadamia nuts, pine nuts and so on, among which walnuts and macadamia nuts are the most well-known in Yunnan Province. The Provincial Party Committee in Yunnan and the local government are committed to the development of the nut industry which can benefit 26.223 million residents in mountainous regions. Besides, the nut industry plays a decisive role in some projects such as rural revitalization, targeted poverty alleviation, the promotion of green food as well as the social stability.

Coffee: Yunnan is endowed with sound natural conditions for the cultivation of Arabica coffee and a time-honored history. After nearly 70 years of development, Yunnan has become the largest coffee cultivation region and a center for trade and export of coffee in China. "Yunnan Coffee" is aiming to embrace the world, create a "green brand" and improve the competitiveness of its coffee product in the international market. Besides, it also aims to build Yunnan into an important coffee producing area in the world, a main deep-processing base and a coffee trading center in Asia.

Traditional Chinese Medicinal Flerbs: Yunnan, renowned as the kingdom of plants ever since ancient times, is famous for genuine Chinese medicinal herbs. The favourable geographic and climate conditions has made Yunnan a homeland of medicinal herbs. According to statistics, of the 5000 types of Chinese medicine herbs used in China, over 3500 come from Yunnan. The traditional Chinese medicinal herb industry is developing rapidly. The scale of cultivation ranks the first in the country.

Beef Gattle: Yunnan is endowed with vast grassland, rich forage and abundant feed resources. It features the independently raised "Yunlin cattle", as well as other 15 local beef cattle breeds. Yunnan boasts large beef cattle inventory, unique climatic and ecological conditions and geographical advantages for the development of beef cattle industry. The world's beef supply falls slightly short of demand. This provides a huge market for the development of beef cattle industry in Yunnan. The beef cattle industry is a competitive traditional industry in Yunnan province.

China Focus: With spirit of sacrifice, medics dedicate themselves to saving lives

Peng Zhiyong, director of the department of critical care medicine of Zhongnan Hospital affiliated to Wuhan University, was busy as always despite the waning of the COVID-19 epidemic in

At the beginning of the year, 53-year-old Peng led nearly 200 medical workers to fight against the virus on the front line in hardhit Wuhan, capital of central China's Hubei Province.

Since the COVID-19 outbreak, a great number of medical workers have raced against time and fought tenaciously against the virus, risking their own lives to save the lives of others with total devotion.

HEROES IN HEROIC CITY

It was his third time working on the front lines battling a major epidemic following the fight against SARS in 2003 and avian influenza in 2016.

"As a doctor, I must always maintain respect and concern for life and never give up on any patient," Peng said. "Wherever there are patients, we too are there. Especially in the face of major disasters, we should rush to the front," said Peng. "It is our responsibility."

"Facing COVID-19, none of my colleagues retreated. Many young doctors who were about to get married or who had little kids at home nevertheless continued their work on the front lines," he added.

With an incurable disease, Zhang Dingyu, head of Wuhan's designated coronavirus-treating Jinyintan Hospital, has been a hero to many over the past months.

Diagnosed with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), he will progressively lose muscle strength, eventually becoming paralyzed and unable to speak, move, swallow or even breathe. But the 56-yearold doctor, along with his colleagues, have treated and saved more than 2,800 COVID-19 patients, many of whom were severely or critically ill.

Last week, Zhang was awarded the national honorary title "the People's Hero" for his outstanding contributions in the fight against COVID-19.

"I never thought about being a hero. Everyone has made sacrifices and contributions (in this battle). I'm just one of them," said Zhang, also deputy director of the Hubei Provincial Health Commission.

Thanks to the devotion and contribution of millions of medical workers like Peng and Zhang, by the end of May, of the cumulative total of 83,017 confirmed cases reported on the Chinese mainland, 78,307 had been cured and discharged from hospital. This equates to a cure rate of 94.3 percent, according to the white paper "Fighting COVID-19: China in Action" released by the State Council Information Office.

FRONT LINES ACROSS BORDERS

Xu Yonghao, an intensivist with the First Affiliated Hospital of Guangzhou Medical University in south China, has spent the past year accumulating unforgettable memories.

In June last year, Xu was sent to Nyingchi in southwest China's Tibet Autonomous Region for medical assistance. However, the COVID-19 epidemic disrupted his plan on the plateau and Xu returned to Guangzhou to join the fight on Jan. 25, the first day of the Chinese New Year.

"As medical personnel, we must be on the front lines," he said.

Xu had been working hard to treat critically ill patients, then he was sent to the cities of Shenzhen and Zhuhai in Guangdong Province to participate in consultations, while at the same time he was helping medics in Hubei Province via telemedicine.

On March 7, Xu joined the medical expert team organized by the Red Cross Society of China and flew to Iraq to assist the country with its fight against COVID-19.

"It's our mission to heal the wounded and rescue the dying," said Xu. "No matter at home or abroad, I will go wherever I am

SAVING LIVES AS NEW LIFE ARRIVES

As the cluster of COVID-19 infections related to Beijing's Xinfadi wholesale market wanes, Chen Changming, who has worked at Nanyuan Hospital in Fengtai District for five months, can finally take a moment to hug his wife and newborn daughter.

The new cluster started in June, when Chen's wife was about to give birth, while Chen entered the hospital's isolation ward to work for over a month in a high-risk environment.

As a doctor of traditional Chinese medicine, Chen made full use of his expertise and prepared granules with antipneumonia effects with his colleagues for medics and patients.

On June 21, Chen celebrated his first Father's Day at the ward. His wife Zhou Siqi gave birth to a daughter. She had returned to her hometown in Hubei in advance, to allow him to concentrate on his job.

Chen said he was elated to see his wife and daughter both doing well through a video call, but felt sorry for not being there with her.

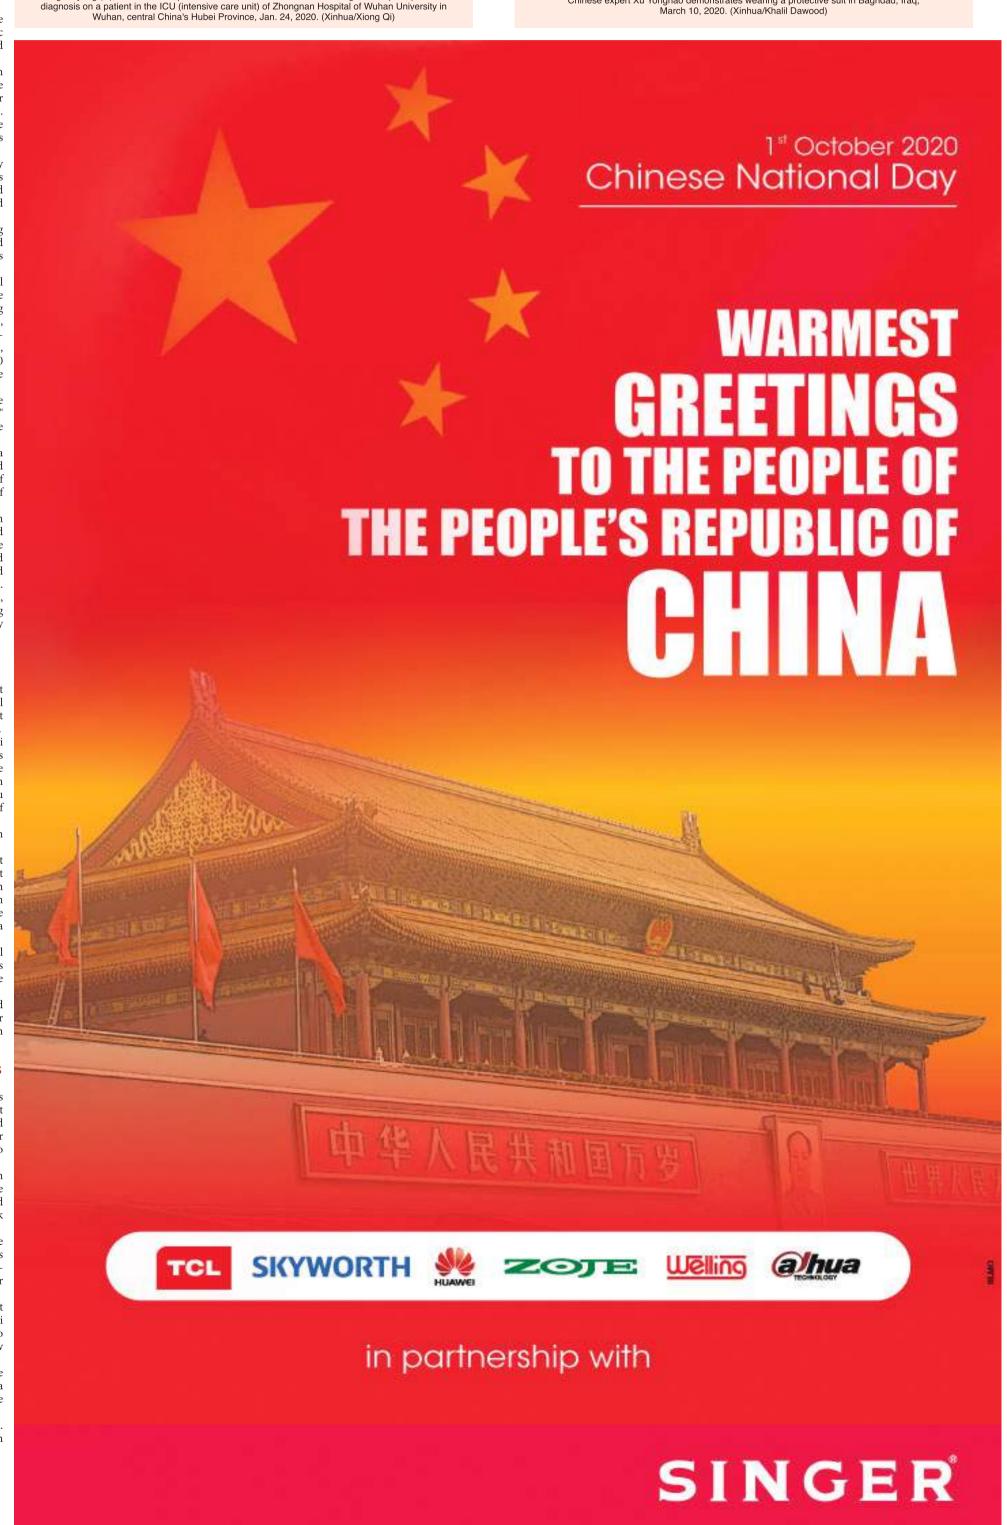

"I know he was saving lives," said Zhou. "I feel that I was fighting the epidemic with Tong is a vice president of Beijing Chao-yang Hospital and an expert of the National Health Commission medical treatment group. He was among the first batch of respiratory and critical illness experts who arrived in Wuhan to assist local doctors in their fight against COVID-19.

After three months of continuous work in Wuhan, he traveled to Heilongjiang, Jilin, Qingdao and Beijing to guide epidemic treatment, and saved a large number of critically ill patients' lives.

Tong was born in Hubei Province and studied in Wuhan when he was young. During his stay in Wuhan amidst the pandemic, he was too busy to spare time to visit his parents, who live in a two-hour drive away from Wuhan.

His mother, with full understanding of the nature of his profession, reassured

His mother, with full understanding of the nature of his profession, reassured him through Wechat that, "You are here to save and rescue the people in your hometown amid the pandemic. We will stay at home and not go out in order to reduce the risk. Please do not worry about us and focus on your work."

It is a daily routine for members of the expert team to check on dozens of critically ill patients and travel between numbers of hospitals in different areas during the pandemic. Tong once went to the Dabieshan Medical Center in Huanggang City for an inspection. He entered the quarantine wards at 10 a.m. and did not leave the wards until 6 p.m., treating more than 60 patients.

Tong has been working in the respiratory and critical care field for 32 years.

Since he started working in the respiratory department, he has always been on the frontline to treat critically ill patients. Tong felt satisfied and happy each time he saved patients' lives. His dedication to saving lives serves as a role model for all doctors.

China set Aug. 19 as its Medical Workers' day to call for respect from society for the country's medical and health workers. To mark the 3rd Medical Workers' Day, Tong wrote down a message saying "respecting life is to rescue life."

Most men die of their remedies, and not of their illnesses – Moliere

K. C. SOMARATNA

Jim Collins-author of Good to Great and Prof. Morten E. Hansen of University of California at Berkley wrote the book "Great by choice" based on research they had done on two sets of companies in same industries to highlight what made one set achieve remarkablesuccess over a certain time span, while the other set achieved only mediocre success. Book highlights how the more successful companies demonstrated (1) Fanatic Discipline, (2) Empirical Creativity and (3) Productive Paranoia driven by a Level 5 combination to achieve these results and also mentions how South West Airlines'Specific, Methodical and Consistent (SMaC) approach made them achieve remarkable success in their industry category during a tough period for airline industry in general.

uthors put this caption from Moliere – ironically a French playwright – as this particular chapter's title and it straightaway reminded me of Paris Accord. We would like to see Sri Lanka getting into the list of countries which tackled Climate Change in an exemplary fashion – 10 X type category in the authors' jargon.

We believe that when we established ISO 9001 systems at more than 125 companies in Sri Lanka including the best award winning ones, from 1994 onwards, we established Specific, Methodical and Consistent (SMaC) management processes in those companies and they reap benefits by being at the top even to-day. It is this same SMaC mindset we have practiced for the last 25 years which made Arjuna Somaratna, our director, play that pivotal role in formulating SLS 1672 – the only Covid 19 Safety Management Standard in the world to restart the Sri Lankan business community in the aftermath of Covid 19.

Where are we vis-a-vis Paris Accord

I think Paris Accord has left us, small and medium sized economy countries at the mercy of climate change after spending 20 years of time and billions of dollars on research and modelling without telling us what we, at different locations on the earth, should do in order to save ourselves from climate change.

During that 20 year period, they have told us to undertake reforestation to absorb excess CO2, different countries generate. Ironically in Sri Lanka, are we currently engaged in reforestation? They have diagnosed that climate change is due to temperature increases resulting from non-water vapour greenhouse gases we generate around the world. Now we have to take over our salvation with this amount of awareness. They have analysed what lies on our planet earth almost in full, noticed CO2content and temperature as the most fundamental attributes which could upset the balance in the climate system. This logic is very clear and accurate in the absence of anthropogenic perturbations when the planet Earth's orbit around sun will determine temperatures and lead to precipitation and wind. Even when only anthropogenic perturbation is due to CO2, this logic is right as only way precipitation & wind could be impacted is via temperature. But the moment anthropogenic perturbations include Newly Formed Water (NFW) due to hydrogen in fossil fuels, oil & gas, this NFW could influence temperature, precipitation and wind on its own.

Tackling Climate Change on our own

It is in this context that we have been asked to submit our own programs/suggestions to overcome climate change in our countries. So, I believe we should stand up to this challenge and work out our own work programs based on climate change facts. In doing so, we could adopt guidelines suggested by Collins and Hansen and due to generic nature of these guidelines, we should be able to make use of them in this context as well.

What attracted me to this SMaC approach is its ability to show us how climate change could be brought under control. We all agree to-day,that climate change is due to the incessant craving of mankind for more & more energy. So, to get over this issue we need to identify a Specific, Methodical and Consistent way of obtaining energy. Fortunately for all of us, there is such a SMaC Method available which could be applied in country after country and it could yield us the results we are looking for.

FirstDriving Force – Fanatic Discipline

Fanatic Discipline is a crucial need for the initiative and lack of this contributed significantly to poor performance of IPCC. Climate Science is such a vast area that one could easily get distracted towards study of many other issues at the expense of not pursuing issue at hand.

We want to reduce/eliminate climate change in respect of key climate parameters due to anthropogenic activities. This implies identifying key parameters - temperature, precipitation and windand these would vary with latitude as well as longitude. The anthropogenic activities to be considered will be energy generation, industry, transportation, agriculture, forestry and others. There could be many others; but their contributions would be much less. We need this Fanatic Discipline to limit ourselves to these more significant crucial issues. Organizations like IPCC would have resources extracted from poor countries like us, to divert their attention to these items at the periphery; but we as a small country would not have such resources and thus need to be Fanatically Disciplined to limit ourselves only to significant issues.

One very important aspect that needs reminding ourselves about, over and over again is the fact that we are defending ourselves against a ruthless,incorruptible – I reemphasize, reiterate ruthless and incorruptible – force of nature which cannot be influenced in any manner whatsoever. The other aspect is that it could catch your grandchildren even if you escape their wrath. So do not ever think that you can fool this nature, bribe this nature and quietly move away. So, it will be good to remind ourselves over and over again that if we want to succeed – there is no other option available – we need to be Fanatically Disciplined.

One very important aspect that needs reminding ourselves about, over and over again is the fact that we are defending ourselves against a ruthless, incorruptible – I reemphasize, reiterate ruthless and incorruptible – force of nature which cannot be influenced in any manner whatsoever. The other aspect is that it could catch your grandchildren even if you escape their wrath. So do not ever think that you can fool this nature, bribe this nature and quietly move away

A visualized sketch of solar panels to be fixed on the autobahn in Germany given in overseas media

Second Driving Force - Empirical Creativity

The second driving force is the beauty of the whole methodology – Empirical Creativity. In the first one we were on a restrictive mood and saying no to almost everything. This is there to open us out and driving us forward meeting whatever challenges that come our way. This gives us confidence of being able to solve the issues and take mankind/countries forward. It will create confidence in our ability to move forward. If not for this, the whole methodology would become shying away from all futuristic activities.

Fortunately for mankind, there are enough and more solutions for climate change with varying degrees of probability for success and degrees of success. It is left to scientist community of the country to identify most appropriate mitigation

If you look at the world scenario, one would see a whole heap of creative solutions suggested ranging from building walls along the coast line to establishing solar reflectors in space. But countries like ours cannot think about such projects and empiricism should be a key issue that need to be considered.

Third Driving force

- Productive Paranoia This is the driving force which will not allow you to rest and relax. This force is more relevant to climate change than to any other organizational motivation. In most other corporate types of situations, the paranoia will be in respect of the company failing to achieve the expectations of stakeholders; but when it comes to climate change, paranoia will be about drought or severe floods impacting an entire part of a country or nearly what happened to Puerto Rico. Having the Paranoia itself is not enough; but it should lead to a productive mind set aimed towards identifying a solution for same. This feeling of Productive Paranoia should always be bothering those who are working on solutions for climate

Remedies, Solutions, Productive Paranoia

It is the nature of problem we face today, climate change and that there is always the possibility of mistakenly identifying a solution which will aggravate the problem and Moliere may be spot on. The irony is that already we have tried/ are trying two solutions which will definitely aggravate and both of them are in the name of Paris Accord to pay homage to motherland of Moliere. We will outline each one of them below and will indicate why we classify them so.

(1) Replacement of coal by natural gas as a solution for climate change. USA has been promoting gas to replace both coaland oil believing that higher ratio of H/C will reduce Climate Change. But, water vapour formed during combustion of gas containing more H2 per unit of energy generated was overlooked in the process. This is the solution suggested in International Energy Agency documentation in order to keep CO2 concentrations down beyond 2030/2035 and Paris Accord will have to promote it in the absence of another solution.

As we have mentioned in many articles in the papers, this NFWvapour arising from combustion of gas will create unbearable precipitation, if nothing else. It will be bearable, if NFW comes down in the same gradual distributed fashion as it enters atmosphere so harmless and soothing it could be; but issue is that it accumulates both spatially and temporally and comes down at locations where it cannot be withstood.

This NFW emittedfrom a power plant or an automobile will be at much higher temperature than normal water vapour entering the atmosphere from irrigation, agriculture. Trans-evaporation or from Water Bodies to keep atmospheric temperature down. These types of water vapourmay enter at 600C the most. But NFW will enter the atmosphere at temperatures ranging from 850C from a well-tuned automobile to 2000C for a power plant or even more. These different streams will rise to different altitudes and their residence times will depend on these altitudes.

And then this water vapour condenses and it gives out its latent heat. This aspect has a number of influences on our climate. First this latent heat given out could be an important source of energy in development of thunderstorms.

Then this latent heat will also increase temperature of that layer of atmosphere. If we can have only these two thermal effects without all the disasters attached to condensation – increased precipitation, cyclones, flooding, landslides—it would have been acceptable. On the other hand, till this condensation takes place, the greenhouse gas effect due to water vapour would have been unbearable.

(2) The other solutions they are contemplating are called geoengineering solutions or solar radiation management solutions. Some of these are planned for the stratosphere like (a) fixing large mirrors or (b) spraying Sulphur dust meant to reduce the amount of solar radiation reaching the earth. Each one of these would involve many uncertainties and scientists themselves are divided as to the effectiveness of the procedure.

Then there are those other processes meant for more earthly involvement like enhancing the fraction of solar radiation reflected by clouds or waves on the oceans. But each one of these would involve very large investments and hence progress on them could be very slow.

SMaC Solution

When one considers all these aspects, what we – driven by (i) a level 5 ambition to put up a solution for climatechange, (ii) the Fanatic Discipline to never vacillate from the objective of finding the solution, (iii) the Empirical Creativity of linking the solution to where most energy is wasted and (iv) Productive Paranoia of never relaxing nor thinking that things could improve on their own – have developed as solution for climate change, a Specific, Methodical and Consistent Solution. It is our strongest opinion that it would be a far more SMaC solution for a much larger distribution of countries and locations than any other solution suggested for climate change so far.

The solution suggested is what we call Highway Solarisation defined as "A dedicated infrastructure to generate electricity for powering battery electric vehicles or the Grid using solar energy collected by PV solar panels installed along and above the highways as a solution for climate change". Definitely It is specific, as the source of energy to be used – solar energy -- is specified; type of technology --Highway Solarisation -- is specified; where to lay the PV solar panels –along and above highways -- is specified; what to do with energy is specified – power BEVs or the main grid. There is only one thing not specified, which is the angle of elevation of solar panel. This again could be specified at 00 to the horizontal. While it will not yield the maximum amount of energy for the particular location for a given PV Solar panel, the ease of cleaning – especially the snow that falls on it at certain latitudes - cost of construction, etc. might make this zero inclination the most appropriate one.

The most important aspect of this solution is that its Specificity nor its Consistency would bring any disadvantages when we move from one country to another. When it comes to other sources of energy, one would not see this ability. Take for example, case of fossil fuels, for Sri Lanka at 70N it is better to use natural gas than coal, because if not our ground water will evaporate and move towards 300N. But for a country at around 300N, this may not be the case since they would be getting more water vapor from the south. So fossil fuel-based energy supply cannot be considered as a SMaC approach. If you look at wind again, it would not be a SMaC solution as it will not be available at similar levels across the globe.

In that respect solar would be a consistent solution as it is available at almost all places on the globe of course, at different intensities. At certain places the intensity may not be adequate for solar thermal while Photovoltaic would yield results at most places.

When one talks about PV solar, there are many options like Roof Top Solar, Solar Parks which are been promoted and practiced right now. Both these do have issues in respect of (a) need of deforestation and associated critical environmental imbalances created (b) need for long transmission lines, (c)area usage efficiency, (d)loss of arable land, etc in case of solar parks and (i)suitability of all roof tops for the purpose, (ii) roof top inclinations, (iii) air space between roof top & panels getting heated up thus reducing efficiency, (iv) difficulties in cleaning etc.

Germany taking the initiative

Germany has already started planning to use Highway Solarisation as mentioned in Solar Technology on August 21, 2020. It was on January 02, 2019, that we mentioned in an article to local papers titled "Climate risk of Sri Lanka" that Germany is thesecond country after Japan most vulnerable to climate risk due to its GHG emissions in tons per square kilometer and road density in km per 100km-2land area. True to our predictions Japan became the most vulnerable country in the year 2018 with Germany as the third. So after noticing that our prediction in respect of which countries would be the most vulnerable countries, they may have selected the solution we proposed in the said article and now we would be able to see Highway Solarisation been practiced in one of the most technically advanced countries in the world. Sri Lanka lost a golden opportunity of been the first country to propose a solution for climate change. That is the wisdom of our leaders of the state.

Conclusion

In this article we have examined the possibility of using a Specific, Methodical and Consistent (SMaC) Solution as prescribed by Jim Collins and Prof. Morten E. Hansen of California at Berkley in their book "Great by choice" to solve Climate change. We also noticed solutions prescribed by Paris Accord and IPCC are very much like the solutions which would worsen climate change and explained why they are similar to the remedies which Molier said would kill the patients rather than cure them.

Then we explained how Highway Solarisation could be considered as a SMaC solution for Climate Change which is about to be practiced in Germany.

FISHERIES INDUSTRY URGES HALT OF CANNED FISH IMPORTS

Fishermen, fish suppliers and local canned fish manufacturers urged authorities to implement without delay President Gotabaya Rajapaksa's directives to reduce the foreign exchange spent annually on fish imports.

President Rajapaksa addressing a meeting which was held to discuss future activities of the fisheries industry recently at the Presidential Secretariat said that plans should be mooted from several directions to reduce the foreign exchange spent annually on fish imports. The Government annually spends around USD 500 million on importing fish, dry fish, maldive fish and canned fish. The contribution of the fishing industry to Gross Domestic Product stands at 1%. The President emphasized that the fishing industry in the country should be placed among exports that earn foreign exchange by harnessing the fishing potential along the coastal belt around the country and the inland tank net-

In a field visit to Kudawella Fisheries Harbour Daily News Business sought the views of several stakeholders who uniformly endorsed the desire of President Rajapaksa to curtail imports of fish products into the country spending over US$ 500 million annually. Fisherman K H Janit who has been in the business for over two decades lamented that canned fish imports had badly impacted the livelihoods of local fishermen and the fishing industry. He said they were unable to sell their fish locally and fetch a good price because there is an abundance of imported canned fish in the country. Janit therefore urged the authorities to implement the directives of the President so that local fishermen could reap the benefits of getting a good price for their fish catch.

M W Wijesinghe a prominent fish dealer who is also known as hodahitha mudalali said he has been doing business in Galle for over 35 years and import of canned fish is hampering the local fisheries business in a big way. Immediate measures should be taken to put an end to canned fish imports, he said.

Meanwhile, officials of Tess Group one of the pioneer local can fish producers said they purchase fish mostly from fishing local harbours such as Kudawella and they always try to pay local fishermen good prices. They said

if the local canned fish production increases the benefits go to these local fishermen and tin producers and the country gains because even the labels are printed within the country. More employment opportunities too are generated because of this. They said if tin fish imports are stopped they can further increase local tin production which will be vastly beneficial to local fishermen, the country and the econo-

Shiran Fernando, President, Canned Fish Manufacturers Association of Sri Lanka said that Sri Lanka is surrounded by the ocean, which is 10 times larger than the country's landmass, the country's resources are available at vast and although this is the case Sri Lanka still continues to import canned fish of more than 76 million dollars.

"We could save valuable foreign exchange and generate employment if the required support is given. It is a matter of prioritizing our national agenda to protect and nurture local

M W Wijesinghe prominent fish dealer

K H Janit, fisherman

industries which would contribute greatly to the economy. Due to the Covid-19 impact, many industries have suffered and to add to the devastation, many Sri Lankans are returning back from other countries to only find themselves unemployed. As you know every container of imported canned fish also causes unemployment in Sri Lanka. The canned fish industry has the potential to allow for Sri Lanka to gain maximum advantage of our oceanic resource which could be our key economic driver as it will impact several other industries and uplift the living standard for many Sri Lankans."He said by promoting the canned fish industry, it will create a positive chain reaction. In this scenario the local canned fish manufacturers are at the forefront of this chain. There are over 600,000 fishermen and a 1.5 million strong fishing community in the country. Local canned fish manufacturers support other industries as everything is purchased locally, including labels, salt, empty cans, etc.

"By purchasing from local canned fish manufactures we can ensure absolute freshness as our fish is canned within days. We pay our fisherman premium prices and have the potential to pay a higher price which in turn will make them increase their fishing capacity which would automatically solve the problem of Indian trawlers poaching in our waters. As we all know the biggest incentive to people is money. By giving fisherman a premium price, they can purchase the necessary equipment such as nets, boats, etc. to increase productivity. And so, we urge the government of Sri Lanka to ensure that the armed forces, government institutions and Sathosa to give priority to locally manufactured canned fish so that we can develop this industry like other successful countries like Thailand. Thailand with a much smaller sea mass than Sri Lanka is the 4th largest exporter of canned tuna in the world. If the local canned fish manufacturers are given priority, within the next few years Sri Lanka would also be exporting canned fish."

He said the fisheries industry has the potential of great development and time will tell which path it will follow.

Aruna Ranjan, a Purchasing Officer by trade for a leading local can fish manufacturer said his company always paid the best price to local fishermen. Bur since lately with the influx of canned fish from overseas has severely affected their business. He said by limiting canned fish from overseas they could purchase more local fish and this couldw lead to the uplift of the local fish industry and the fisheries community at large. (MFJ)

A CLOSER LOOK AT SLIIT'S DR.GOMES' RESEARCH

Dive into the latest research on ecological rehabilitation by Dr. Gomes from the Sri Lanka Institute of Information Technology.

Dr. M. Gomes of the Sri Lanka Institute of Information Technology (SLIIT) is currently involved in ecological rehabilitation research regarding the ecological rehabilitation of a concreted stream network in Hong Kong. As co-investigator of a project funded by the Environment and Conservation fund Hong Kong, Dr. Gomes has been a part of this initiative. In his work so far, he has discovered that some of his findings have direct implications and applicability to canals in Colombo.

Due to the fact that canals are manmade, they have been found to constitute a disturbance to the environment by way of the pollution/ environmental impact they have. However, if the canal is old, it is typically considered to be a natural part of the environment, as is the case with centuries' old paddy fields. Such canals are thought to have ecological values and functionalities similar to streams, which is what needs to be done with the canals in Colombo.

As the history of any developed country has revolved around the concept of 'develop now, clean up later', when it comes to aspects such as urban waterways, priorities revolve around economic development. This means that only areas such as flood control have been looked into: one of the reasons why the waterways of most cities of developed countries are straight and in some cases, completely concerted. Though concreted waterways help mobilise the disposal of water from urban areas due to less friction, without sediment and proper in stream physical habitats, they would support only very few flora and fauna.

A few decades ago, initiatives were taken in developed countries to rehabilitate the lotic waters to improve their eco-hydraulic functions. It should also be noted that in many urban area, lotic waters prove a suitable space for recreational activities, which is something urban dwellers tend to naturally expect with economic development. Interestingly, many countries currently view concreted waterways as a nuisance, thus prompting action by injecting finances to elevate them into more natural and self-sustainable entities. Therefore, it is important that these developments are borne in mind when city planning, to ensure the consequences of activities suffered by developed countries in the past will not repeat themselves. It is essential to integrate sustainable canal design practices that would harmonise flood control and ecological rehabilitation in our canal rehabilitation programmes.

Dr. Gomes' current work in Sri Lanka also includes locating optimum conditions that would help set a reference condition for such manmade waterways, a vital aspect in setting rehabilitation goals. Together with his co-workers, samples cover-of studying extreme scenarios. Dr. Gomes especially mentioned and thanked the National Research Council, for providing the necessary funds for his work, and believes that the findings of this study would be immensely helpful in re-shaping urban waterways of Sri Lanka.

SLIIT has an honoured history, and a continued thirst for achievement characterised by the tireless pursuit of accreditations and collaborations. We are also the first Sri Lankan institute to be accredited by the Institution of Engineering and Technology UK, for Information Technology degrees. Our degrees are also approved by the University Grants Commission under the Universities Act.

The institute is a Member of the Association of Commonwealth Universities and International Association of Universities (IAU). Offering a wide range of study areas including Bachelor's, Master's and PhD degrees in Computing, Business, Engineering, Architecture, Quantity Surveying, Psychology, Law, Nursing, Education and Sciences. SLIIT also connects people both locally and globally.

We have more than 50 industry partners, and collaborative agreements with foreign universities to

Since its inception in 1999, SLIIT has successfully established an environment that is conducive to learning throughout all its campuses and centres. The institute has two campuses in Malabe and Colombo and also four regional centres in Matara, Kandy, Kurunegala and Jaffna.

Having started out with a mere 400 students, today the institute boasts a student population of over 9,000. Together with superior research facilities and optimum resources, SLIIT is able to encourage students to reach new heights in both innovation and excellence. The consistent high standards that we strive to maintain ensures our graduates are not only accepted on the global platform, but are able to effectively tackle challenges in the real world. Additionally, we aim to instill in our students analytical, problem-solving and communication skills to help them navigate their way. Furthermore, if students are interested in pursuing a foreign degree, they have the option of following an offshore programme right here in Colombo or follow the pathway option facilitated by many of our partner universities. If students are unable to complete their studies due to unavoidable circumstances, they have an exit option at each level, with the ability to rejoin the programme at an appropriate level and continue through to graduation.
