THE following specifications have been accepted:—

No. 4,671 of 4th May, 1959. (Convention application under Sec. 48, claiming priority date 8.5.58 of U. K. No. 14,783/58.)

WILLIAM DERRICK WADSWORTH SMITH.

"Improvements in or relating to tea sifting apparatus".

Abstract.—This invention relates to improvement to tea sifting apparatus. According to this invention, the tea sifting apparatus comprises a frame mounted resiliently on a fixed support, rotatable out-of-balance shaft mounted rotatably on said frame, and one or more sifting sieves slung or otherwise mounted on said frame, means being provided to rotate the said shaft, and for feeding tea leaf to the said sifting sieve or sieves.

There are 13 claims and 3 sheets of drawings.

No. 4,678 of 23th May, 1959. (Convention application under Sec. 48, claiming priority date 10.8.58 of U. K. No. 18,550/58.)

PETER CROMBIE, M.B.E.

"Tea rolling machines".

Abstract.—The nature of the invention can be ascertained from claims 1, 2 and 3 which read as follows:—

1. A tea rolling machine having two rolling members for rolling tea leaf fed therebetween, wherein one of said rolling members is reciprocable relatively to the other and the two said rolling members have co-operating leaf-rolling and leaf-progressing surfaces, the arrangement being such that upon reciprocating movement being imparted to said reciprocable rolling member the leaf is rolled between the rolling surfaces and progressed intermittently forward by said movement and the co-operating effect of said rolling surfaces in a general direction from the feed to a discharge point from the tea rolling operation.

2. A tea rolling machine having two rolling members for rolling tea leaf fed therebetween, comprising means for imparting reciprocating movement to one of said rolling members relatively to the other, means for yieldably biasing at least one of said rolling members relatively to the other whereby yieldably to exert pressure on tea leaf fed therebetween, means whereby one of said rolling members is withdrawable at least partly from co-operative rolling position relatively to the other member for feeding tea leaf between the rolling members, and co-operating leaf-rolling and leaf-progressing surfaces on said two rolling members, the arrangement being such that upon reciprocating movement being imparted to said reciprocable rolling member and intermittent withdrawal from rolling co-operation of the rolling members taking place for feed purposes, the leaf is rolled between the rolling surfaces and progressed intermittently forward in a general direction from the feed to a discharge point from the machine.

3. A tea rolling machine having two rolling members for rolling tea leaf fed therebetween, wherein one of said rolling members is a reciprocable trough-like member the side walls of which constitute containing means for the tea leaf to be rolled and the bottom of which constitutes one of the tea-rolling surfaces, and the other of said rolling members comprises a plate-like member mounted above and in co-operative rolling relationship with the bottom of the trough, the said trough bottom and the plate-like member having co-operating leaf-rolling and leaf-progressing surfaces and the arrangement being such that upon reciprocating movement being imparted to the trough the leaf is rolled and progressed intermittently forward by the reciprocating movement and the co-operating effect of the rolling surfaces in a general direction from the feed to a discharge point from the trough.
