"Stabilized composition and its preparation"

Abstract—This invention relates to a stabilized papain composition and to a process of its preparation

According to the invention the high proteolytic activity of papain is sought to be retained over long periods of time under normal storage conditions by stabilizing with a minor quantity—preferably 0.1 to 3 per cent of sodium bisulfite The preservation is somewhat further enhanced by incorporating with the fresh latex and minor quantity of sodium bisulfite, a minor amount of a phenolic compound such as thymol

" Means for the application of insecticides "

Abstract—This invention relates to means for the application of insecticides to the soil. The means of application consists of a closed capsule of gelatine or other water soluble material, the said capsule containing a systematic insecticide which may be dissolved in an inert solvent, if so desired.

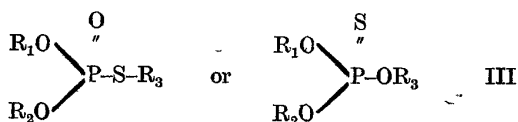

The systemic insecticides employed are preferably compounds of one of the following general formulae — wherein R_1 and R_3 each represent a hydrogen atom or an alkyl or cycloalkyl group containing not more than eight carbon atoms, R_2 and R_4 each represent an alkyl or cycloalkyl group containing not more than eight carbon atoms and X is fluorine or the azido group N_3 .

wherein R_1 , R_2 , R , and R' have the same meaning as in (I) above wherein R_1 and R_2 each represent an alkyl group containing not more than eight carbon atoms and R_3 represents an alkyl chain which may be interrupted by one or more sulphur or oxygen atoms

" Improvements in bottom brackets for cycle frames and in the method of making the same

Abstract—This invention relates to cycle frame bottom brackets. The nature of the invention can be ascertained from Claim 1 which is as follows —

1 A method of making a cycle frame bottom bracket of the type described, consisting in constructing the same from two separately fashioned metal pressings each being substantially semi-circular in cross section such that together they form the cylindrical body portion, and pressing or drawing in one such pressing a socket or lug for a down tube and in the other the socket or lug for the other down tube and socket or lugs for the chain stays, the two said pressings being thereafter united by electric resistance butt welding with the tubular sockets or lugs in proper relationship

" Improvements in or relating to cycle frame lugs and in the method of manufacture thereof

Abstract—This invention relates to cycle frame lugs. The nature of the invention can be ascertained from Claim 1 which is as follows —

1 The method of manufacturing a cycle frame lug of the kind referred to, consisting in forming it from two separate metal plates or blanks by pressing the one plate or blank into a semi-circular section or open ended trough shape, and producing from the other plate or blank, by a pressing and drawing operation, an integral sleeve or tube, constituting the one tubular member of the lug, and pressing the remaining portion of the latter plate or blank into a semi-circular section or open ended trough shape and displacing the said semi-circular sectioned or trough part and the integral sleeve or tube of the latter plate or blank angularly relatively to one another, applying the side edges of the two semi-circular sectioned or trough portions together and uniting them by electric resistance butt welding, so that together they form the other tubular member of the lug

" An improved method of manufacturing seat lugs for cycle frames

Abstract—This invention relates to seat lugs for cycle frames. The nature of the invention can be ascertained from Claim 1 which reads as follows —

1 Making the trough-shaped ear carrying parts of cycle frame seat lugs of the kind referred to in pairs from two metal blanks by subjecting each blank to a pressing operation to provide a central arch portion with an integral ear at each side, securing the edges of the two pressings together, with their concave faces towards one another, to form a main tubular part, formed by the two arch portions, with a pair of opposed ears at each side, and finally dividing the main tubular part

" Improvements in or relating to ventless short period delay electric detonators

Abstract—This invention relates to improvements in or relating to ventless short period delay electric detonators

The invention is characterised in that the delay element has a delay composition of a mixture of 91.95 per cent by weight of red lead and 9.5 per cent by weight of silicon not less than 90 per cent by weight of which has a particle size less than 5 microns and all of it of size less than 20 microns

There are 5 Claims

transversely to provide two trough shaped or semi-circular sectioned portions each carrying a pair of opposed ears, a gap or clearance extending into the trough portion being left, or formed, between the two ears, which are pierced or apertured to receive a bolt

Improvements in, and in the method of manufacture of, cycle frames

Abstract—The invention relates to tubular cycle frames. The nature of the invention can be ascertained from Claim 1 which is as follows —

1 The method of manufacturing a part of a cycle frame comprising a tubular lug or junction piece and a separately formed tubular part, consisting in forming the said lug or junction piece with an integral tubular branch by a pressing and/or drawing operation, and butt-welding the end of such pressed and/or drawn out tubular branch to the end of the separately-formed tubular part

There are 13 Claims and 5 sheets of drawings
