5 A licensee shall not connect to his electric line the wires, fittings, apparatus and appliances on a consumer's premises unless he is satisfied that the requirements of these regulations and the Electrical Wiring Regulations have been complied with by the consumer

6 Where a licensee declines to connect a consumer's installation to his electric line, he shall notify the consumer in writing his reasons for so declining.

7 Every consumer shall maintain all electric lines, wires, fittings, apparatus and appliances belonging to him in a safe condition and in all respects suitable for conveying and utilising electrical energy, and shall comply with all the conditions under which electrical energy is supplied by a licensee.

8 A licensee shall, on being requested to do so by a consumer, inspect and test the consumer's installation and give the consumer a report of the inspection and tests carried out. The cost of such inspection and test must be paid by the consumer to the licensee, and, where the licensee so requires, such cost must be paid in advance

9 When a licensee discovers any defect in the consumer's lines, wires, fittings or apparatus, the licensee shall require a consumer, by notice in writing specifying the defect, to cause such defect to be repaired within such time as may be specified in the notice, and if the defect is of such a nature as to endanger the safety of life, or property or the operators employed by the licensee, the licensee shall in addition cause such lines, wires, fittings or apparatus to be made dead and prohibit by such notice the use of such lines, wires, fittings or apparatus until the defect is repaired to the satisfaction of the licensee

1 The supply system must be separated into sections and where necessary provided with circuit breakers or fusible cutouts so as to restrict reasonably the area of supply affected by a failure of electricity

2 (a) Each outgoing feeder or distributor from any power house, sub-station or street box must be provided with fuses or an automatic circuit breaker equipped with an overload inverse time limit or other approved tripping device.

(b) A fuse or tripping device must be maintained in each conductor, except in an earthed neutral, and in the case of 3-phase 3-wire circuits one overload inverse time limit trip coil may be replaced by an earth leakage trip coil

3 Service Lines—It shall be the duty of the licensee to erect, and maintain in a safe condition and in all respects suitable for supplying electrical energy, the electrical lines, wires, fittings and apparatus which belong to him or are under his control or are on a consumer's premises on the licensee's side of the consumer's terminals

4 Service connections from aerial lines—

- (a) must be taken direct from the insulators,
- (b) must not be tapped off aerial lines between supports, and
- (c) must be laid as directly as possible to insulators firmly attached to such a position on the consumer's building as is not accessible to any person without the use of a ladder or other special appliance

5 Service fuses must comply with the following requirements —

- (a) A suitable cutout or automatic circuit breaker must be inserted in each electric service line other than an earth conductor
- (b) Outdoor fuses must be used wherever practicable in order to protect the service main
- (c) Outdoor fuses must be weather-proof

- (e) In the case of 400 volts or 440 volts supply the phase or outer conductor fuses must be separated by an insulating partition and must be so arranged that any two conductors cannot be accidentally touched simultaneously

6 The separate conductors of service lines must be marked in such a way so that it will be possible to distinguish—

- (a) in the case of an Alternating Current, between the neutral and the line phase conductors, and
- (b) in the case of a Direct Current, between the polarity of the conductors

VIII SECTION 60 (2) (h)

1 Every application for a permit to supply energy temporarily shall be in the Form C set out in the Schedule herto

2 The terms and conditions to be attached to every permit issued for the temporary supply of energy are as follows —

- (a) The name and address of the permit holder must be displayed prominently at the entrance to the premises to which energy is supplied
- (b) The wires carrying energy from any private plant must not be erected at any point within three feet of the wires, if any, carrying energy from any public supply system
- (c) The temporary supply of energy shall be liable to be stopped by the issuing authority if the permit holder—
 - (i) fails to take such measures in respect of the installation as may be necessary to ensure the safety of the persons, or
 - (ii) contravenes any of the aforesaid conditions (a) and (b)

3 A fee calculated at the rate of one rupee for each kilowatt of energy to be supplied for each day shall be paid by the applicant to the issuing authority before the issue of the permit

(2) The height of every line conductor in any premises or land must, in accordance with the use to which such premises or land is subject, be increased to provide sufficient clearance for safety. Such measures as are provided in regulations 20 and 21 must be taken to prevent danger to persons

5 The height from the ground of any conductor of an aerial line at medium or low pressure must be—

- (a) within any area other than the Area of Authority of the Gal Oya Development Board, not less than 19 feet across a public road or 17 feet in any other position, and
- (b) within the Area of Authority of the Gal Oya Development Board, not less than 18 feet across a public road or 16 feet in any other position

Provided, however, that where an aerial line is erected in any place other than in a street and in such a way as to be inaccessible to vehicular traffic the height from the ground of any conductor in such a line may be 15 feet

And provided further that in the case of service lines or consumers' overhead wires erected in any place other than in a street, the height from the ground of any covered conductor in the span between the building and the nearest pole or between two buildings may not be less than (a) 12 feet where the line crosses any way used by vehicles and (b) 9 feet in any other part of the span

6 Service lines and consumers' overhead wires must be so attached to buildings that it will be impossible to reach such lines or wires without the use of a ladder or other special appliance. Provided however that this regulation will have no application to insulated wires used as service lines and consumers' overhead lines

7 (1) Within any area other than the Area of Authority of the Gal Oya Development Board the height from the ground of any conductor of an aerial line at high or extra high pressure must be not less than 22 feet across a public road or 20 feet in any other position

Provided, however, that where a line is erected in any place other than in a street and in such a way as to be inaccessible to vehicular traffic the height from the ground of any conductor in such a line may be 18 feet

(2) Within the Area of Authority of the Gal Oya Development Board, the height from the ground of any conductor of an aerial line must be—

- (a) for pressures exceeding 650 volts and not exceeding 11 kilovolts—
 - (i) 19 feet across a public road,

 - (i) 20 feet across a public road,
 - (ii) 20 feet in any other position, and
 - (iii) 16 feet in any place inaccessible to vehicular traffic

8 Where an aerial line crosses a navigable waterway such clearance as the Chief Electrical Inspector specifies must be provided

9 Where guard wires are used, such wires must, for the purposes of computing any clearance, be deemed to be medium pressure lines and the clearance specified for medium pressure lines must be observed

10 Where an aerial uninsulated line is laid across or near any building, the conductor must have a minimum vertical clearance of 8 feet from any part of the building immediately underneath it, and in the case of any conductor within 8 feet of any part of the building such conductor must have a horizontal clearance of 5 feet from that part of the building

11 (a) Every portion of any medium or a low pressure electric conductor which is outside and attached to a building must be effectively covered with rubber of not less than 600 megohm grade or with triple braiding or P B J in the span between the pole and the building

(b) Every portion of any high or extra high pressure electric conductor which is outside and attached to a building must be effectively protected to prevent danger to persons

12 For the purpose of computing any clearance for an aerial line—

- (a) the maximum sag must be deemed to occur at 150 degrees Fahrenheit,
- (b) the minimum vertical clearance between conductors must be deemed to occur at any temperature between 60 degrees Fahrenheit and 150 degrees Fahrenheit, and
- (c) the minimum horizontal clearance must be deemed to occur at 150 degrees Fahrenheit and be equal to that with a conductor fully deflected by wind exerting a pressure of 12 pounds per square foot of the projected area of the conductor

13 (a) A high or extra high pressure line must not be brought into use after it has been placed in position unless the insulation of every part thereof has withstood either the tests prescribed in that behalf in the appropriate Specification of the British Standard Institution, or the continuous application (between conductors and also between conductors and earth during a period of not less than 15 minutes) of alternating current either at a testing voltage equal to at least $1\frac{1}{2}$ times the normal working voltage to which the electric line or apparatus will be subjected under conditions of supply or at a testing voltage equal to the aforesaid working voltage with the addition of 10,000 volts, whichever is the less

(b) A medium or low pressure line must not be brought into use unless the insulation of every part thereof has withstood either the test prescribed in that behalf in the appropriate Specification of the British Standard Institution or the continuous application for a period of half an hour of the maximum pressure to which it is intended to be subjected in use, and in any case not less than 250 volts

(c) The licensee shall duly record the results of each test

14 Where the insulation of any circuit of any system is faulty, immediate steps must be taken by the licensee to make that circuit dead. The circuit must not be placed in service again unless the insulation has been repaired

15 The line must be so designed and constructed that the stresses in overhead conductors must not exceed—

- (a) 25,000 pounds per square inch in the case of hard drawn copper wire,
- (b) 14,000 pounds per square inch in the case of annealed copper wire, or
- (c) 12,500 pounds per square inch in the case of hard drawn aluminium wire,
- (d) 34,000 pounds per square inch in the case of steel wire, or
- (e) 22,500 pounds per square inch in the case of iron wire,

when subjected simultaneously to a minimum temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit or such other temperature as may be specified in the licence, and a wind pressure of 12 pounds per square foot of diametral plane

16 Supports for aerial lines (1) Within any area other than the Area of Authority of the Gal Oya Development Board, the factor of safety of each support must be 2.5 in the case of iron or steel and 3.5 in the case of reinforced concrete or wood, calculated on the crippling load for struts and upon the elastic limit of tension members

(2) Within the Area of Authority of the Gal Oya Development Board, the factor of safety of each support must be 2.5 in the case of iron, steel or reinforced concrete, and 3.5 in the case of wood, calculated on the crippling load for struts and upon the elastic limit of tension members

17 (a) In computing the applied moments for the strength of supports, a wind pressure of 18 pounds per square foot of plane surface and 12 pounds per square foot of diametral plane of cylindrical surface must be assumed

(b) The wind pressure on the lee side members of lattice or other compound structures including A and H poles must be taken as one-half of the wind pressure on the windward side members

(c) In no case must the strength of the supports in the direction of the overhead line be less than one-quarter the required strength in a direction transverse to the line

18 If at any time after the erection of an aerial line, any person intends to erect a building, structure or scaffolding, whether permanent or temporary, or to make in or upon any building or structure any permanent or temporary alteration, which is likely to render the aerial line accessible (otherwise than by the aid of a ladder or special appliance), such person shall give notice in writing of his intention to the owner of the aerial line and shall furnish with such notice a sketch of the proposed building, structure, scaffolding, addition or alteration in relation to the electric line, and he shall not commence such building, structure, scaffolding, addition or alteration until the owner of the electric line has certified that during or after the erection of such building, structure or scaffolding or the making of such alteration the aerial line will not be so accessible as to cause reasonable danger to persons or electric lines

19 Where the line conductor is laid over or under or is in proximity to, any other overhead wire, precautions must be taken by the licensee to prevent contact, due to breakage or otherwise, between the line conductor and the other overhead wire or between the other overhead wire and the line conductor

Provided, however, that this regulation shall not be deemed to require the licensee to take precautions against contact between a broken line conductor and other auxiliary conductors and earth wires carried on the same support and forming part of the same overhead line

20 (1) In the case of medium or low pressure lines precautions must be taken to prevent danger—

(A) from a broken line conductor by the provision of—

- (a) a neutral or earth conductor carried continuously from pole to pole, and so arranged in relation to the other conductors that in the event of a breakage of any one of such other conductors the line conductor shall make contact with the earth wire, or
- (b) any other means approved by the Chief Electrical Inspector, and

(B) from leakage by the provision of—

- (a) in cases where metal poles are used—
- (i) an earth wire running from pole to pole and connected to the pole, or
 - (ii) other means approved by the Chief Electrical Inspector, and
- (b) in cases where wood poles are used—
- (i) a bonding wire connected to the supporting metal work of all insulators, such bonding wire terminating at the lowest part of the supporting metal work, or
 - (ii) other means approved by the Chief Electrical Inspector

Provided, however, that within the Area of Authority of the Gal Oya Development Board the provision of a bonding wire connected to the supporting metal work of all insulators may be dispensed with in any case where wood or concrete poles are used

(2) Where lightning conductors are used or other uninsulated conductors are run down wooden poles to within 10 feet from the ground, such precautions for the prevention of danger to persons must be taken as in the case of metal poles

(3) Every stay wire other than a wire which is connected to earth by means of a continuous earth wire must be insulated by means of an insulator being placed in the stay wire at a height not less than 10 feet from the ground to prevent danger from leakage

21 In the case of high and extra high pressure lines—

- (1) adequate means must be provided to render any line conductor dead in the event of such conductor falling as a result of breakage or other cause,
- (2) all metal works other than conductors must be permanently and efficiently connected with earth—in the following manner, that is to say, a continuous earth wire must be provided and connected with earth at 4 points in every mile, the spacing between the points being as nearly equidistant as possible, or alternatively the metal work must be connected to an effective earthing device at each individual support,
- (3) each support must have a danger notice, of a permanent character in English, Sinhalese and Tamil, securely fixed to it, and
- (4) for the purpose of preventing unauthorised climbing, suitable anti-climbing devices must be used

Provided, however, that within the Area of Authority of the Gal Oya Development Board the provisions of paragraph (2) shall not apply in any case where wood or concrete poles are used

22 Underground conductors Where any underground electric line crosses or is in proximity to any metallic substance, special precautions must be taken by the licensee against the possibility of any electric charging of the metal conduit, pipe or casing enclosing such lines

23 Lines crossing metallic substance Where an overhead line crosses, or is in proximity to, any metallic substance, it shall be the duty of the licensee to take such precautions as will be necessary to prevent such line coming into contact with the metallic substance, or of the metallic substance coming into contact with such line, by breakage or otherwise

- (a) if the meter or indicator is found to be correct, pay the amount of such fee to the licensee, or
- (b) if the meter or indicator is found to be not correct, refund to the consumer the whole or such portion of the fee as the Electrical Inspector may determine and pay the balance, if any, of such fee to the licensee

2 (1) The fee payable for the determination of any difference between a consumer and a licensee under section 43 (3) of the Act shall be Rs 50, and in addition to the said fee the amount of travelling and subsistence expenses which may be incurred by the Electrical Inspector, if a visit to the premises is necessary, shall be payable

(2) The amount of the fee referred to in paragraph (1) and the travelling and subsistence expenses shall be paid to the Inspector by the party at whose request the difference was referred to the Electrical Inspector. The decision of the Electrical Inspector on any such reference shall contain an order as to which party is to pay the costs of the proceedings relating to such reference, or in what proportion the costs are to be shared by the two parties
